RAILROADS' PLIGHT IMPRESSES WILSON

Expresses to Callers His Deep Interest in Urgent Problem—Confident About New Haven.

CONFERENCE COMES TO-DAY

Elliott Hopeful as He Leaves to Attend — Basis of Settlement Now Well Defined.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—It was apparent in administration circles to-day that President Wilson had been impressed by statements made to him concerning financial conditions confronting the railroads, especially as to their greatly increased operating expenses and the dangers to the country's prosperity that might arise from an imposition of additional burdens on the great transportation systems at this particular time.

While the President regards the case before the Interstate Commerce Commission involving the application of the fifty-seven Eastern railroads to make a horizontal advance of 5 per cent. in freight rates as a matter with which he has no right to interfere, he showed to-day that he appreciated the situation which the railroads faced, and indicated that he was anxious to help to improve it. In fact, it was gathered from what the President told some of his visitors that he was actually engaged in helpful work in this connection, but nothing was said to show how this helpfulness was being exercised.

This attitude of the President is believed to have inspired the statement made at the White House on Tuesday that there would be no receivership for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad if the Administration could prevent it. Mr. Wilson pointed out to-day that the New Haven situation was proceeding satisfactorily, and said he had not heard of the New Haven case influencing the financial condition of other railroads, as had been reported.

The President had been asked by callers if he had heard any particular complaints from the railroads about their financial condition, and remarked that he had heard what everybody was discussing—the uncertainty of their position.

The President also revealed that while he had not been consulted by the Interstate Commerce Commission as a whole, individual members of it had called on him from time to time, with whom he discussed everything they had brought up about the rate case with frankness. Mr. Wilson made it clear that the proposed increase in freight rates was "the big thing" in the situation. No legislative action to afford relief to the railroads had been suggested to the President, according to his talks with callers.

It is believed that the President intends to keep the Interstate Commerce Commission constantly informed about opinion on the railroad situation throughout the country as it comes to him. Many letters sent to the White House about the pending rate increases have already been referred to the commission for the information they contained.

One of the President's callers told him that the net earnings of the railroads in 1913 had decreased $33,000,000, and asked if anything had been done by the Government to remedy this situation. The President answered without hesitation that railroad conditions were being considered from every point of view by the administration.

CONFER ON NEW HAVEN TO-DAY

Negotiations to be Resumed and a Final Settlement Is Expected.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Negotiations between the Department of Justice and the New Haven Railroad will be resumed to-morrow. It was believed today that they would be final and that a settlement would be reached within a few days.

T. W. Gregory, Jesse C. Adkins, and F. M. Swacker of the Department of Justice returned to-day from New England, where they have been gathering first-hand information about men suggested as Trustees for the Connecticut and Rhode Island trolley lines, which the New Haven is to give up. They declined to comment on their trip, but it was understood that the department and the New Haven were about to agree on the personnel of those boards. That has been a vital point in the efforts to reach a settlement, and if it is cleared up little difficulty in arranging other details is expected.

According to information available to-night the final plan for untangling the system will be ready for submission to Attorney General McReynolds to-morrow night or Saturday, and it is probable that President Wilson will have an opportunity to see the fruits of the conferees' labors the same day.

If it is approved by the Attorney General and the President there will be little left to be done before the New Haven begins to comply with the conditions of reorganization laid down in the plan. Action by the Massachusetts Legislature to change provisions of the charter of the Boston Railroad Holding Company, controlled by the New York, New Haven & Hartford, and in turn direct owner of the Boston & Maine stock, which the New Haven is to give up, will mark a final stage of the settlement.

About the only step to be taken after such legislation is enacted will be the legal announcement of the dissolution plan in an "agreed decree" prepared by the department, approved by the New Haven, and sanctioned by a Federal court.

The plan, it was predicted in official circles to-night, will be along the following lines:

The New Haven will put its Boston & Maine stock in the hands of five trustees. They will serve for two and one-half years, and their term of service may be extended by the Federal court which sanctions the agreement. The personnel of this board will be finally ratified to-morrow.

The New Haven will put its Rhode Island trolleys in the hands of other trustees and its Connecticut lines in the care of still another set. The trustees have not been chosen, but a first hand investigation of the qualifications of several men suggested, by officials of the department, led to the belief to-night that the selection will not prove difficult. There probably will be five trustees for each system, and the term of their service has not been a matter of dispute.

The disposition of the Massachusetts trolley lines owned by the New Haven will be left to the road. The New Haven already has rid itself of many of its trolley lines in that State, and it is not thought at the department that the dis-

FIRE HITS WELLESLEY HARD

Can Collect Insurance for Only One-Fourth of $900,000 Loss.

BOSTON, March 19.—The immediate future of Wellesley College is in doubt as a result of the financial loss sustained in the fire that destroyed College Hall, the largest building of the institution, on Tuesday. The true situation, it was said, was not realized until the Executive Committee met and discovered that the estimated loss of $900,000 was based upon the assessors' valuation of greatly depreciated property, and that the insurance obtainable represented only about one-fourth of the probable cost of restoration.

The Right Rev. William Lawrence, President of the Executive Committee, said to-day that within a few days he would call the trustees together to take some definite action toward putting the college immediately into working order.

President Ellen F. Pendleton said that all the students had been notified to be back in three weeks, and that it was hoped to resume sessions at the end of that period. "The academic activities of the college are crippled," she said. "College Hall was the centre of our life and work, and with that in ruins we are paralyzed."

Bishop Lawrence, who called the fire a calamity, said:

"Every laboratory is gone; there is not a lecture room or recitation room left; the college has not an instrument for conducting an experiment in chemistry or physics. All the scientific collections which have been forty years gathering are lost. Some of them were priceless; all of them were necessary for doing the daily work of these departments. The loss of the zoological museum and of the fine geological collection is a great misfortune.

"Chapel, gymnasium, dormitories and library are but disconnected units and cannot do their work. These departments must go on, but they cannot go without equipment. It is imperative that steps be taken at once to repair the loss; but the officers are at sea as to what steps to take.

"The excellent business methods of the college kept the building insured at the highest amount the insurance companies would accept; but on a building forty years old, of obsolete construction, the utmost insurance that could be placed is pitifully inadequate to replace the equipment and facilities which have been destroyed. The calamity is a crisis in the history of the college."

MILITANTS "MONO-IDEISTS."

Insanity Expert Explains Their Actual Psychical Condition.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, March 20.—Dr. T. Claye Shaw, a well-known authority on insanity, writing to The Times on the mental condition of militant suffragettes, says:

"In truth these militants are not insane, and their violent acts are but the expression of a deviltry the existence of which has come to us as a surprise.

"The psychology of the militant suffragette mind is that there is superinduced a condition of mono-ideism, the essential 'content' of which is impulse. This reduction to mono-ideism is not insanity, and it is not confined to suffragettism. It is the essence of all fanatics and faddists, and is, indeed, the motive spirit which underlies all reformers and innovators.

"It is the key to bad actions as well as good ones, and it pervades the enthusiast and ardent politician just as it does the criminal. When it takes the form of incendiarism and violence, the only method of stopping it appears to be, judging by past experience, by physical means."

VENICE BOAT SUNK; 50 LOST

Passenger Steamer for Lido Run Into by a Torpedo Vessel.

VENICE, March 19.—A torpedo boat to-day cut down a small passenger steamer which plies between Venice and the Lido, and fifty persons were drowned.

The sharp nose of the torpedo boat went through the stern of the steamer, which sank almost immediately.

Although many Americans are visiting Venice at the present time, it is not believed that any were on board the steamer.

The victims included many women and several children.

Fifteen persons who were on the deck of the steamer were saved by the crew of the torpedo boat.

The others were caught in the cabin and were carried down with the wreck. The Italian sailors dived many times in efforts to rescue those who sank with the steamer, but without avail.

Intense excitement prevails here, not only because of the extent of the disaster, but because the names of the victims are not yet known.

SILENT ON BISHOP'S DEATH.

Dr. Scarborough Said to Have Braved Storm After Quarrel with a Rector.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., March 19.—The Rev. W. T. Widener, rector of St. George's Episcopal Church in this place, refused to-day to discuss a report that the death of Bishop Scarborough at Trenton on March 14 of pneumonia, had followed the Bishop's walking unaccompanied from his church in a heavy snowstorm.

Mr. Widener was told that it had been said that he and the Bishop had had a dispute, which led the aged prelate to abandon his plan to preach at the church. It was said he walked through the storm to the home of Mrs. George W. Helme, in whose carriage he had ridden to the church. The Rev. Mr. Widener refused also to discuss another story which had it that his congregation was anxious that he should resign and that he had refused to do so. One version of the account of Bishop Scarborough's departure from St. George's on the Sunday of the storm was that he had sought to prevail upon the Rev. Mr. Widener to resign, but that the rector had rebuffed him.

I. W. W. ARMY RIOTS IN COOPER UNION

Host of 300 Invades Socialist Symposium on Problem of the Unemployed.

FLYING WEDGE ON STAGE

Joseph O'Carroll, I. W. W. Leader, Attacks Socialists Who Try to Silence Him—Two Arrests Made.

The efforts of the I. W. W. to capture a Socialist meeting held to discuss the unemployment problem led to a riot in Cooper Union last night, which for a time threatened to grow to serious proportions. After arresting Joseph O'Carroll of 71 East 105th Street and Jack Morris, 18 years old and homeless, leaders of the disturbance, the police cleared the hall and dispersed a crowd of 1,000 persons in Seventh Street, just off Cooper Square.

O'Carroll led his army of 300 young men from Rutgers Square about 8 o'clock. At 8:30 o'clock they arrived at Cooper Union. Two hundred and eighty took their places to the left of the stage, while O'Carroll and twenty of his closest friends elbowed their way to the platform and seized seats near their followers.

Capt. Sweeney of the East Fifth Street Station was in the hall, but he had only a few patrolmen on hand. He tried to keep the I. W. W. men on the platform in order, but they continued to interrupt Henry L. Slobodin, the chairman, and Morris Hilquitt, Laura G. Cannon, and Frank Sieverman, the other speakers. The I. W. W. group in front of the stage sent up concerted shouts for O'Carroll to speak, and shrill calls came from other parts of the hall.

One of the I. W. W. men on the platform excited the I. W. W. partisans in the audience by waving a banner inscribed "We Want Wissotsky," which he had carried in the march from Rutgers Park. Wissotsky was one of the men captured at St. Alphonsus's Church whom Magistrate Appleton sentenced to serve sixty days in the Workhouse for particularly obnoxious behavior in the church edifice.

The man with the banner mocked Capt. Sweeney when he told him to sit down, and said:

"Why don't you arrest me?"

Capt. Sweeney realized that his force was insufficient to handle the I. W. W. host of troublemakers, so he quieted the man with the banner as best he could and sent Detectives Gildea and Gegan out to telephone for help.

Meanwhile the disorder increased. One of the Socialist speakers angered the disturbers by referring to them as "half-baked anarchists." He said that looking at them he could tell that not one of them was 20 years old. He demanded to know why they had come to "break up a respectable meeting."

In response to Capt. Sweeney's call, Inspector O'Brien sent forty detectives to the hall. They scattered among the audience and assisted the Socialist ushers in quieting individual disturbers separated from the main mass of the I. W. W. contingent. A white-haired woman who had been sitting on the platform stepped down and argued with the larger group and partially calmed them.

As Chairman Slobodin announced that the meeting was over, O'Carroll leaped to the centre of the stage, threw off his overcoat and began to make a speech. Julius Gerber, a prominent Socialist organizer, and Chairman Slobodin took him by the sleeve and sought to escort him to the rear of the stage. O'Carroll swung about and planted a heavy blow on Gerber's jaw. He swung again and hit Slobodin. His followers on the stage made a flying wedge and attacked Gerber, Slobodin, and other Socialists.

Round and round about there whirled a mass of fighting, kicking I. W. W. men and Socialists. The 280 I. W. W. followers in the audience climbed up on the stage to take part in the mix-up. Women, of whom there were many in the hall, began to scream. The mass of whirling fighters on the stage proved too big for it to hold, and many were tossed back on to the heads and shoulders of excited, yelling men in front of the platform.

Several newspaper photographers added to the excitement by exploding their flashlights. The janitor of Cooper Union flashed his electric lights up and down to make the crowd quit the hall, and the ushers and detectives started to wedge the audience into the street. The reserves came up from the Fifth Street Station, and after several minutes' hard work managed to drive the I. W. W. followers from the platform. Capt. Sweeney, assisted by Detectives Gildea and Gegan, who have been shadowing the Tannenbaum forces since the beginning of the local I. W. W. demonstrations, arrested O'Carroll and Morris, and charged them with inciting to riot.

As the prisoners came out on the street their followers rushed to rescue them, but the reserves stood them off. The other I. W. W. men then moved over to Seventh Street, followed by a big crowd. They attempted to organize a street demonstration there, but the reserves dispersed them.

At the police station, it was found that O'Carroll had a badly swollen ear as the result of the melee. He said he had tried to break up the meeting because it was in charge of lawyers. He had in his pocket a book, a postal card bearing greetings from Carlo Tresca, and 70 cents in money. On Morris the police found a letter from E. S. Weill of 85 Fifth Avenue dated Feb. 23, stating that a position was open to him at a "satisfactory" salary.

Deputy Police Commissioner Rubin came to the Fifth Street Station and consulted Inspector O'Brien and Capt. Sweeney about the disturbance. It could not be learned what he had said to them on the subject. O'Carroll gave his occupation as a machine hand and Morris said he was a machinist.

Before the advent of the I. W. W. army the meeting had voted to petition Mayor Mitchel to lay a memorial before the Legislature and Gov. Glynn asking for legislation to provide State insurance for the unemployed

TRY HOLD-UP AFTER RIOTING.

Two Men Caught After Attack on a Butcher.

Harry Kuperstein of 208 East Eighteenth Street and Arthur Jones of Second Street and the Bowery, who were among the rioters at Cooper Union last night, were arrested for attempted robbery a few minutes after that disturbance.

They followed Berthold Litchwick, a butcher, into the hallway of his residence at 64 East Fourth Street and attacked him. The cries of Litchwick and the screams of a young woman who saw the attempted hold-up caused the two men to run away.

After a chase of several blocks they were arrested by Jaques Goldstein of 304 Ellery Street, Brooklyn, a Special Deputy Sheriff of Kings County, and Policeman Wittenberg of the Fifth Street Station.

Inspector O'Brien, Capt. Sweeney, and Detectives Kilday and Gegan, who were returning from Cooper Union when the arrest was made, identified the prisoners as two of the Cooper Union rioters.

SUFFRAGE LOSES IN SENATE VOTE

Amendment Resolution Gets One Majority, but Fails of the Necessary Two-Thirds Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The joint resolution providing for submitting to the States a constitutional amendment for woman suffrage was put on its final passage in the Senate this afternoon, and received a majority of one, the vote being 35 to 34. As a two-thirds vote was necessary, the resolution was killed. If all Senators absent or paired had voted for it, the resolution would still have lacked the requisite support.

The final vote was preceded by two efforts from Democratic sources to inject the negro question into the discussion. Mr. Vardaman of Mississippi, who fought his campaign for election to the Senate largely on a platform advocating repeal of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments, proposed a modification of the woman suffrage resolution tantamount to a repeal of the Fifteenth Amendment. It was rejected by a vote of 19 to 48. Mr. Vardaman's colleague, Mr. Williams, then tried to limit compulsory woman suffrage to white women, but his amendment was defeated by a vote of 21 to 44. Neither Mr. Williams nor Mr. Vardaman voted for the resolution itself.

Fourteen Democrats and twenty-one Republicans voted for the resolution, while twenty-two Democrats and twelve Republicans voted against it. The growth of the suffrage idea in the South was indicated by the favoring votes of Mr. Lea of Tennessee, Mr. Owen of Oklahoma, Mr. Sheppard of Texas, and Mr. Ransdell of Louisiana. The vote in detail was:

FOR.

AGAINST.

The galleries were packed for the closing hours of the debate. More negroes than usual were present, perhaps in anticipation of the amendments offered by the Southern Senators, and some of them were observed to laugh heartily at one of Mr. Williams's remarks at their expense.

"I agree that whites and blacks are equal before the law," said Mr. Williams, "though nobody in his heart believes in racial equality. But as far as the law is concerned, I'd even give a little leeway to the negro. I would send a white man to the penitentiary in a minute for stealing chickens, but I wouldn't send a nigger to the penitentiary for stealing chickens. If I were on a Grand Jury I'd indict a white man for bigamy, but I wouldn't indict a nigger for bigamy."

"What did the Cleveland Democratic platform in 1884 mean," asked Mr. Gallinger of New Hampshire, "with its pledge of 'free ballot and fair count?'"

"Oh," laughed Mr. Williams, "I suppose some fellow came into the convention and told us that plank would catch some nigger vote, so we put it in."

"It was about as binding, then, as the Baltimore plank for free tolls?" asked Mr. Gallinger with a grin.

"Just about as binding," said Mr. Williams, while the galleries shouted with laughter. "And I guess it was put in just about the same way."

As soon as the final vote on the amending resolution was taken, Mr. Shafroth of Colorado introduced a substitute amendment requiring any State to submit the woman suffrage question to its voters if a fifth of the voters at the last election requested it.

No acion was taken on the new proposal, but Mrs. Antoinette Funk, lawyer for the Congressional Committee of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, announced that the association would support it.

VOTE FOR WOMEN WATCHERS

Only Three Senators Against Special Safeguards at Suffrage Election.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 19.—By a vote of 38 to 3, the Senate to-day passed Senator Foley's bill for the appointment of women watchers at the polls when the proposed constitutional amendment providing for woman suffrage is submitted to the voters. The bill provides that there shall be one woman watcher for the suffragists and one for the anti-suffragists in each polling place.

"The conduct of the suffragettes in England, their vulgarity, the commission of crime, and their lack of womanliness have changed my mind in relation to further concessions to women," said Senator Griffin of the Bronx. "We have had Mrs. Pankhurst here and she has advocated the adoption of the militants' tactics. My objection to this bill is the implication that there is antagonism between the sexes. We have men watchers who are trusted. This is special legislation of a vicious character. I believe the women will get a fair count on Election Day."

Senator Brown defended the bill. Senators Griffin, Frawley, and Coates voted in opposition to the measure, which now goes to the Assembly.

FILM FACTORY BURNS WITH $300,000 LOSS

Many Valuable Reels Destroyed in Eclair Company's Fort Lee Plant.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., March 19.—Fire swept through the plant of the Eclair Moving Picture Company at Fort Lee this afternoon, causing damage of $300,000. The negative department and the storage vaults were destroyed. The damage to machinery alone will be more than $100,000. One lathe valued at $1,500 was the only piece of machinery which was saved.

Completed film productions valued at more than $200,000 were in the vaults, and in trying to save these Francis Doubler was overcome by smoke and carried out unconscious. Among the productions destroyed was "The Caballiro's Way," just completed in three reels, valued at $20,000 and one recently received from Paris entitled "Protea," in six reels, which cost $60,000 to produce. Mr. Doubler saved several reels before he was overcome.

Much of the damage is attributed to insufficient water supply. Arthur Edeson, one of the photographers employed by the concern, said this afternoon:

"The stream of water from the nozzle would not carry six feet above us. If we had had a half decent pressure we could have put the fire out in a few minutes. We even climbed to the roof of the scenery storage building and tried to throw water across the open space of ten feet to where the flames were, but even this could not be done. Before the firemen came the whole factory was doomed."

The heroine of the day was Irene Whipple, a young woman employe of the company, who hurried through the halls to the different departments and warned a hundred employes to run for safety.

The studio, when the fire started, was filled with actors who were rehearsing "The Gentleman from Mississippi," in which Thomas Wise appears. All the actors hurried from the studio, and did what they could to aid in saving property. One person was injured—Robert Klein, a boy, whose hand was crushed by falling timber.

Henry Maire, the factory manager, was disconsolate as he watched the ineffectual efforts to fight the fire. Mayor White of Fort Lee, who arrived while the fire was at its height, criticised the water service bitterly.

"For months," he said, "the people in the eastern part of Bergen County have been complaining of the lack of pressure in the pipes of the Hackensack Water Company, but it has resulted in nothing. The Eastern Bergen County Improvement Association has joined hands with Senator Hennessy and will take the matter before the Public Utilities Commission at Trenton. I think the moving pictures taken by the Eclair Company this afternoon of a real fire, showing the ludicrous water service, ought to convince the commission that something is wrong."

The Fort Lee Council adopted resolutions last night attacking the rates of the Hackensack Water Company and the low pressure.

Manager Maire said to-night that the company at once would begin the reconstruction of its factory. The plant of the company covers two blocks of ground and is one of the most extensive moving-picture factories in the country.

SAVES CHILDREN FROM FIRE.

Rubinstein Rescues His Daughter and Playmates from Burning Flat.

Looking from her windows at 495 East 174th Street early yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Louis Sherick saw a little boy and two little girls at play in a second-story apartment across the street. A moment later she saw the room fill with smoke which hid the children. Her cries attracted the attention of Max Rubinstein, in 496 East 174th Street, as smoke broke from the windows of the apartment at 494 East 174th Street. Rubinstein looked out of his window and saw the smoke was coming from the apartment of Mrs. Louis Frankel. He knew his 4-year-old daughter, Dorothy, was in the burning apartment with her little playmates, Max Frankel, 4 years old, and his sister, Annie, 6 years old.

Rubinstein climbed out on the coping just below his window and groped his way to the coping beneath Mrs. Frankel's window. He called to his little girl and she tottered toward the window. He picked her up in his arms and backed cautiously to his own window where he handed her to her mother. Mrs. Rubinstein wanted to go back with him to assist in rescuing the two Frankel children, but he refused to let her. The smoke had overcome these children in the meantime, and after climbing into the room Rubinstein brought them back to his flat unconscious. Patrolman Greenbaum of the Tremont Station had summoned the fire apparatus and an ambulance from Fordham Hospital. Dr. Siskind revived the two Frankel children and the firemen put out the flames with trifling damage. The origin of the fire was not ascertained.

CUTS HIS SALARY $6,000.

Maryland Casualty Co. President's Act Against Wishes of Directors.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 19.—Business and personal friends of John T. Stone, President of the Maryland Casualty Company, were much interested to-day in the report that he had relinquished voluntarily $6,000 of his annual salary. Both Mr. Stone and his brother, James Stone, were out of the city to-day, but business associates of the former confirmed the report.

An annual salary of $36,000 for Mr. Stone was voted by the Directors of the company about a year ago. His action in reducing this amount by $6,000 was against the protest of the Directors.

It was recalled to-day that the late Gen. John Gill, President of the Mercantile Trust and Deposit Company, reduced his own salary $10,000 because his concern, in common with other financial institutions at the time, experienced a period of monetary depression.

LIND MEETS ROJAS, HUERTA'S EMISSARY

Has Two Hours' Secret Conference with Foreign Minister in Vera Cruz.

PRESIDENT PRAISES ROJAS

But Only Unofficial Advices of the Conference Have Yet Reached Washington.

VERA CRUZ, March 19.—The Mexican Foreign Minister José Portillo y Rojas, who arrived here from Mexico City to-day, did not call on John Lind, President Wilson's special representative, but the two met to-night at the residence of a mutual friend.

Their conference lasted two hours. Both declined to discuss the subjects of their conversation; but Mr. Lind intimated that the conference was of no great importance.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—While all Administration sources of news are silent on the subject, there is good reason to believe that Washington has been completely advised as to the purpose of the visit to Vera Cruz of José Portillo y Rojas, Foreign Minister in the Huerta Government.

It was admitted here to-day that unofficial information had come that the Mexican Foreign Minister had gone to Vera Cruz for the purpose, as he said, of having an interview with Gov. Lind, the President's personal representative.

President Wilson to-day, in conversation with some of his callers, however, dropped one sentence that was at once conceived to have more than ordinary significance. This was a remark that he considered Señor Portillo y Rojas a man of high character. This was taken to mean in some quarters that the President hoped for reasonable overtures from the Foreign Minister.

There is little doubt that Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American Chargé in the City of Mexico, has acquainted the State Department with the intended visit to Gov. Lind and has furnished some details as to its real object.

All information received here supports the published accounts of President Huerta's intention to take the field to resist the advance of Villa, and it is expected that he will do so in time to assume command of the defense of Torreon. The report of the movement of Federal troops in the vicinity of Torreon reaching the War Department indicate that there has been a strong concentration of Government troops there in preparation for the threatened attack by the Constitutionalists, and it is now regarded by American military experts as becoming more likely that the Federals will not only outnumber the rebels but outmatch them. It is known that Huerta has been massing artillery at Torreon and has strong cavalry support there, while the supply of ammunition and machine guns is greater than has been provided in any previous campaign since the revolution began.

O'SHAUGHNESSY IS ILL.

American Chargé in Mexico Confined to Bed by Nervous Attack.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, March 19.—Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American Chargé d'Affaires, is confined to his bed on account of the severe nervous strain to which he has been subjected. Dr. Edward P. Ryan of the American Red Cross, who is attending him, says he believes it is advisable for Mr. O'Shaughnessy to go to a lower altitude for a few days, possibly to Vera Cruz, should the situation permit him to do so.

His condition is not considered serious, but merely as the result of his long stay here and the continued strain induced by the international complications. He needs several weeks' rest, although it is believed that such a vacation is impossible for him at present. At any rate, Mr. O'Shaughnessy is unwilling to leave the city for any length of time or to go anywhere whence he cannot return quickly.

Worry over the fatal illness of his father, during which he was unable to visit him, being forced to handle a large amount of business through the embassy, is believed to have been the direct cause of his illness. It is probable that Mr. O'Shaughnessy will arrange for a series of week-ends at some point near the capital until conditions will permit a longer vacation and a definite rest from his responsibilities.

The proposals made by President Huerta to wealthy Mexicans yesterday have not been enthusiastically received, although they will doubtless be acceded to; for the men involved are unwilling to abandon their old policy of remaining aloof from participation in public affairs and refusnig to take side except secretly, partly through fear of endangering their properties and partly through indolence.

President Huerta, however, since the beginning of his Administration, has been determined to force the wealthier classes to take an interest in public affairs and do something for the country besides pay taxes. He made this determination more clear than a year ago in a speech at the Jockey Club, before many aristocratic Mexicans, when he said that they would have to help him voluntarily or be forced to do so.

Men close to Huerta say that he is a believer in uplifting the lower classes, but does not believe it right that they should be forced to do all the uplifting without the assistance of men having greater opportunities. He also believes that the upper and lower classes should be brought into more intimate touch through a com-

MRS. WILSON RECOVERING.

Underwent Slight Operation as Result of Tripping on Rug.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, — March 19.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is improving rapidly from the results of her recent accident. It was said at the White House to-day that there was no ground for reports that she was seriously ill.

Mrs. Wilson tripped over a rug on the White House floor and fell. Officials at the Executive offices said her injury was an external one of no seriousness, and that she would be out again attending to social engagements in a day or two. These officials said that Mrs. Wilson had undergone a slight operation to correct the effects of the bruise, which resulted from her fall, but they said it was entirely a local one. They denied that social engagements canceled by members of the family yesterday were on that account.

MAN BEST AT 60, SAYS TAFT.

Knows So Much Then He Wants to Guide the Young Aright.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 19.—The only aid needed to interpret the Sherman anti-trust law and the Supreme Court decisions thereon is a man's own conscience, according to William Howard Taft, who addressed the Law School of the University of Minnesota to-day.

In an address to a mass meeting of students Mr. Taft declared that a man at 60 was at the very zenith of his ability.

"When a man is 60," he said, "he is able to recognize the defects which have come to him through lack of self-restraint and self-sacrifice. We know so much at 60 we think we ought to rush in and aid the young men and women to avoid the same pitfalls."

OIL BURNER TAKES RECORD.

From New York to San Francisco in 47 Days 4 Hours.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19.—The freighter Santa Cruz steamed into port to-day from New York with what Capt. A. Watson said was a new record for the passage via the Straits of Magellan. From the time the vessel left Sandy Hook until she slowed down off Los Angeles harbor, the engines were run full speed without a stop. The distance is approximately 13,000 miles and the time consumed was 47 days and 4 hours.

The Santa Cruz is an oil burner and did not need to put in at any port for fuel.

EXCHANGE SEATS AT $50,000

Two Change Owners at a Price $5,000 Under Last Previous Sale.

The market for Stock Exchange memberships, after a period of strength, is off again. This developed with the announcement yesterday of the sale of two seats at $50,000, a drop of $5,000 from the previous price.

The seat of the late William J. Alpers of T. L. Watson & Co. has been posted for transfer to George A. Nelson, and that of Herbert P. Brown of Brown & Coombe to Charles A. Morgan of the Morgan steamship lines.

Henry B. Day of Boston has been elected a member of the Exchange.

FIND STOLEN $10,000 BILL.

Havana Police Recover One of 20 Missing in Convict's Shoe.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, March 19.—The police have recovered another $10,000 bill of the twenty stolen from a registered letter which the National Bank of Cuba sent to the National Bank of New York in February of last year.

The bill was found in the shoe of Antony Ayala, a bank messenger, sent to prison for a long term of years for theft. Ayala says the bill was brought into the jail recently and was given to another accomplice, who concealed it in the padding of his coat, from which he extracted it.

The police now believe they will be able to trace the remaining bills missing, amounting to $140,000. The bill found is Series D 309.

HARRISON'S RECORD WALK.

Mayor of Chicago Does 4¼ Miles in 61 Minutes.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 19.—Mayor Carter H. Harrison had cause to be "chesty" to-day when he announced, on arriving at his office in the City Hall, that he had hung up a new walking record. He said that it signalized his complete recovery from the recent attack of bronchitis which laid him up for five weeks, and that, so far as pedestrianism was concerned, he had not only "come back," but was better than ever.

The Mayor covered the stretch from his home at 3,150 Sheridan Road to the La Salle Street entrance to the City Hall in one hour and one minute. His best previous time was one hour and two minutes. The distance is between four and four and a quarter miles.

CHASE NATIONAL TO MOVE.

Bank Takes a 20-Year Lease of Part of the New Adams Building.

The Chase National Bank, which for nearly twenty years has had its home in Cedar Street, is preparing to move into new offices on the ground floor of the Adams building, lately completed, at 61 Broadway. The building is thirty-two stories high, and occupies the entire block front on the west side of Broadway between Trinity Place and Exchange Alley.

President Albert H. Wiggin said last night the lease of the new quarters had been taken for twenty years, but that it would be impossible to move into them before next August or September, as it would require some time to install the banking safes and safe deposit vaults.

The new offices will afford the bank nearly double the space it now has on the ground floor of the New York Clearing House building. The Chase National has been a tenant of the Clearing House building ever since it was erected nineteen years ago.

CRISIS IN ULSTER; FIGHTING FEARED

Carson Starts for Belfast After Debate Ending in Defeat of Censure Vote.

BOTH SIDES PREPARING

VOLUNTEERS CALLED OUT

Home Rule Bill, It Is Now Believed, Will Be Passed by the Commons in Its Original Form.

LONDON, Friday, March 20.—Grave events are impending in Ulster, according to the Unionist newspapers, and a rumor is current that the Government is preparing for the military occupation of the Province.

There are various indications that a crisis has been reached.

A vote of censure on the Government which was moved in the House of Commons yesterday by Andrew Bonar Law, the leader of the opposition, was rejected by 345 votes to 252. The Right Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, summoned by Mr. Bonar Law, made a hurried return from the Riviera and arrived in London in time to take part in the division.

There were reports yesterday of the threatened arrest of Sir Edward Carson and other leaders of the Ulster Unionists, but it was officially declared that there was no truth in the statement that warrants had been signed for such arrests.

Sir Edward Carson, however, made a dramatic exit from the House of Commons before the debate was concluded, in order to catch a train for Belfast. The Right Hon. J. Austen Chamberlain declared last night that Sir Edward had been called away in response to sudden developments in Ireland. Other Unionists asserted that the Ulstermen could not longer be restrained from an outbreak and that Sir Edward's mission was to endeavor to hold them in check.

The Daily Telegraph's lobby correspondent says:

"Unless all omens are false, blood will be spilt in Ulster before the House of Commons sees Sir Edward Carson again."

The Marquis of Londonderry and other prominent Ulsterites are now on their way to Belfast, and their action is regarded as a challenge to the Government, if, as is asserted, any intention exists to issue warrants for their arrest.

Animated scenes and the exchange of strong epithets marked the debate on the vote of censure on the Government introduced in the House of Commons yesterday by Mr. Bonar Law. The word "liar" was hurled at the head of Joseph Devlin, Nationalist Member for Belfast, when he declared that Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, had at one time been a Home Ruler.

Mr. Bonar Law's proposition that a referendum of the country should be taken on the Home Rule bill and the local option proposal for Ulster was rejected by Premier Asquith, who said he believed that the Government's proposals offered the only hope of a lasting settlement.

The vote of censure was based on Mr. Asquith's refusal on Monday to give details of the scheme of local option by which the nine counties of Ulster would be permitted to vote separately on the question whether they should be left out of the control of the new Irish Government.

The Leader of the Opposition offered to give a guarantee that if the Government would take a referendum of the United Kingdom on the Home Rule bill and the local option proposal the Unionists, both in the House of Lords and in the House of Commons, would place no impediment in the way of carrying out the will of the people.

Sir Edward Carson backed up Mr. Law's offer by saying that if the Premier was prepared to give him a definite offer of a referendum he would accept its decision.

In the course of his speech Mr. Bonar Law contended that the Government could avail itself of a referendum without any sacrifice of its principles or dignity. He said he did not desire to stand on technicalities. He declared that if Premier Asquith's proposal that the counties of Ulster should vote on the question of inclusion in the Irish Government meant that Ulster was not to be driven from the United Kingdom against her will it would be accepted as a basis of discussion. If, however, it meant that at the end of a certain time the people of Ulster were to be brought automatically under the power of the Dublin Parliament against their will, the Unionists absolutely rejected it.

Mr. Bonar Law's Offer.

The Opposition leader then made his offer of a guarantee that the Unionists would place no impediment in the way of carrying out the will of the people if the Government would take a referendum vote of the United Kingdom on the Home Rule bill and the local option proposal for Ulster. He promised that if the result of the referendum was in favor of the bill, as amended by Premier Asquith's local option proposal, nothing would be done by the Unionists against the putting into operation of the will of the people completely and without delay.

If Mr. Asquith refused the course suggested, said Mr. Bonar Law, it could only be "because the Government thought, in the words of Mr. Churchill, that the question should be settled by bullets rather than by votes."

The peroration of Mr. Bonar Law's speech concluded with the following words:

"What about the army? If it is only a question of disorder, the army will and ought to obey, but if it is a question of civil war, the soldiers are citizens, like the rest of the people. The Army will be divided, and that force be destroyed on which we depend for our national safety."

Premier Asquith, however, looked coldly upon the proposition for a referendum. He said he would not go further than to say that the Government took note of it.

The Premier, who spoke only for a few minutes, said the Government did not recede from its proposals, under which there would be no coercion of Ulster. The scheme, he said, gave a six years' trial of Home Rule before there would be any attempt to bring Ulster under its provisions. He concluded with an expression of his belief that in the Government's proposals lay the only hope of a lasting settlement.

When Sir Edward Carson and Joseph Devlin entered the House the atmosphere became heated. The Ulster leader called Mr. Devlin a liar when the Nationalist member for Belfast declared that Sir Edward at one time had been a Home Ruler.

"It is an infamous lie!" roared Sir Edward, and when the Speaker suggested a modification of his language Sir Edward substituted for it: "The statement is a wilful falsehood."

Shouts of protest and cheers in support of both members filled the chamber, and it was some minutes before the Speaker was able to make himself heard in an appeal for the avoidance of personalities.

Report of Warrant for Carson.

The Globe yesterday afternoon said that warrants had been signed for the arrest of Sir Edward Carson and other leaders of the Ulster Unionists. It was later officially declared that there was "absolutely no truth in the statement."

The view of both the Liberal and the Unionist morning papers is that after yesterday's debate all chances of settlement by consent are ended and that the Home Rule bill will be passed in its original form.

It is said that the Government has assured the Nationalist leaders that Mr. Bonar Law's referendum offer will not be accepted.

Volunteers Summoned in Belfast.

BELFAST, March 19.—An emergency force of picked men from the Ulster Volunteers was hastily summoned to headquarters to-night.

The motive for the sudden call has been kept secret, but rumors persist of military action on the part of the Government and projected arrests.

WANTED TO FIGHT A DUEL.

Archer-Shee Challenged Nationalist —Strain Makes Leaders Ill.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, March 20.—The political tension has been increased by yesterday's bitter debate on the Ulster question in the House of Commons, and in many quarters predictions are being made of some serious incident in Ulster. A spark, it is said, may kindle a conflagration. The Liberals deprecate these alarmist prognostications, which, they, say, simply indicate that the Unionists recognize that the parliamentary battle is lost and base their hopes of further assistance against the Home Rule bill on the Ulster die-hards. The possibility of an untoward incident setting Ulster aflame is admitted, however, by many Liberals, who hope that the precautions taken by the Government will be adequate.

The Liberals' leaders are described as growing ill under the strain. Premier Asquith is in very poor health.

As for Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster leader, he left his bed only an hour before going to the House of Commons yesterday. His suffering is said by his friends to account for the extreme bitterness of his words. A near observer on the Liberal benches declares that First Lord of the Admiralty Churchill "grew haggard with passion" at Sir Edward's words.

While John Dillon was speaking and subsequently there arose a very extraordinary incident. Mr. Dillon had said that England must conciliate the Irish in America. Major Archer-Shee (Unionist) shouted an interruption which the Nationalists understood to be, "They are foreigners and cowards!"

Michael J. Flavin, (Nationalist,) who is over 6 feet of Irish muscle, shouted back: "You are a coward to call them so!"

Major Archer-Shee left the Chamber, and, going to the writing room, wrote a challenge to Mr. Flavin, asking the latter to meet him at his chambers with two friends to settle the dispute.

The letter was handed to Mr. Flavin in the House. He went out and in the lobby met Major Archer-Shee, who asked him why he called him a coward. "Because you called the Irish in America cowards and foreigners," excitedly declared Mr. Flavin. Major Archer-Shee said he had not called them cowards, but only foreigners.

Mr. Flavin offered the Major satisfaction in any form of combat he desired, and there was a scene of intense excitement.

A group of members surrounded the two angry men. Joseph Devlin (Nationalist) played the rôle of peacemaker, and brought them to moderation, but only with great difficulty.

150,000 MEN DRILLED.

Government Did Not at First Take Ulster Movement Seriously.

Sir Edward Carson, who, with the Marquis of Londonderry, is regarded as the leader of the Ulster movement, has been a law officer of the Crown and is one of the most successful members of the British bar. An Ulsterman by birth, he was a graduate of Trinity College, Dublin, and now represents it in Parliament. He is 60 years old, and twenty years ago was sufficiently successful in his profession to "take silk."

His first preferment under the Government came in 1892, when he was made Solicitor General for Ireland, and in the last Unionist Ministry he served as Solicitor General of England from 1900 to 1906. This meant that in the normal course of events he might look for still higher office, and he was in the direct line for appointment as Lord Chancellor of England.

Lord Londonderry is one of the great noblemen of the United Kingdom. He owns over 50,000 acres and is a Knight of the Garter and an aide-de-camp to the King. Tracing his descent from Sir Piers Tempest, who fought at Agincourt, through a family distinguished in English history, he has himself had an active official life. Outside the political career open almost as a matter of course to a man of his rank he served for two years, from 1895 to 1897, as Chairman of the School Board of London.

Before that he had been a Member of Parliament, for County Down, from 1878 to 1884, and Viceroy of Ireland from 1886 to 1889. Then, in the Balfour Ministry, he held several offices, as Postmaster General, President of the Board of Education, and Lord President of the Council.

Another of the men active in the Ulster cause is Lord Willoughby de Broke, who has large estates in Warwickshire. A man of forty-five, he sat in Parliament for Rugby from 1895 to 1900, and is now an officer in the Yeomanry of Warwickshire.

Another man who has been active in stirring up the Ulster movement is Frederick E. Smith, K. C., a member of the Privy Council and Member of Parliament for the Walton Division of Liverpool since 1906. He has by his caustic speeches and determined utterances done much to stiffen the opposition of Ulstermen to home rule. He had a career of unusual distinction at Oxford, and in the last few years has made a name for himself as a leader of the bar.

According to what the Ulstermen have allowed to become known, Sir Edward Carson will find awaiting him in Ulster the framework of a complete uprising. On Sept. 27, 1912, the famous Covenant was signed at Belfast, such men as the Moderator of the Presbyterian Church, the Church of Ireland Bishops, the leading landowners, and business men being the first to take the oath.

From that time on there has been steady recruiting and drilling of the Ulster forces, until to-day they are believed to number about 150,000 men. Their organization has been carried on with little attempt at concealment and last September Sir Edward Carson announced publicly that Sir George Richardson had been selected as their commander-in-chief.

It was not until last December, however, that the British Government took any active steps against this movement, but on Dec. 4 it issued a proclamation against the importation of arms into Ireland, and the first seizure of such contraband was made three days later.

Meanwhile, at the end of September a meeting of the Ulster Unionist Council was held in Belfast to formulate plans for a provisional Government. It was discussed publicly in the press, and was taken sufficiently seriously by the British Government for the Postmaster General to explain in a speech how simple it would be for the Post Office to check the movement by a mere refusal of its privileges.

On Nov. 4 however, there was a remarkable demonstration in Belfast, at which bus'ness men, estimated as representing $725,000,000 of capital, pledged themselves not to pay taxes to a Home Rule Government and to support the appeal to arms.

ARM BROKEN, BUT IN COURT.

Sedgwick Testifies in His Bankruptcy Case at Pittsfield, Mass.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., March 19.—An effort to prove that Robert Sedgwick, a voluntary petitioner in bankruptcy, had no legal residence in Lenox and that, therefore, his petition should be dismissed was made by attorneys for creditors before Referee Edwin K. McPeck in the Bankruptcy Court here today. Mr. Sedgwick, who appeared with a broken left arm in a sling, the result of a fall on an icy sidewalk here last night, said Lenox had been the legal residence of himself and his ancestors for 200 years

A package of Government garden seeds addressed to him in Lenox from "My Congressman, Hon. Allen T. Treadway," was admitted as an exhibit. On all hotel registers Mr. Sedgwick said he registered as from Lenox.

Explaining a loan from H. Casimir De Rham of New York, Mr. Sedgwick said that when Mr. De Rham's father died, leaving him an income of $50,000, "he loaned me $1,200, but that has been settled."

Miller D. Steever, Trustee, said he has cash assets of $75 to meet scheduled liabilities of $165,919. Otto Schmidt, attorney for a New York creditor, has filed objections to Mrs. Sedgwick's claim of $98,244 against the estate. The hearing was adjourned to April 2.

Mr. Sedgwick returned to this city yesterday and went to his apartments in The Clarendon, at Fifty-eighth Street and Park Avenue, where it is said he would be confined to bed for several days on account of his broken arm. He declined to discuss the bankruptcy case.

FEWER GOING TO CANADA.

Marked Decrease in American Immigration, but a British Increase.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ontario, March 19.—There is a heavy decrease in United States immigration to Canada. During the first eleven months of the present fiscal year, that is, to the end of February last, the American immigration was 97,406. During the same period last year it was 124,398, a decrease of 26,992.

The immigration from Great Britain to Canada is increasing. During the last eleven months it amounted to 136,690. In the same period last year it was 133,711.

LIND MEETS ROJAS, HUERTA'S EMISSARY

mon interest in the welfare of the country and the administration of public business.

Several of the younger landowners, among them Eduardo Iturbe, Gen. Carlos Rincon Gallardo, the former a member of the lower House, and the latter commanding the Army scouts, both wealthy, are expected to have an important part in the new activities. A prominent politician said to-day:

The wealthy men of Mexico have everything staked on conditions here and on future developments of them; and if they are unwilling to take a definite stand on one side or the other, it is only right that President Huerta should break the ice and get their feet wet for them. As the late Senator Bacon said, the upper classes in Mexico City can put an end to the revolution. Practically every Mexican at the meeting yesterday owns several ranches and personally could organize and lead a force of several hundred men if he wanted to; and Huerta is going to make them want to."

The work of organizing military societies is said to be already under way. It will be carried out with full publicity, since Huerta's purpose is to let the rebels know what men are supporting the Government.

It was reported to-day that rebel agents had been instructed by Carranza and Villa to ascertain the names of all Mexicans assisting Huerta, the intention being to confiscate their property and execute them should the revolution triumph. An official of the Government, when he was told of this, said:

"I hope that it is true. It will help us more than it will injure us. We want the better classes on our side, so that they will stay there."

Diplomats generally regard Huerta's latest move as adding great strength to his Government and showing that he is preparing for larger operations than hitherto.

MEXICO CITY, March 19.—Chilpancingo, capital of the State of Guerrero, is reported to be in the hands of the rebels. Officially this report is denied, but it is admitted that the capital has been changed to Iguala, the military headquarters of Gen. Olea.

The War Department announced today that no important developments have occurred in the Torreon district.

"BET ON ME," SAYS VILLA.

Urges Friends to Wager on His Taking Torreon by March 31.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, March 19.—"Play all of your money on me to win at Torreon, and that by March 31.

"P. VILLA."

This message was received by a number of Villa's friends at the Juarez race track to-day. It was sent from Yermo Station, near Escalon. The Rebel leader used the railroad telegraph, and his message was the first that had been received in three days, which gave any real information about his plans or his movements south of Chihuahua. One of the recipients found a taker for $1,000.

All day unconfirmed reports have come leaking through the rigid Rebel censorship which has been established to prevent the Federals from obtaining information about Villa's movements through the secret service which Huerta has maintained here since he came into power.

Reports were received late this evening that the fighting was general around Escalon. The Federals, to prevent Villa's cutting their communications, flooded all the irrigated fields in the Laguna district, have converted the irrigation ditches into rivers to prevent their being used as breastworks, and have cut the railroad in front of Escalon. No details of the number killed and wounded have been received here, although it is believed to have been small, owing to the open order of the fighting.

Gen. Aguirre Benavides telegraphed to-day that his command, the Zaragoza Brigade, had joined forces with those of Gens. Rosalio Hernandez, Manuel Chao, and Maximilian Garcia, and that the entire army was slowly approaching Torreon. The telegram was filed at Yermo, south of Escalon, and seventy miles north of Torreon. A desert waste separates the two cities. Benavides added that he had been unable to communicate by wire with Gen. Urbina, operating to the west of the main column, and had sent couriers to him.

It is doubtful if the monoplane which was wrecked in trial flights at Juarez can be repaired in time for use at Torreon, unless Villa's attack is long delayed.

Miguel Diebold, the Mexican Consul General here, was held for the United States Grand Jury to-day on the charge of recruiting men to join Huerta's army at Torreon. Consul E. de la Sierra was also held.

JUAREZ, March 19.—A simultaneous attack upon Torreon and Mazatlan was predicted in advices received to-day. It was said that while Gen. Villa's rebel army was moving against Torreon forces under Gen. Alvaro Obregon would assault Mazatlan. Obregon was reported to be moving 12,000 troops against the Pacific coast port.

This was said to be part of a general plan for an aggressive movement against all Federal forces in northern Mexico.

According to the plan, Guaymas is to be ignored in the hope that it may fall with the capture of Mazatlan.

PERRIN H. SUMNER DIES IN SUBWAY

TAKEN ILL ON A TRAIN

Carried to Platform of Grand Central Station, He Expires Before Doctor Reaches Him.

An elderly man, believed to be Perrin H. Sumner, who was once well known to the police as "the great American identifier," died of heart disease at the Grand Central station of the Subway late last night after he had been removed from a Brooklyn express train, in which he was taken suddenly ill. An ambulance had been summoned from Flower Hospital, but before Dr. Wright arrived the man was dead.

When the police searched the body they found an identification card in a coat pocket on which was Mr. Sumner's name and an address at 203 Broadway, where of recent years he had been engaged in the real estate business. It was also written on the card that he had a daughter, Mrs. Fanny E. Crass, at 109 Fifteenth Street Southeast, Washington, D. C., and there was the name of a friend, Joseph McWilliams, a lawyer, with offices at 203 Braodway.

The body was removed to the West Thirtieth Street Police Station. Several deeds to property and some checks for large sums were found in another pocket. Mr. Sumner's address, according to the City Directory, was at 460 East 184th Street. It was said there last night that he had moved away several months ago.

"The Identifier's" Record.

Mr. Sumner had been the defendant in many court actions of one kind or another since he made himself well known as "the identifier" back in 1866. Sumner won the title by identifying unclaimed bodies of suicides as a mythical Englishman named Edgar. The identifications always proved false, and what he wanted of a dead Englishman named Edgar always remained a mystery.

Many of the complaints made against Sumner were by women, some of whom alleged that he had tried to make love to them while carrying out his business schemes. He was prosecuted in Rochester in 1866 for an assault upon Anna Costello, a servant, and though acquitted, was induced to resign from his church.

Four years later he turned up in San Francisco, where he became senior deacon in a Baptist Church. The Rev. Dr. Parshall, pastor of the church, was accused of immoral conduct, and Sumner played a prominent part in the prosecution. He was found groaning in a vacant lot one night, and asserted that he had been assaulted by friends of the minister. One witness who had sworn that he had sandbagged Sumner afterward broke down and confessed that the charge against the clergyman and the alleged attempt to assassinate Sumner were part of a plot to ruin the minister.

Soon after that Sumner left California and went to Jersey City, N. J., where he met a newly married couple who owned the $14,000 house they lived in. He gave them stock for the house, which they afterward said was practically worthless. In January, 1882, Sumner was indicted in Queens County, but never tried, for obtaining by alleged fraud a deed to the property of Mary E. and Charles O. Crogie of Hempstead, valued at $28,000.

Beaten in Two Property Suits.

In May, 1883, he was arrested in a suit brought by D. M. Davidson to recover $15,000 which Davidson had paid to him for mining stock. In 1884 Mrs. Amanda G. Pugsley of South America, N. Y., accused Sumner of fraud in obtaining possession of deeds to property in Eighty-fifth Street. The case was tried before Judge Charles P. Daly and Mrs. Pugsley won.

Again in May, 1890, Charles Willis and his wife, of Rocky Point, Suffolk County, charged Sumner with fraudulently obtaining title to property near Runhead, known as the Horn Tavern farm. The courts turned over the property to the Willises.

It was just after this that Sumner came before the public as an identifier, and in December, 1890, he was locked up in the Tombs charged with forging the name of James H. Edgar to an affidavit. He was later indicted for subornation of perjury in the same connection, but escaped punishment on both charges.

Two actions were brought against him in 1894 for fraud in connection with real estate transactions, and in 1895 he and his son, Arthur, were arrested in Linden, N. J., charged with forging the name of a dead man to a tax receipt.

The offense which finally landed him in State's prison in 1897 was a real estate swindle. The victim was a Bostonian, who bought for $1,200 land in New Jersey which was not what it was represented to be. Sumner's picture was in the Rogue's Gallery, and several men with whom he had been associated in business were sent to Sing Sing.

Sumner was in State's prison for six years. After his release he dropped his Christian name of Perrin and for a time was known as Horton Sumner. On June 14, 1907, he married while she was on her death bed aged Auguste Sommerkorn, his landlady, a well-to-do widow, who had by years of thrift accumulated in this city and Florida real estate said to be worth $30,000.

The old lady died ten days after the marriage, and twenty-four hours later Sumner filed a petition to be appointed administrator of her estate. Relatives brought suit against him, and Justice David in the Supreme Court decided in their favor. Deeds by which the aged woman had turned over property to Sumner's son, the Justice held, represented gross fraud and should be canceled.

GOT $5 FOR A TIN WATCH

But Sailor Paid in Argentine Paper, and Seller Landed in Jail.

Max Ratner, who gave 241 South Fourth Street, Brooklyn, as his address, donned sailor clothes last night, and with six gilded tin watches that he had purchased for $5 in his pockets, went to the Seamen's Church Institute at 25 South Street to dispose of them. He offered one of the matches to Edward Fisher, a sailor lately returned from a South American cruise, who hesitated to pay $30 for it.

"I'm a sailor, too, and I'll let you have the watch as a favor for $25," said Ratner. Fisher finally bought the watch for $5 and handed over several pieces of paper money, but it was Argentine currency. Discovering this, Ratner insisted that he be given "regular money, like they use on South Street."

"The money's just as good as the watch," retorted Fisher, who had been examining his purchase.

Ratner and the sailor became involved in a loud dispute, whereupon the 300 sailors in the big reception room arose as one man to go to the aid of Fisher. They were advancing in a body on the seller of the watch when the doorman of the institute, John F. Bonser, entered and succeeded in protecting him. The sailors, however, called in a policeman and had Ratner taken to the Night Court.

Ratner told Magistrate Corrigan that he had just arrived in town and had bought the watches for his father out in Cleveland. The Magistrate said he did not believe the statement, and sent Ratner to the workhouse for six months for disorderly conduct for creating a disturbance in the institute.

SAYS THE NEW HAVEN HAD ROOSEVELT O. K.

Morse Asserts Mellen Told Him the Colonel Sanctioned Acts He Calls Illegal.

BUT MELLEN DENIES IT

Former President of the Road Says He Never Made the Statement Attributed to Him.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Morse returned yesterday on the Hamburg-American liner Imperator from a six weeks' trip to Germany. They brought with them a basket of red ants, which Mrs. Morse said she had obtained for her grandson. Mr. Morse, who had shaved his mustache, appeared to be in very good health.

When the reporters asked if he knew of the negotiations between the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad and the Interstate Commerce Commission, Mr. Morse said:

"I do not know the situation of the railroad company, as I have been in Germany for six weeks. The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company does not want to give up its steamboats and waterfront properties. The railroad has been permitted to act illegally for twenty years, and doesn't want to stop now. Is there anything strange in that?" he asked with a smile.

"Did you say illegally?" a reporter asked.

"Yes," Mr. Morse replied. "Mr. Mellen told me that he had permission from Mr. Roosevelt for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad to do illegal acts."

"May I use that language?" the reporter asked Mr. Morse.

"Yes, you can," he replied, "and that is all I can give you."

At his home in The Milano Apartments Mr. Morse said last night:

"The conversation with Mr. Mellen to which I referred took place some years ago. I won't say just when. Mr. Mellen told me that he had been told privately by Col. Roosevelt, while he was President, to go ahead with his plans for making combinations with steamboat lines which were competitors of his, although Col. Roosevelt was at the time making public declarations strongly opposing such policies.

"I don't like to mention a dead man in connection with the matter, but I will say that Mr. Mellen told me also that J. P. Morgan assured him that it would be safe for him to enter into illegal combinations with competing steamboat lines, and that Mr. Morgan had been assured by President Roosevelt that there would be no prosecution of such illegal acts. I am not ready to go any further into particulars. If detailed information is wanted, I am ready to give it when I am called upon to do so."

When Mr. Morse's statement was reported over the telephone to Charles S. Mellen, ex-President of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad last night, he said:

"Well, Mr. Morse has made his statement. I guess he has said enough."

When asked if he did not wish to make a reply, Mr. Mellen added:

"I have nothing to say beyond making a denial. I had many conversations with Col. Roosevelt while he was President, but he never at any time gave me permission to do anything, and I never asked his permission to do anything. I have had scores of conversations with Mr. Morse also, but I never made any statement resembling that which is credited to him."

CHOKES WOMAN ON 5TH AVE.

She Flees When Police Pursue and Capture Her Insane Assailant.

Patrolman Manley of the West Thirtieth Street Station was on duty at Twenty-ninth Street and Fifth Avenue at 10 o'clock last night when he heard the cries of a woman. Half way up the block he saw a man with his hands about a woman's throat. George Browning of 115 East Thirty-first Street, who was passing, ran with Manley toward the man, who released his hold on the woman and started up the avenue on a run. Screaming with terror, the woman ran west in Thirtieth Street.

Manley and Browning chased her assailant to Thirty-first Street, where he turned toward Lexington Avenue. At Lexington Avenue he stopped. As Manley reached him he sprang toward the officer. Manley swung with his night stick, but the man caught it and closed in on the policeman. Browning reached Manley's side at that moment, and the two succeded in bringing the man to the ground.

The prisoner fought until a patrol wagon arrived, and he was taken to the West Thirtieth Street station. He was quiet for a time in the station, but when an effort was made to search him he again started to fight, and it required six policemen to subdue him.

Dr. Stevens of New York Hospital responded to a call for an ambulance, and he directed that the man be sent to Bellevue for observation. An ambulance was called from Bellevue, and after another struggle the man was placed in a straitjacket and removed to that hospital.

The prisoner is about 28 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall, and weighs about 180 pounds. He wore a dark blue suit, a brown fedora hat, and tan shoes and stockings. He is supposed to be insane.

Efforts to find the woman who had been attacked proved futile.

CHICAGO REPORTER KILLED.

John L. Lawson Falls Down Elevator Shaft in Press Club Building.

CHICAGO, March 19.—John L. Lawson, a reporter for The Chicago Tribune, and one of the best-known newspapermen in the Middle West, met a tragic death this afternoon when he fell down an elevator shaft in the Chicago Press Club Building.

It is believed that he opened the door of the elevator shaft used for freight, mistaking it for the door of the lavatory adjoining, and stepped in before realizing his mistake.

Among editors and reporters Mr. Lawson generally was considered "the best reporter in Chicago."

Chicago University Gifts $1,307,929

CHICAGO, March 19.—Receipts of the University of Chicago in the course of last year amounted to $1,307,929, according to the annual report of President Harry Pratt Judson, which was made public to-day. The university's investments in real estate and equipment now amount to $31,055,420. The endowment of the university is $18,000,000, which is invested in stocks, bonds, and mortgages. Three new buildings will be erected on the campus within the next year.

DROWNS TWO GIRLS IN THE BATHTUB

Then Mrs. Anthony Takes Carbolic Acid, but May Recover—Husband Discovers Tragedy.

SHE HAD FEARED INSANITY

Was in Ill-Health and Said in Note She Would Wipe Out Family, but Spared Baby Boy.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., March 19.—When William Anthony, contractor and town official returned to his home in Brookridge Park at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, he noticed that his wife Helen, whom he married in Nova Scotia four years ago, did not come to the door to greet him as usual. Instead, he found on the hall table a note addressed to him and signed by his wife, in which she said that she realized that she was becoming a burden to him, that her health was poor, that her legs refused to carry her about to do her work and that she intended to end her life and take her children into eternity with her. She said she would make their going painless, as she would give them paregoric to put them to sleep.

Mr. Anthony did not finish reading the note, but rushed upstairs. The door to one of the bathrooms being open, he saw childrens' clothing lying on the floor by the bathtub and, looking into the tub, he saw the bodies of his two daughters—Margery, three years old, and Vivian, two, both drowned. He lifted the little ones from the water, only to realize that both were lifeless. In the tub they had lain on their sides face to face.

Going into his bedroom across the hall, Mr. Anthony found his wife in bed in a semi-conscious condition. An empty bottle which had contained a solution of carbolic acid was on the floor and the burned lips of his wife showed that she had swallowed the contents. A short distance away was an empty one-ounce bottle of paregoric.

Mr. Anthony rushed to a telephone and in a few minutes Dr. J. A. Clarke arrived. The doctor applied an antidote and later had Mrs. Anthony taken to the General Hospital. There she recovered her speech somewhat and asked why she had not been permitted to die with her children. Her condition is critical, but there is a possibility of her recovering.

Mrs. Anthony had been under Dr. Clarke's care for the last month. She imagined, according to the doctor, that she had tuberculosis and that she was going to die from it. According to her husband, two days ago she informed him that she was going crazy, but he laughed off her fears, and thought nothing more of the matter. When he left home this morning she seemed to be in good health and good spirits.

PARIS OPERA BALL GAY.

Mid-Lent Festivity Unusually Brilliant—Big Crowd Present.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Friday, March 20.—The Opéra ball, which took place early this morning, was more brilliant than any of its predecessors.

Long before the doors opened a large crowd of masked revelers gathered in the square in front of the Opéra. The building itself was brilliantly illuminated. The spectacle of the grand hall, with the loges packed with pretty women in all kinds of costumes, the greater number wearing disguises of rich texture, was dazzling. In the corridors there was general bustling and all the old-time intriguing.

A floor had been laid over the chairs of the orchestra stalls on a level with the stage. In the theatre boxes was the famous orchestra. For dancers outside in the foyer another played. The modern tango, furlano, one-step, and maxixe were well patronized.

At 12:30 o'clock this morning a grand gala dancing performance began with ballets and a procession of artists from the different theatres. extended to 5,000.

The festival continued until 6:30 o'clock, when it finished with a grand final defile, after which there was great fun, the revelers engaging in a battle with pasteballs and streamers.

The number of entries was at first limited to 3,000, but the demand for tickets was so great that these were

DIES OF AUTO INJURIES.

De Keyser's Vitality Astonished Paterson Hospital Physicians.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., March 19.—After a remarkable fight for life Christian H. De Keyser, Clerk of the Borough of Wallington, who was thrown from his automobile on Feb. 9 in Little Falls, died at 9 o'clock this morning at the Paterson General Hospital.

When Mr. De Keyser was taken to the hospital the physicians believed that he would not live twenty-four hours, for he had a fracture of the skull. Besides, both legs were broken. Mr. De Keyser exhibited remarkable vitality, however, and lived more than six weeks.

Mr. De Keyser was a member of one of Wallingford's old families. He had been Clerk of the borough since its incorporation in 1894.

Yale Typhoid Vaccination Plan.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 19.—Academic freshmen at Yale, it was stated to-day, will shortly receive from Dean Jones a communication asking each to consult his family physician as to the advisability of inoculation against typhoid fever. Parents of sub-freshmen are also to be asked to consider the matter of typhoid inoculation before their sons formally enter college.

FEAR ANOTHER TEXAN RAID.

U. S. Troops Sent to Prevent Kidnapping of Vergara's Slayer.

LAREDO, Texas, March 19.—Rumors that an American filibustering party was preparing to invade Mexico from the vicinity of Palafox, Texas, caused Capt. Howard, commander at Fort McIntosh, to dispatch troops to that section to-day.

It was across the border from Palafox that Clemente Vergara, the Texas ranchman slain at Hidalgo, Mexico, was arrested by Mexican Federal soldiers, and the rumor was connected with the alleged intention of certain Texans to cross the border and kidnap Capt. Fernandez, by whose orders Vergara is said to have been executed.

DENOUNCES WAITING POLICY.

Representative Hulings Demands a Time Limit for Mexico.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The Mexican situation cropped out once more in debate in the House of Representatives to-day when Representative Willis J. Hulings of Pennsylvania, a Progressive, discussed the question for half an hour.

Though he has from the beginning "sympathized with the efforts of President Wilson to prevent war with Mexico," and believes that "intervention means war," Mr. Hulings concluded his speech with this statement.

"I believe the time must come, if it has not already arrived, when it will be the imperative duty of this Government to announce to the world that present conditions in Mexico must cease and that unless, by a given time, the Mexicans shall themselves have made pacific arrangements and ceased hostilities, the United States, in the interests of humanity, will undertake to restore peace and good order.

"Recently a British subject, William S. Benton, whom I knew very well, was murdered by the revolutionists with Villa, and at once our State Department has shown more interest than all the outrages upon American citizens have evoked.

"Now, the question arises, why is this so? What is there so particularly appalling in the murder of Benton that it should quicken our State Department, when it has been so indifferent to the murder of scores of Americans in Mexico?

"The answer commonly given is that the Monroe Doctrine requires the United States to protect citizens of European countries in any of the countries of the American continents, because under the Monroe Doctrine the United States will not permit European countries to interfere with the American countries.

"I deny that the Monroe Doctrine means any such thing. It never did mean that this Government holds itself responsible for the settlement of every dispute in which a Southern republic and a European nation may engage.

"There is nothing in the Monroe Doctrine to prevent any country taking necessary means to collect debts from or to protect its citizens in any American country.

"There is nothing in the Monroe Doctrine in itself that requires the United States to protect a British subject in Mexico, and there is not any reason in polity why Great Britain should not protect her own citizens in Mexico or wherever they may be.

"It is an unpleasant commentary upon American diplomacy that when American property and lives have been destroyed practically no notice has been taken of it, but the moment a British subject is involved the British Government prods our Government into action.

"Does British citizenship rest upon a plane superior to that of American citizenship? Is the protecting of a British citizen a more sacred duty of the Government than the protection of her own citizens?

"I believe it is her duty, without respect to party lines, to stand shoulder to shoulder in this difficult Mexican matter. But I believe the time has come when something should be done. 'Watchful waiting' has accomplished nothing. Something else should be done. A diplomacy that has no other plan than 'to wait for something to turn up' has been tested to the limit. If intervention is the only other plan, then intervention should come speedily."

WILSON CONVINCES JONES.

Senator Accepts Denial of Tolls-Mexican Deal with Carden.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—When Senator Jones of Washington, who yesterday accused the Administration of trading the tolls exemption clause of the Panama Canal act for British acquiescence in American policies in Mexico, called at the White House this morning on routine business, President Wilson told him that there had been nothing in his talk with Sir Lionel Carden, British Minister to Mexico, to justify Mr. Jones's deductions.

Mr. Jones soon afterward told the Senate of the President's statement.

The President is quoted locally as telling the Senator that he was skating on thin ice. It is also said that the President told him that in referring on the floor of the Senate to the Executive's attitude he ought to have ascertained it at first hand and not from the public press. As a matter of fact, Mr. Jones quoted in part from a newspaper. The President's denial, as described by Mr. Jones, merely covered the talk with Sir Lionel. Mr. Jones said nothing to indicate that the President had said he expected British sympathy in Mexico in return for the repeal of the tolls provision.

Mr. Jones's statement to the Senate came in connection with his resolution asking the President for a list of the countries that had protested against the exemption clause of the Panama Canal act, and for all correspondence on the subject. The resolution later went over so as to allow Mr. Bristow of Kansas to consult Mr. O'Gorman of New York, Chairman of the Committee on Interoceanic Canals, who was out of the city.

Mr. Jones said in part.

"I desire to deny the impression which seems to have been conveyed from the remarks I made yesterday, namely, that my reference concerning an alleged interview of Sir Lionel Carden with the President was made on information I possessed or on matters within my knowledge. I think a reading of the remarks will show this is not correct; that what I said was based upon a quotation from a paper with reference to the interview.

"I wish to say in justice to the President that he has assured me in most positive terms that there is no basis of fact in the interview with Sir Lionel Carden for the conclusions or suggestions contained in the article; and when he gives such assurance I accept it without hesitation

"I wish to make that statement in justice to the President, because I do not want to do injustice to any one, much less to him. I do think that it emphasizes the importance of passing a resolution of this character at some time, so that we can get an official statement with reference to whatever information there is available in regard to this question. It seems to me that the people of the country and Congress ought to be taken into the confidence of the President and those having information with reference to this important matter, fully and completely. We ought not to be left to surmises and deductions from uncertain conditions and supposed facts."

MAY CONFISCATE CAR LINES.

Huerta's Action Against Company Is Thus Interpreted.

MEXICO CITY, March 19.—The Government's implied threat to dispossess the Mexican Light and Power Company of the franchise under which the suburban street car lines are operated has been made the subject of reports to their respective Governments by diplomatic representatives of Great Britain, France, and Belgium.

The Mexican Government's contention that the franchise has expired is denied by the company, which fears confiscation. The question arose late in 1913, and again in the present year, when Sir Lionel Carden, the British Minister, took a hand in the controversy, as the company is a Canadian concern, with headquarters in Montreal. The principal stockholder is Dr. F. S. Pearson of New York.

The diplomats here attach considerable significance to the Mexican Government's attitude toward this company as possibly indicative of an intention to raise money through foreign investors. No solution of Mexico's financial difficulties has so far been reached. The bankers from whom President Huerta demanded large sums monthly have not acceded to his demands.

TROOPS START FOR TEXAS.

Ninth and Seventeenth Infantry en Route to Do Border Duty.

ATLANTA, March 19.—The Seventeenth United States Infantry left Fort McPherson to-day in three special trains for Eagle Pass, Texas, to join the border patrol. Eight hundred men were in the command.

CINCINNATI, March 19.—Two battalions of the Ninth Infantry, Col. Crane commanding, comprising 690 men and 25 officers, left Fort Thomas, Ky., late today for Laredo, Texas, where they will take up the duty of patrolling the Mexican border.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 19.—Four companies of the Ninth Infantry, stationed at Fort Logan H. Roots, left here to-day for Laredo, Texas, where they will report for border duty. The detachment numbers 300 privates and officers and is commanded by Capt. J. V. Heidt.

HAS FAITH IN MEXICO.

John Hays Hammond Has Just Made Some Investments There.

John Hays Hammond got home on the Imperator yesterday from Europe, where he said he had been conferring with financiers on business matters. Mrs. Hammond returned with him. Asked what he thought of the Mexican situation, Mr. Hammond said:

"I have just made some investments in Mexico, which shows that I have faith in the country coming back."

Did Not Get Mexican Concessions.

The New York representatives of S. Pearson & Son, Limited, denied yesterday that the corporation had obtained new street railway concessions in Mexico City, as reported in a cable dispatch from that city, published yesterday.

RAILROADS' PLIGHT IMPRESSES WILSON

posal of those remaining is sufficiently important to require a trusteeship.

Trustees will not be named for the so-called outside steamship lines of the New Haven, from which it must take part. These lines will be taken care of by the New Haven itself, the Department of Justice of course remaining in the position to press action by the road in divorcing them.

Regarding the so-called Sound lines and the wharves and docks in Sound cities, the Department of Justice plans to leave them for the present to the Interstate Commerce Commission, which has authority under the Panama Canal act to separate them from the railroad. The department, however, reserves the right to adopt its own attitude on this question. No trusteeship for these lines will be provided, and if the commission decides that the New Haven shall retain them the department will probably not interfere.

So far as the Administration is concerned the ratification of these terms of settlement will close the negotiations. Officials here have nothing to do with the necessary action by the State of Massachusetts, but they were hopeful to-night that that Commonwealth will contribute to the success of the agreement by taking the necessary legislative steps.

Senator Brandegee of Connecticut presented to the Senate to-day memorials from savings banks at Bridgeport, New London, and other points in New England protesting against the separation of the steamship and trolley lines from the New York, New Haven & Hartford system. The memorials recited that drastic action would cause a widespread shifting of trust funds and the like, and would produce evil effects all over New England.

Mr. Brandegee said that he had felt uncertain what course to take with the memorials. He did not wish to present them to the Attorney General, he said, who had already made up his mind, nor to the President, who had referred the whole subject to the Attorney General. He therefore decided, he said, to lay them before the Senate for the information of the Government and the country.

The Directors of the New Haven, said Mr. Brandegee, had been caught in a cross-fire. They did not wish to part with property for which they were responsible to their stockholders and they did not wish to resist the Government to an extremity for fear of endless litigation

TOO DRASTIC, SAYS BALDWIN.

Connecticut Governor Condemns Proceedings Against New Haven.

WATERBURY, Conn., March 19.—Federal proceedings against the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, in their present aspect, were condemned as too drastic by Gov. Baldwin to-night in an address before the Waterbury Chamber of Commerce.

"A great transportation system dominated by one strong man is always in some danger," he said. "His death may disarrange it. J. Pierpont Morgan, a son of Connecticut, bore such a relation to the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. He largely shaped its policies and directed its finances. His death unshipped the rudder. The boat swung around. It is now lying in the trough of the sea. The waves are breaking over it; the waves of financial disorder.

"I do not think the chances of safety are being improved by the proceedings which are going on at the Attorney General's office in Washington. The Federal authorities seem to me to be asking too much. If it is deemed necessary to require the sale of any of the property of the road, it ought to have time enough to dispose of it; if not to the best advantage, at least at a fair price. It is no case for an auction sale, rain or shine, under a red flag. There are not many customers for large properties. You have got to look them up and get them interested."

NEW HAVEN, March 19.—"Rather than surrender to the demands of the Attorney General of the United States for the dismemberment by agreement of any part of the New Haven Railroad system," the New Haven Chamber of Commerce to-day passed resolutions calling upon the President and Directors of the railroad "to resist to the utmost such demands and compel the Attorney General to argue his case in court."

The resolutions say that the present plans of the Attorney General mean "the destruction of the present transportation system of New England."

ELLIOTT SEES A SOLUTION.

New Haven President Hopeful as He Leaves for Washington.

Howard Elliott, Chairman of the New Haven system, said last night before leaving for Washington that he was hopeful that the resumption of negotiations with Attorney General McReynolds to-day would result in an agreement on trusteeing the stock of the Boston & Maine and the trolley companies.

This statement followed a meeting of the Board of Directors, at which Mr. Elliott reported the progress of efforts for an adjustment and all phases of the problem were discussed. The meeting was fully attended, the only absentees among the twenty-three Directors being William Rockefeller, Charles F. Brooker, and Morton F. Plant.

"What new questions have been raised by the Attorney General?" Mr. Elliott was asked, referring to the latest conferences.

"No new questions have been raised," he replied. "The questions at issue have all been made public in the last month."

In answer to a question, Mr. Elliott said he could not make public the names of those who had been suggested for Trustees.

"Has the Board of Directors empowered you to close an agreement with the Attorney General? If so, can you give the details?" he was asked.

"I cannot give you any details," he said.

Some time ago Mr. Elliott said that a meeting of stockholders would be called to pass on any agreement reached and he was asked yesterday when such a meeting would be held.

"No date has been set," he answered. "The meeting will be called promptly on the conclusion of the negotiations with the Attorney General."

"Is there any truth in the report from Washington that the Interstate Commerce Commission contemplates another investigation of the New York & Westchester matter?"

"I don't know," said Mr. Elliott. "The investigation now being made by the commission refers entirely to matters that took place prior to my association with the New Haven. We have told the commission and the examiners that we would co-operate with them in obtaining the facts, and all the information in the possession of the company has been furnished."

The Directors authorized the issue of $2,490,000 5 per cent. equipment notes, to run for fifteen years. The proceeds are to pay for some of the new steel passenger cars and electric equipment to run between New York and New Haven. Mr. Elliott said no arrangements had yet been made concerning the $45,000,000 of notes due May 18.

"What are the indications of gross earnings for March?" he was asked.

"Still showing decreases," he said, "but the second week shows better than the first."

Purchases of rails for 1914, amounting to 15,000 tons for the New Haven and 1,200 tons for the Central New England, were approved yesterday. The Central New England board met for this purpose, and there were also meetings of the Directors of the New England Steamship Company, the Hartford and New York Transportation Company, and the Hoosic Falls Company. At the two latter the retiring officers were reelected.

DATA THAT COST MILLIONS.

Reports to Official Bodies a Big Item in Roads' Expenses.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—While the country realizes that the increased expenses of railroads has been due in large part to the general upward trend of the cost of material and labor, persons familiar with the situation contend that there is another and important cause for the increase that has not been taken into consideration. This is the pecuniary outlay of the railroads in the preparation of data required by the Interstate Commerce Commission and State Railroad Commissions.

No definite estimate has been made as to the amount of expense to which the Eastern railroads will be put in connection with their aplication for permission to advance freight rates, but it is asserted that present indications make it practically certain that the minimum cost will be $2,000,000. The expense of preparing and printing the freight tariff schedules that form an exhibit of the application will be in the neighborhood of $250,000, but an enormous amount of other preparation will be required. One railroad system is understood to have spent $100,000 in preparing statements necessary to the rate case, and there are thirty-eight systems, embracing fifty-seven separate railroads, involved.

The railroads are also being put to heavy additional expense in the preparation of information required by the commission in connection with its physical valuation of railroad properties. This work will consume from one to four years and will cost the Government, according to an estimate made, anywhere from $7,000,000 to $12,000,000. Many of the railroads believe it is essential to make their own valuations of their properties in order to check those made by Government officials.

It is contended in behalf of the Interstate Commerce Commission that it has never been exacting in requiring information from common carriers. It is pointed out, for example, that the smaller railroads were not obliged to give all the detailed information which the larger carriers, better able to bear the expense, must furnish. It is also suggested that the burden of expense placed on railroads for the preparation of information required by official regulatory bodies, comes mainly from the exactions of State railroad commissions. The fact remains, however, that the railroads are beginning to feel this burden, and it is probable that some effort to relieve it will be made before long.

SAXE ADVISES GLYNN ELECTION IS VALID

Asserts Marshall's Opinion Is Based on a Misconception of Constitution Referendum Act.

NO REPEAL, SAYS GOVERNOR

Assured by Decision of Democratic Senators—Marshall Replies to Wagner and Stetson.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 19.—Acting under instructions from Gov. Glynn, ex-Senator John Godfrey Saxe, who recently was appointed his legal adviser, wrote an opinion yesterday on the constitutionality of the law passed last December providing for a special election on April 7 next to determine through a referendum whether a Constitutional Convention should be called for April, 1915. Mr. Saxe upholds the Governor's contention that last year's act is constitutional and assails the opinion rendered by Louis Marshall in a letter published in THE NEW YORK TIMES last Tuesday morning.

Gov. Glynn to-night declared that undoubtedly the special election would be held on the first Tuesday in April. His assurance was due to the informal decision of the Democratic Senators to beat the Sullivan repeal bill passed in the Assembly yesterday. For all that the Governor gave some intimation that he was seeking further light on the constitutional point raised by Mr. Marshall in his letter to THE TIMES.

"I am going to confer to-morrow with an eminent authority on the constitution, who is not in politics," Mr. Glynn said to-night. He would not divulge the identity of the lawyer. It was learned to-night, however, that Francis Lynde Stetson, who had been urging the constitutionality of last year's law was coming to Albany to discuss the proposed constitutional convention and some other matters with Gov. Glynn.

Mr. Saxe in his opinion says:

"An Entire Misconception."

The only ground upon which the constitutionality of the act of 1913 is challenged is that Section 4 of Article 2 of the Constitution, after providing that laws shall be made for the registration of voters, provides that such registration "shall be completed at least ten days before each election." This objection is not only highly technical but, in my opinion, it is based on an entire misconception of the terms and meaning of the act of 1913.

In the first place, the objection presupposes that the act provides for a new general registration for the special election to be held on April 7. It does nothing of the kind. No one who is now correctly registered need register again. The act, in seven printed lines, incorporates Section 160 of the Election law, providing for the revision of registration for special elections, and by so doing adopts the registration already made for the general election held last Fall, and merely provides that the inspectors are to meet on Saturday, March 28, "for the purpose of revising and correcting the register of voters."

In the second place, the act, as a matter of fact, does provide that the registration shall be completed at least ten days before election. The election is set for April 7, the first Tuesday in April. The day before election will be Monday, the 6th. Eight days before will be Monday, March 30, and ten days before will be Saturday, March 28. The fact that the registration may not be completed at least two hundred and forty hours before the opening of the polls on election day is wholly immaterial, in view of the well-settled principle of law that the law does not regard fractions of a day, except in cases where the hour itself is material, as in the case where priority of judgments is in question. (Marvin v. Marvin, 75 New York, 240, 243); (Aultman v. Syme, 163 New York, 54, 61.).

In the third place, the objection utterly disregards the constitutional and legislative history of the State in respect to registration. The constitutional requirement as to the completion of registry ten days before election first appeared in the Constitution of 1894. Over twenty years before, however, in 1872, the Legislature had enacted a law for New York which required a registry to be made on personal application only, and fixed the second Saturday before election as the last day for registration for general elections and for revising and correcting the registry for other elections. During the twenty-two years which intervened between 1872 and 1894 public questions as to registration in all its phases were the subject of consideration by Governors and Legislatures, and public attention was constantly directed thereto, but the laws, with substantial uniformity, fixed the last day of registration as either the second Saturday before election, or directed that the registration was to be completed at least ten days before election, which was regarded as one and the same thing.

Statutory History.

At the Constitutional Convention of 1894 the first draft of the suffrage clauses contained a provision that registration should be completed at least twenty days before election, but, after debate, this provision was changed so as to conform to statutory history by providing that the last day should be ten days before. Thus we find the following statement in Lincoln's Constitutional History of New York:

> It will be observed, as suggested in the convention, that the section simply put into the constitution and made permanent the provisions of existing statutes, and so deprived the Legislature of any power over the subject.

Not only was the act of 1913 not the first act to provide for the completion of registration on the second Saturday before election, but substantially the same provision has been in the statutes from the day of the convention to the day of this opinion. The election law of 1896, enacted for the purpose of carrying out the constitutional mandate of the convention then just held, contained no less than three references to the second Saturday before election as the final day for the completion of registration.—(Laws of 1896, Chapter 909, Sections 30 and 31.)

The election law of 1896 provided in the identical words of the act of 1913, so far as the same was applicable, as follows:

> If any special election shall be ordered in any city or village, the inspectors of election of the various election districts in which such special election is to be held shall meet in their respective districts at the place designated therefor, on the second Saturday preceding such special election, from 8 o'clock in the forenoon to 10 o'clock in the evening, for the purpose of revising and correcting the register of electors.

This provision remained upon the statute books from 1896 to 1911, when it was inadvertently repealed, and it is of interest to know that the reason why the Bill Drafting Department incorporated the provision under discussion into the act of 1913 was for the reason that the inadvertent repeal of the provision as to special elections in 1911 required the re-enactment of that provision for any special election hereafter held, and the Bill Drafting Department, in framing the act of 1913, adopted the very same provision which had been in the laws since 1896. If the present act is unconstitutional, there has not been a constitutional special election since 1896.

Whole Election Fabric Involved.

The election law of 1896 also contains two provisions providing that the Board of Inspectors may meet on the second Saturday before each general election for the purpose of correcting the register by adding to or striking off the name of any person. This provision has been on the statute books continuously from 1896 to the present day; and if the act of 1913 is unconstitutional, it is not a far cry to say that since the convention met in 1894 we have not had a constitutional election, general or special, in the State of New York.

The framers of the Constitution of 1894 did not see fit to prescribe in detail the methods of registration, but directed the Legislature to make laws for the registration of voters. These laws have uniformly provided that the work of correcting registration shall be made on the Saturday ten days before election, and it is unthinkable that any involved technical quibble can undermine precedents of over forty years' standing.

The Democratic Senators are to hold a conference to-morrow afternoon, at which concerted action will be taken pledging every member of the Democratic majority in the Senate to vote against the Sullivan repeal bill.

LOUIS MARSHALL REPLIES.

Says Wagner and Stetson Lay the Axe to the Tree of Liberty.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

What might have been expected in these days, when it has become fashionable to regard with scorn constitutional restraints, has been indicated by some of the answers which have been made to my arguments that the Constitutional Convention special election law is unconstitutional.

The Acting Lieutenant Governor, while recognizing that Section 4 of Article II. of the Constitution requires the registration of voters to "be completed at least ten days before each election," seeks to interpret the command of the Constitution as inapplicable to a special election. He boldly states that the registration under which this special election is to be conducted was completed last October, and that the law now under discussion does not contemplate a new registration, but merely a correction and revision of the registration which was completed several months before the act was passed.

He forgets, however, that the Constitution does not speak of a correction or revision of registration. It declares, in the clearest language, that there must be "a registration" of voters "at least ten days before each election."

That includes a special election, as well as a general election. The registration which was completed last October spent its constitutional force when the general election was held in November, 1913. If the Legislature can declare that registration is unnecessary with respect to a special election occurring nearly six months after the holding of a general election, it may, with equal authority, dispense with the registration of voters at successive general elections, by harking back to the registration of a previous year and declaring that, in subsequent years, all that it is necessary to do is to correct and revise the previous registration. The difficulty with this interpretation is that it ignores the express requirement of the Constitution and would nullify its salutary purposes.

Constitution, Not Statute.

He next argues that the general election law of the State recognizes that the registration may be corrected subsequent to the time when it must be completed, where by judicial action the addition or elimination of a name is directed. Assuming such a provision to be valid, it does not affect the proposition with which we are now concerned, which does not relate to the interpretation of a statute, but of the Constitution; which does not involve the carrying out of a judicial decree, but relates to the general proposition as to when the registration of voters, dealing with them as a body, is to be completed. Besides, the statute which is cited expressly declares that "no court of justice or Judge shall order the name of any person to be added to the register of voters unless it shall have been omitted therefrom through the fault, error, or negligence of the election officers."

The Lieutenant Governor further contends that Section 20 of the general construction law disposes of my contention. Anticipating that argument, I emphasized the fact that this is not a question of statutory construction, but of constitutional interpretation, and that the rule laid down in the statute which has been invoked has no application to the language of the Constitution, which requires that registration "be completed at least ten days before each election." It has been expressly decided that the general construction law has no application to the Constitution. If it were otherwise, the Legislature could give to the Constitution any interpretation that it might desire, however foreign to the underlying intention of the organic law.

He has made the further discovery that Article XIV., Section 2, of the Constitution provides that the question as to whether a Constitutional Convention shall be held may be submitted to the electors "at such times as the Legislature may by law provide," from which he argues that the Legislature is given absolute power over the subject and can, therefore, dispense entirely with registration at an election held for the purpose of determining whether or not a Constitutional Convention shall be held. This line of reasoning indicates the danger which may lurk in any election law which does not strictly conform to the Constitutional requirement as to registration. The provision which has been invoked simply gives to the Legislature the right to determine the time when a vote is to be taken as to the holding of a Constitutional Convention. That provision must be read in connection with Section 4 of Article II. of the Constitution, which relates to all elections and which makes it a fundamental requirement for holding any election that there shall be a registration of voters.

The contention of the Lieutenant Governor, if carried to its logical conclusion, would lead to a manifest absurdity. It would permit the Legislature to enact a law on one day that on the very next day a vote be taken on the constitutional question; that all registration may be dispensed with; that oral voting may be resorted to; that the constitutional qualifications of voters shall not be applicable, and that the Inspectors of election shall represent one political party only.

But, then, these requirements simply exist in the Constitution, and that is a document twenty years old, and is, therefore, no longer up to date, or worthy of serious consideration when it stands in the way of the accomplishment of a cherished purpose!

Stetson's Position a Surprise.

I confess that I am even more surprised at the position taken by Mr. Stetson, for whom I have the utmost personal regard and whom I respect for his many accomplishments and his fine public spirit. Without troubling himself to meet the proposition that Chapter 819 of the Laws of 1913 violates the Constitution, and without undertaking to explain away or answer the express adjudications which interpret the language of the Constitution, he contents himself with the ironical declaration that the question is to be determined, not by decisions involving the Justices of Shropshire or the Salisbury Town Clerk, but "by the Grand Assizes of the people of the State."

That is a very interesting figure of speech. It is, however, apt to be invoked by others less discriminating should the recall of judicial decisions become a part of our Governmental system, in order to confound the solemn adjudications of the Court of Appeals and of the Supreme Court of the United States. What would any of the leading cases which are the glory of our jurisprudence then amount to "in the Grand Assizes," to which this distinguished lawyer refers? He should not forget, however, that the constitutional provision upon which my argument is based emanated from that same Grand Assize of the people of the State, and was enacted by them.

Mr. Stetson urges that the statute which I have criticised may properly be regarded as a legislative interpretation of the Constitution. The vice of this contention is that this legislative interpretation is entirely at odds with the mandate of the Constitution. It will not be seriously contended that such an interpretation, which is manifestly erroneous and which disregards the plain language of that instrument, can have the effects of superseding it. If this were tolerated, written constitutions would be destitute of all value and the Legislature would be omnipotent.

The contention that, if the people should undertake to vote at a special election held in derogation of the Constitution, their will would nevertheless be supreme, and that it is within their power to brush aside all technicalities (including constitutional limitations,) is one of the most pernicious that can possibly be conceived. Let it once be understood that a fraction of the people may, in order to accomplish their immediate purpose, contravene the command of the Constitution and disregard the safeguards which they themselves have created for the protection of all the people, the last hour of constitutional government will have arrived, brute force will triumph over the rights of a temporary minority; the assertion and exercise of power will be the equivalent of constitutional authority, and physical strength will be the only sanction required by Government.

As to Technicalities.

Let us assume that the point that has been raised partakes of technicality, that the difference between a registration completed nine days and one completed "at least" ten days before an election is trivial. Yet the same criticism may be indulged with respect to any other of the provisions of the Constitution, with the consequence that, if one part of it may be rejected on that score in the end the entire fabric may be treated as negligible.

The doctrine promulgated by Mr. Stetson does not appeal to me as strongly as does the language of Judge Johnson, in Newell v. People, 7 N. Y. 9, with reference to constitutional construction:

> That which the words declare is the meaning of the instrument, and neither courts nor Legislatures have the right to add to or take away from that meaning. This is true of every instrument, but when we are speaking of the most solemn and deliberate of all human writings, those which ordain the fundamental law of the States, the rule rises to a very high degree of significance. It must be very plain, nay, absolutely certain, that the people did not intend what the language they have employed in its natural signification imports before a court will feel itself at liberty to depart from the plain reading of a constitutional provision.

The language of Judge Gray in People v. Rathbone, 145 N. Y. 434, 438, is equally impressive:

> The latitude allowed in the construction of legislative acts is out of place and would be unwise when interpreting the fundamental law.

It is indeed a sad spectacle when leaders of public opinion are so carried away by their momentary desires, as to lay the axe at the very roots of the tree of liberty. LOUIS MARSHALL.

New York, March 19.

"THAW DAY" A FIASCO.

Appeal to Unsympathetic Assembly to Stop "Persecution" Put Off.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 19.—This was to have been "Thaw Day" at the Capitol, but something went wrong with the plans. Assemblyman John B. Golden, who represents one of the lower east side Districts in New York City, was to have made a spectacular plea for the discharge of the Committee on Rules from further consideration of his resolution calling upon Attorney General Carmody to furnish to the Legislature an itemized report of the money spent by the State in the effort to bring Harry K. Thaw back. It was said that the aged mother of Thaw and some of his other relatives were to be on hand and would confer with Attorney General Carmody and Gov. Glynn relative to the cessation of all further efforts to have Thaw extradited.

Preparatory to the launching of the programme, "Suspender Jack" McGee carried into the Assembly lobby two suit cases containing a monster petition urging the State authorities to stop all proceedings in the Thaw matter. McGee said that more than 100,000 persons in this State had signed the petition and that a similar number from other States and from Canada, Mexico and Cuba had signed.

"It was done at an expense of only $800," said McGee, "and I have vouchers to support that statement."

Assemblyman Golden learned that his motion would be overwhelmingly defeated if offered, so after consultation with one of the Thaw lawyers he determined to abandon the programme for the time being. Mr Golden said to-night that he might make his motion next Monday night.

FILE SIEGEL INVENTORY.

Sixteen Cents on the Dollar Available for Mercantile Creditors.

According to inventories of the stock of the various department stores conducted by Henry Siegel and Frank E. Vogel, made public yesterday, mercantile creditors of the Siegel firms may expect only 16 cents on the dollar, while depositors in the Siegel bank, which was operated in connection with the stores, may expect only 14½ cents on the dollar. The amount specified for depositors is not an initial settlement, but represents the full amount depositors may expect on their claims.

The total value of stock in sixty-one departments of the Simpson-Crawford store is $832,416. Its net value is $581,340. The net accounts receivable of the Simpson-Crawford store are $528,399.

In seventy departments of the Fourteenth Street Store, the stocks were appraised at $603,733 or $406,716 net. The Fourteenth Street Store accounts receivable totaled $74,933, of which only $60,437 are net.

The private bank, which has been one of the main subjects of complaint to the authorities charged with the investigation of criminal offenses, held claims against the two stores of $2,028,099. The mercantile and other creditors held claims amounting to $2,569,999.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 19.—Assemblyman Solomon Sufrin of the Eighth New York District introduced a resolution to-day authorizing the State Banking Department and the Attorney General to intervene in the proceeding begun by the depositors of the Henry Siegel Bank to find out what was done with their money. The resolution was referred to the Rules Committee.

Mr. Sufrin explained that by having the Banking Department and the Attorney General vested with this power by act of the Legislature, the Federal authorities would be powerless to prevent them from intervening. What Mr. Sufrin has in view is the saving of about $40,000 which the depositors would have to pay out of the assets for fees of lawyers and expert accountants.

SECRETARY BRYAN IS 54.

Observes Anniversary at Washington—With Smoker and Reception.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Secretary Bryan observed to-day his fifty-fourth birthday. He had expected to celebrate the event by signing peace treaties with Brazil, Argentina, and Chile, but the conventions were not prepared in time. President Wilson wrote Secretary Bryan a birthday letter, which was not made public, but was described by officials as being one of warm congratulation.

The Secretary's anniversary was celebrated on a scale quite unusual in the Capitol. One of the features was a little smoker given by the Secretary to his many friends among the newspaper men whose duties bring them into close daily association with the Secretary of State. Mr. Bryan gave his guests this thought from James Russell Lowell to carry back to their work:

"Get but the truth once uttered, and it is like a star, new born, that drops into its place, and which, once circling in its placid round, not all the tumult of the earth can shake."

Later in the afternoon the Secretary and Mrs. Bryan gave a reception to officials and employes of the Department of State and the ladies of their families.

SILENT ON BISHOP'S DEATH.

Dr. Scarborough Said to Have Braved Storm After Quarrel with a Rector.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., March 19.—The Rev. W. T. Widener, rector of St. George's Episcopal Church in this place, refused to-day to discuss a report that the death of Bishop Scarborough at Trenton on March 14 of pneumonia, had followed the Bishop's walking unaccompanied from his church in a heavy snowstorm.

Mr. Widener was told that it had been said that he and the Bishop had had a dispute, which led the aged prelate to abandon his plan to preach at the church. It was said he walked through the storm to the home of Mrs. George W. Helme, in whose carriage he had ridden to the church. The Rev. Mr. Widener refused also to discuss another story which had it that his congregation was anxious that he should resign and that he had refused to do so. One version of the account of Bishop Scarborough's departure from St. George's on the Sunday of the storm was that he had sought to prevail upon the Rev. Mr. Widener to resign, but that the rector had rebuffed him.

MITCHEL UNBENDING; POLICE BILL TO DIE

Mayor's Refusal to Indorse Court of Review Spells Death of the Legislation.

REJECTS ALL COMPROMISE

And Refers to "Obstructionists Who Represent the 'System'"—Denies a Patronage Deal.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 19.—Speaker Thaddeus Sweet has received word from Mayor Mitchel that he is unwilling to recede from his original position in regard to the proposed police legislation for New York City and will not accept the amendment to the so-called Mitchel bill, proposed at the conference last night by Assemblyman George R. Brennan, a Brooklyn Republican.

The attitude of Mayor Mitchel, it was said to-night, would make the passage of the bill even in the Republican Assembly impossible. Assemblyman Brennan made public to-night the full text of his proposed amendment. Here it is:

> Within three months after the decision of the Commissioner reducing or dismissing any member of the uniformed police force such member may make a written application to the Board of Police Review for a rehearing of the charges on which he was reduced or dismissed, stating his reasons therefor and waiving all right to back pay or damages.
>
> Said board shall examine the application, hear the applicant and his witnesses, and shall subpoena and hear such other witnesses as in its judgment may be necessary, and take such other testimony as the said board may deem advisable. Said applicant may be represented by counsel. Said board shall affirm, modify, or reverse the decision of the Commissioner, or order a retrial before the Commissioner, upon such terms as to allowance of time to be applied to the service of such member, or otherwise, as in its judgment may be equitable and shall make its report in writing to the Mayor, with the reasons therefor.
>
> Except when disapproved by the Mayor within thirty days, the decision of the Board of Police Review shall be final and conclusive, and not subject to review by any court.

The amendement, it was said by Mr. Brennan, would have given the Mayor as much power in cases of policemen as is vested in the President in court-martial cases.

It was suggested here to-night that the utter improbability of favorable action in the Senate on the amended Mitchel bill, even if it should pass the Assembly, had induced Mayor Mitchel to assume his present non-compromising attitude with regard to the measure.

Mayor Mitchel denied yesterday that he had made any arrangement whereby there was to be a division of patronage if his police legislation was passed. He said that he sent no one to Albany to represent him and that he would agree to no proposition that would mean a distribution of patronage among the Republican or any other party.

"No patronage whatever depends upon the passage or non-passage of the police legislation," said the Mayor, who apparently was annoyed over the reports from Albany that an agreement had been made between himself and the Republicans. "I hoped that the legislation would be made a party measure. The issue is clean cut. If they want to enable us to get Col. Goethals and have an effective police administration—well and good. Those who are opposed to the legislation are lining up with the obstructionists who represent the 'system.'"

"Do you think the police legislation will pass?" the Mayor was asked.

"I do not know," he replied. "I certainly will not accept any amendment that will give the final revision of the police cases to the Board of Review. I insist that the Mayor must have the final say regarding this matter."

RUNS DOWN BOY, ESCAPES.

Chauffeur Dodges Pursuit After Mortally Hurting a Child.

A low, gray racing automobile ran down nine-year-old Herbert Miller of 1,195 First Avenue in front of his home last evening, fracturing his skull and inflicting serious bodily injuries from which he may die.

Patrolman Neitzel of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station, who witnessed the accident, called to the chauffeur to stop, but the motor continued half a block north to Sixty-fifth Street and turned west. Neitzel blew his police whistle to attract the attention of other patrolmen and leaping on the running board of another automobile ordered its chauffeur to take up the pursuit.

The gray car sped west on Sixty-fifth Street, turned south on Second Avenue and west on Sixty-fourth Street. The engine of the pursuing car stopped as it turned the corner at Sixty-fourth Street and Second Avenue, and the gray car escaped.

Detective Birmingham of the West Fifty-first Street Station, who went out to look up the gray car by the number which Neitzel reported for it, found that Neitzel had made an inaccurate observation. The father of the injured boy also saw the accident, but failed to get the number of the gray car.

At Flower Hospital, to which the father took his son, the physicians said the boy had only a slight chance of recovery.

$5,000 TO FIND LOST BOY.

Philadelphia Councils Increase Reward for Return of McCarrick's Son.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 19.—At the request of Mayor Blankenburg, City Councils decided this afternoon to increase the reward offered for the return of seven-year-old Warren McCarrick, son of a city employe, who has been missing since last Thursday and is being held for a ransom, from $1,000 to $5,000.

James McCarrick, the father of the missing boy, issued an appeal to-night to parents generally to help in the search.

"No one not a father or a mother," he says, "can realize the terrible conditions under which my wife and I are struggling, hoping against hope, fighting against despair. If my son was kidnapped the person or persons who did it cannot be human. If they could look into my wife's heart and mine and see the aches which they have caused; if they could realize just what they have done; if they could only see the misery, the terror, the horror of unknown possibilities which they have given my wife to sufffer, they would return my boy."

ELOPES WITH FRENCH MAID.

F. P. Kendall, New York Traveler, Weds Banker's Employe.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 19.—Frederick P. Kendall, a traveler for a New York print company, eloped on March 3 with Marie Boin, an attractive French maid, employed by Mrs. John Carruth, the wife of a banker of this city, who lives in the Bellevue-Stratford. The marriage was the result of an acquaintance formed when Kendall was a guest of the Carruths several months ago.

The courtship seems to have been swift, and neither Mr. Kendall's family nor the Carruths knew anything of it until they learned that the pair had been married by the Rev. Henry Frankland of this city.

Mr. Kendall gave his age as 44 and his address as 130 West Ninety-third Street, New York. Mrs. Kendall is 36 and came to this country six years ago from France.

Mr. Carruth is President of the Industrial Trust Company of this city.

Immigration Bill Reported.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The Burnett Immigration bill was reported favorably to the Senate to-day. It retains the literacy test.

LEFT $10,000 GEMS IN AUTO.

Stella Mayhew Got Them Back, with a Bill She'd Rather Have Lost.

For two hours last night Stella Mayhew, who is appearing at the Casino Theatre, believed that she had lost diamonds worth $10,000 and $550 in cash. Miss Mayhew put the diamonds and money in a black bag when she left New Rochelle in her limousine early last evening. When she jumped out of the automobile and dismissed her chauffeur, Theodore Siebert, with instructions to come for her after the show, she left the bag in the automobile.

Miss Mayhew didn't think of the jewels again until she wanted two of the rings to complete her costume for the first act. An attendant who tapped on the door of her dressing room to announce that it was time for her to appear on the stage found Miss Mayhew raging around the room, while her maid endeavored to quiet her.

"What do I care about the old show?" she cried at the attendant.

Detective Mallon and two employes of the Shuberts were sent scurrying around in search of the chauffeur. They found him after an hour's search. He led them to a garage on Broadway near Fiftieth Street, where he had left the automobile. He had taken the precaution to lock the car, and when he threw open the door, diamonds and money were found on the seat.

"It's no joke about the value of these things," Miss Mayhew said when they were returned to her. "There were seven rings besides my wedding ring, and that diamond heart is worth about $1,500. I know it brings $600 when you pawn it. One of those rings is worth $600 and another is worth $1,000 when you count all the stones. There are a couple of pawn tickets I bought that are worth a thousand easy. That big diamond horseshoe is worth a lot of money, too, though I never had it valued."

Then Miss Mayhew stuck her hand in the bag again and drew out an envelope. "Here's one thing I wish they had stolen," she said. "Any one can have it and welcome. The envelope contained a bill for a pink and blue bathing suit and wrapper, and it read:

"Miss Mayhew, debtor, $65.75."

BOY DIES PISTOL BY SIDE.

Mother Returns from Shopping to Find Youngster Wounded on Floor.

Mrs. Madeline McCullagh of 343 East 122d Street, on her return home from shopping at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, found her 11-year-old son Harry on the floor, dying of a bullet wound. Patrolman Dillon, who answered the mother's cries for assistance, called Dr. Arjona of Harlem Hospital, but the boy died without regaining consciousness.

Dillon found a pearly-handled revolver containing a single discharged cartridge at the boy's side. Suspecting a possible violation of the Sullivan law, since neither Mrs. McCullagh nor her husband, Alfred McCullagh, an insurance investigator, had a pistol permit, the police questioned both of them. McCullagh was summoned to the station. Both he and his wife denied ever having seen the revolver before, and insisted that they did not know how it came into their son's possession.

Mrs. McCullagh said her son had suffered from a sore throat for two days and had remained at home. The police after inquiring into all the circumstances, said that the shooting was accidental.

HEDGES FOR CONVENTION.

Suggests Unofficial State Meeting Before the Primaries.

Job E. Hedges enlivened the meeting of the Republican County Committee at the Murray Hill Lyceum last night by coming out strongly in favor of an unofficial State Convention before the primaries. He argued that this would be an aid in throwing off the power of the bosses and would be the means of emancipating the ordinary voter. His speech was well received, but caused a good deal of discussion, as it is known that the friends of District Attorney Whitman, who are supporting him for the nomination for Governor, are opposed to any such ideas. They believe that as free a primary as possible will be to the advantage of their candidate, and want no State Convention, official or unofficial.

$10,000 BAIL FOR MOTORIST.

Insurance Broker Charged with Homicide Sent to Cell:

Thomas M. Sweeney, an insurance broker, of 34 St. Nicholas Avenue, was committed to the Tombs by Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions yesterday in default of $10,000 bail. It is alleged Sweeney was driving an automobile that killed Edward E. Jones of Port Washington, L. I., on Oct. 4, 1913.

The police charged before the Grand Jury that Sweeney was running 40 miles an hour and that a bottle of liquor was found in his pocket after the accident.

Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith asked that bail be fixed at $25,000 on the homicide indictment which the Grand Jury returned.

J. B. Duke's Nephew Acquitted.

SEATTLE, March 19.—Laurence Duke, nephew of James B. Duke, was found not guilty to-day of the charge of manslaughter, made after his automobile killed Henry N. Farr south of Seattle on Oct. 15. The State alleged that Duke was intoxicated and reckless in handling his car.

FRANK CASE EASY, BURNS ASSERTS

Real Criminal's Process Apparent Throughout the Murder Mystery, He Says.

HIS EVIDENCE FOR DORSEY

Solicitor General Declines to State Whether He Will Co-operate—Sheriff Gets Death Warrant.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 19.—"The slayer of Mary Phagan was a criminal of rank type," said Detective William J. Burns this afternoon. "Furthermore, I see my way perfectly clear to point my finger at the guilty man. It is a simple matter. My investigation has been an easy one, and is growing easier as it progresses. It has merely meant the following of the trend of the criminal mind. This process, to a man of long experience with criminals, is no difficult matter.

"Throughout this murder there can plainly be seen the thread of the criminal's process. It is a simple thing to detect—simple, I mean, in a sane and normal investigation after the hysterics that always follow such a crime have died away. In all the various phases of the case the stamp of a crime-saturated mentality is indelibly shown. Fewer cases upon which I have worked manifested more obviously the criminal turn of mind of the perpetrator. And I can say this much: I am perfectly satisfied with results. I am utterly confident of success, and there is positively no doubt in my mind that I will soon be able to point conclusively at the slayer of Mary Phagan. In fact the detection of the murderer of that little girl is a matter so simple that, really, there was no use at all in bringing me to Atlanta to work on it.

"Will Deserve No Credit."

"It is so obvious that when it finally is revealed to the public none of my men nor I will deserve one whit of credit for having solved the mystery. As I said before, it is purely a matter of tracing the course of a criminal mind."

Mr. Burns was asked when he intended conferring with Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey and with the detectives at Police Headquarters.

"When I am near the finishing point," he answered, "I will turn my data over to him, and he may act as he sees fit."

Mr. Burns expressed the opinion that the Solicitor General had been misled.

"But it was by private detectives," he declared. "The average private detective is one of the most diabolical evils with which we have to contend. If we take it for granted that he was misled in the Frank case I firmly believe he is the kind of man who will set about at once to rectify the wrong he has done.

"Dorsey was furnished with substance that tended conclusively to show that Frank was guilty. He did not collect that substance. It was collected by others and put in his hands. But he wouldn't be fooled twice. He is a man of extraordinary brilliance and intellect, and therefore I do not feel that he will fail to co-operate with me in my investigation. When I have reached the final stages, I am going to submit my report to him and let him go over my findings with a fine tooth comb, as thoroughly as he pleases. He will be convinced—I have no doubt of that—and through him I will get in touch with the detective department down at Police Headquarters. But I will have nothing to do with private detectives who worked on the case. I never smudge my hands with them."

The attitude of Solicitor Dorsey toward the Burns investigation still remains a mystery. He will have nothing whatever to say for publication. He was asked the question point-blank:

"Will you co-operate with Burns?"

"I don't care to talk of the subject," was his answer.

"Will you refuse co-operation?"

"I won't say one way or the other."

Will See Conley When He Wants To

Burns scoffed at the idea that Jim Conley's lawyer or any one else could prevent him from seeing the negro when he decided the time had come to interview the self-confessed accessory of Leo M. Frank in the slaying of Mary Phagan.

"Conley has been tried, convicted, and sentenced," said Burns. "The idea that any one can keep me from seeing him is absurd. I am going to see Conley. The time has not arrived yet when the best results would be obtained in any talk with him, but when it does neither Mr. Smith nor any one else will stop me."

The attention of the detective was called to meager testimony at the trial about the staple on the rear door of the pencil factory basement which was pried loose from the inside.

"Don't worry about that," said Burns, "we will show you the facts in regard to the staple when the proper time comes."

Apparently the detective has obtained new information on this point. At the trial, James Conley, who admitted carrying the body of the girl to the basement, disclaimed any knowledge of the staple, which had been pulled from the back door in order that a person might leave the building by that door without having the key.

Mr. Burns verified the report that he has summoned Dan Lehon, manager of his New Orleans office, to Atlanta. Burns has said he considers Lehon one of the best detectives in the country.

Interesting in connection with Burns's work on the case was the receipt by the Sheriff at the Tower to-day of Frank's death warrant—the order of Judge Hill of the Criminal Division of the Superior Court for Sheriff Mangum to execute the prisoner on April 17.

Reuben R. Arnold of the Frank defense, who appeared before the United States Supreme Court in Washington Wednesday, has gone to New York City. This fact has given credence to the report that an important point in the case has been developed in New York by the defense. Only a week ago Luther Z. Rosser, senior counsel for Frank, and Herbert Haas, one of the associate counsel, were in New York. Burns himself is said to have investigated several points in connection with the Atlanta case when he was in New York last week.

Meanwhile the demand that Frank be given a new trial continues to grow. The Atlanta newspapers are flooded with letters from prominent men and women from all parts of Georgia urging that a new trial be granted. Many of these letters are from lawyers, who say that no such trial as that of Frank was ever before held in a Georgia court.

Melville L. Covington, parole officer at the Atlanta Federal Prison, expressed himself as follows:

"I have been engaged in the prosecution of crime and in the handling of criminals for more than ten years and I have never before known or heard of a case being tried under such conditions and the verdict allowed to stand. I do not wish to be understood as criticizing the courts, but I must say that at the time this man was tried the public mind was so inflamed that it was an impossibility to correctly weigh testimony in order to arrive at the truth. It would, I think, be folly upon the part of any one to insist that this feeling did not enter the court room and even pass through the keyhole into the jury room."

IDENTIFIES MRS. HEVENOR.

Divorce Witness Tells of Raid on Room in Hotel Nassau.

A small, cheap black bag figured prominently yesterday in the suit for divorce brought by Harvey H. Hevenor, a lumber salesman, against Grace D. Hevenor. The bag was to be opened by George Seaborn, who had been a bellboy at the Navarre Hotel, on Nov. 12, 1913. David M. Neuberger, attorney for Mr. Hevenor, wanted the bag opened, but Frank B. McNish, attorney for Mrs. Hevenor, objected. Justice Giegerich finally said the witness could open the bag.

The bag had been found in Room 330 at the Navarre on the night in November. A man and woman had occupied the room from early in the evening until Mr. Hevenor and several friends routed them out of it. Several employes of the hotel gave descriptions of the man and woman. Mr. Hevenor says the woman was his wife, but she declares she was home on that night, and that she will be able to prove it.

The bag contained an assortment of silver-plated knives, spoons and forks; the torn fragments of a campaign poster, a few portiere weights, a torn underwaist, an empty beer bottle, and one small, dainty handkerchief. On the handkerchief were the initials "G. D. H."

It came out that the man and woman had registered as "F. C. Wells, Chicago."

Monroe W. Tingley, controller of the International Mercantile Marine, who was one of Mr. Hevenor's companions when the raid was made, testified that about 10 o'clock he got a telephone message that Mrs. Hevenor would be at the Navarre Hotel with a man named Wells. Frederick Cypher and Arnold Empey went with him to the hotel with Mr. Hevenor. He told about entering the room and finding a man and a woman there. Asked if he recognized the woman, he pointed at Mrs. Hevenor and replied:

"Yes, she is sitting there."

Mrs. Hevenor looked squarely at him and smiled. The case will be continued to-day.

MISLED BY PARCEL POST.

Bensel Says Public Pays for It in Indirect Taxation.

"The public generally have little or no appreciation of what transportation costs really are," said John A. Bensel, State Engineer and Surveyor, in a lecture at Columbia University last night, "and the best example of that which I can cite is the case of the parcel post. We hear all the time of the success of the parcel post; but as a matter of fact what its introduction has accomplished is the elimination of a well-established method of transportation and the substitution for it of a new and untried method which is a saving merely on the face of it. A deficit of thirty million dollars is saddled upon the taxpayer by the parcel post; but the vagueness and incalculability of such a distributed and indirect tax causes it to be overlooked in connection with the apparent saving in cheap parcel rates."

"Comparative cheapness of transportation by water, railway, and highway was the subject of Mr. Bensel's address. He explained that such comparisons could only be made for a definite locality and a definite article of commerce, but he said that the general proposition that a canal saved from two-thirds to four-fifths the cost of railroad transportation had been established.

"The barge canal in New York," explained Mr. Bensel, "will effect a great saving for the State both in this generation and the next, and is one of the greatest canal construction works in the world. An example of the scope of the work is the flight of five locks at Waterford, embracing in a mile and one half a rise of 169 feet, more than twice the total rise of the Panama Canal from ocean to mountain."

CRITICISMS ANNOY OSBORNE

Graft Investigator Defends His Bi-Partisan Highway Board Plan.

James W. Osborne, who made his report on graft conditions in the State Highways Department to Gov. Glynn on Tuesday and included in his recommendations a plan for a bi-partisan or tri-partisan Board of Highway Commissioners of eight members to serve without compensation, was annoyed yesterday over adverse newspaper comments concerning his plan. Incidentally, he had learned that Gov. Glynn had referred to his plan as "a dream."

The commission plan is Mr. Osborne's pet idea. He called attention in his report to the fact that big private endowments were successfully administered by exactly such a board as he would create for the disbursement of the State's vast sums for highway construction and maintenance.

"I see that my plan has been characterized as a dream," said Mr. Osborne. "Is the School Board a dream? Is the Board of Regents a dream? Every School Board in the State performs its duties without compensation; so does the Board of Regents, and the school system is the one department of State affairs that is administered without politics and of which every one in the State is proud.

"A bi-partisan or tri-partisan board serving without pay and from a sense of duty would be more likely to select an efficient administrative head than if such head were, as now, a political appointee subject to the vicissitudes of political changes. I proposed that the executive head should be an engineer of wide experience. This engineer, and not the Board of Commissioners, would be in charge."

ABC OF ADVERTISING

A. What to advertise. B. The advertising copy. C. Where to advertise. A and B are your problems. C is the problem of reaching the largest number of possible customers at the least expense per customer. This problem is solved by The New York Times. Over 250,000 copies of the Easter Number (Sunday, March 29,) will go into the homes of people of intelligence and refinement; people who have money to spend; people a large number of whom can afford to buy your goods. This Easter Number will contain the first reproduction in color of thirteen old masters; famous paintings from the Altman collection. This edition is sure to be largely over-sold, a fact which gives increased value to each copy. The advertiser can talk through The New York Times, daily or Sunday, to the largest audience of well-to-do newspaper readers in the world.

All of the Looks and Half of the Wear In

Men's Clothing

Comes From Correct Tailoring

Can you tell how much the cloth in your neighbor's Suit cost a yard? Probably not. Very few men know anything about the cost of weaving cloth.

But you—and every other man—can tell whether or not a Suit looks good, whether it holds its shape, whether it gives the money's worth in wear.

Tailoring—careful cutting, proper sponging of the cloth, silk sewed seams, patient and costly work—these or their lack make or unmake the worth of a Suit.

Every Loeser Suit From the Least Price Up Is Well Tailored.

The solid, four-square wearing quality is built in the Suit. It makes it look well even in a ripe old age; it assures you a Suit which will be as happy after two months' wear as on the day you bought it.

Remember that the appearance of such tailoring can be imitated by expert use of a hot iron and a damp cloth. But pressed-in tailoring does not last; Loeser built-in tailoring does.

The most inexpensive Suits and Overcoats we sell have this kind of tailoring in them. The new Spring styles are ready.

Spring Suits for men $15 to $35; for Young Men $12.50 to $25 Spring Overcoats $15 to $30

Men's $1.50 & $2 Shirts Selling Fast at 69c.

Additional shipments will be in to-day to keep the range of seventy-five different color patterns complete. All Loeser "Large Body" Shirts; roomy, comfortable; wide cuffs either stiff or soft; square shoulders; medium and extra length sleeves. Materials are the same as used in many of the best $1.50 and $2 Shirts and tailoring is of the very best. A value unmatched here in several years.

New Hats for Women and Their New Names.

Watteau's dainty ladies furnish the inspiration for the Dolly Varden, the Shepherdess and the Watteau Hats. The Empress Josephine gives her name to a quaint poke, reproducing the First Empire style. The Tepee or Wigwam is from an obvious source, as is also the Swallow. La Volante is a toque with two wings spread in flying. Niniche is a pointed toque; the Eiffel is trimmed very high in front; the Bishop is a mitre shape; the Envelope Hat takes its title from the turned-over flaps.

All of these Hats, the creations of the greatest milliners of Paris, are represented now in the Loeser Millinery Salon. YOUR hat is here. Have you seen it?

Tunics, Coats, Coatees, Jackets.

Remainders of our latest importations. These are in every style now fashionable in Paris and are the best work of French and German makers. Embroidered or beaded by hand in designs suggestive of the Orient as well as conventional and floral patterns. Essential for the modish appearance of evening gowns and remarkable values at the present small prices. $3.98 to $20 for values $8.50 to $35.

Clearance In The Blanket Store.

A lot of Bedspreads in plain hemmed, crocheted styles; full sizes are now 89c, regular $1.25 values. Bedspreads of $2.50 quality are $2 and those of $3 grade $2.50. High-grade imported Satin Bedspreads, one and two of a kind, some with plain hems and other scalloped and fringed, $6 to $10 values for $4 to $8. Fine California Wool Blankets, 80x90, are $25 a pair; good $30 values. Auto Robes of fine kersey cloth in lines which we are closing out, $20 and $22 values, $10 and $11.

PROF. G. MERCALLI BURNED TO DEATH

Famous Director of Vesuvian Observatory Upsets Oil Lamp Upon Himself.

ALONE IN HIS APARTMENTS

Tragedy Discovered When the House Catches Fire — Had Written 150 Works.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

MILAN, March 19.—Prof. Giuseppe Mercalli, the world-renowned authority on volcanic and seismic phenomena and Director of the Vesuvian Observatory, met his death in a shocking manner this morning, being burned alive through the overturning of a paraffin lamp in his bedroom.

The scientist was quite alone at his residence in Naples, and, following his custom, evidently had been working far into the night. The petrol flowed over his night dress, and in desperate efforts to stifle the flames by wrapping himself around with a blanket he was thwarted by the asphyxiating fumes rendering him unconscious. He fell beside the bed, where his body was found completely carbonized.

Toward 8 o'clock the concierge noticed flames bursting through the apartment, and on summoning the fire brigade, the tragedy was discovered.

Prof. Mercalli, who was 64 years of age, was a Milanese by birth. He became a priest in the Roman Catholic Church, and subsequently was appointed Professor of Natural Sciences at the Seminary of Milan. Suspected of liberalism, he was deprived of his professorial chair for openly subscribing to the national monument in honor of the great priest-philosopher, Antonio Rosmia.

The Italian Government thereupon conferred upon him a professorship at Domodossia, and late at Reggio di Calabria and Naples, where he succeeded Prof. Matteucci.

The deceased scientist was the author of no fewer than 150 publications relating to the mysterious phenomena to the tsudy of which he devoted his life. His works have been translated into twenty-eight languages. He was also the inventor of the famous Mercalli scale for calculating force in degrees of earthquake shocks.

Prof. Mercalli never abandoned the simplicity of living to which he was accustomed during his ecclesiastical career, and until his death he habitually donned the garb of an Anglican clergyman. So absorbed was he in his favorite studies that when at 11 o'clock one morning the Naples University authorities went to ascertain if he was coming to preside over an examination then due, they found him engrossed in study, with his shutters fast closed and the room brilliantly lighted by gas. He had toiled right through the night.

"Why!" exclaimed the amazed devotee of science, "you are joking. It surely can't be daylight yet!"

POPE CELEBRATES NAME DAY

He Receives Many Visitors—Dictates Replies to Telegrams.

ROME, March 19.—"This is a salute for my name day," exclaimed Pope Pius when he was awakened early to-day by a terrific storm accompanied by vivid flashes of lightning and loud peals of thunder.

His Holiness shortly afterward celebrated mass in the presence of several specially invited guests, including his sisters and a niece. After the mass his two sisters, who reside in Rome, and his niece, Signorina Parolin, daughter of another sister, were received by the Pope in his private apartments, where they stayed to breakfast.

Audiences then began and a fatiguing day's work for the Pontiff ensued, although every function was cut to as brief a period as possible. He had already received the congratulations of the Sacred College yesterday, but a few of the Cardinals returned to renew them to-day. The Pope also greeted the members of his household and received a delegation from the Club of St. Peter, which presented to him a basket of fruit and flowers, the traditional gift on this occasion.

All the corps of guards celebrated the occasion in some way—either by illuminating their quarters or giving a display of fireworks, while, during the changing of the guard, the bands played and the colors of the various companies were unfurled.

Hundreds of telegrams and addresses of congratulation were received at the Vatican from all parts of the world, many of them coming from the United States. The Pope himself dictated the replies in several cases. His Holiness appeared to be in excellent spirits.

SUNK BY GERMAN LINER.

Schooner Sent to Bottom with Crew by Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse.

BREMEN, March 19.—An unknown three-masted schooner was sunk and all her crew were drowned through a collision last night in the North Sea with the North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse.

The steamer remained in the vicinity for two hours, but could not discover any trace of the schooner's crew, and she then resumed her voyage to America.

The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse left Bremen yesterday on her first trip since her reconstruction as a third-class and steerage passenger vessel. The Captain sent the news of the collision in a wireless message to the company here.

British Army Airman Killed.

SALISBURY, March 19.—Another officer of the Royal Flying Corps of the British Army was killed here to-day. Lieut. H. F. Treeby of the Duke of Wellington's West Riding Regiment was flying in a biplane over the army aviation grounds when the machine sideslipped and fell to earth from a height of 250 feet.

Lieut. Treeby was the thirty-sixth British Army airman to lose his life since the beginning of flying and the fifth to be killed this year. Of the four previous deaths this year, three of the men, like Lieut. Treeby, were killed while flying at Salisbury Plain. The fatality yesterday brings the known list of aeroplane accidents up to 376.

PEOPLE'S TRUST CO. PLAN.

Four Banks Interested in Workers' Investment Institution.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, March 19.—It is now announced that the four banks interested in the People's Trust Company are Glyn, Mills, Currie & Co., the London County and Westminster Bank, the London Joint Stock Bank, and the Union of London and Smith's Bank. Its object is to allow the working classes an opportunity of participating in colonial and foreign loans, home and foreign railways, and other similar investments through the medium of the trust company.

The wealthier classes of investors find it profitable to hold shares of existing trust and investment companies which distribute their capital over a wide section of undertakings, and thus avoid undue risks. It is proposed to apply this principle to the small investor.

Irredeemable debentures in bearer bonds of £10, £50, and £100 will be issued. They will form a security easy to sell or to negotiate in the four banks concerned, which have undertaken to facilitate dealings in them.

BANK OF ENGLAND DIVIDEND.

Rise to Ten Per Cent. Per Annum Takes City by Surprise.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, March 19.—An advance in the Bank of England, dividend announced to-day greatly surprised the City. It was not generally expected, and the secret had been well kept. For many years past the dividend has been at the rate of 9 per cent. per annum, free of tax, but it has now been raised to 10 per cent. per annum, subject to deduction of the income tax.

During the last half year the bank has been able to take advantage of favorable conditions. Profits amounted to £681,000, compared with £654,000 a year ago, and after providing for increased distribution the "rest" will stand at £3,016,000, against £3,020,000 a year ago. The price of the bank stock rose 2 per cent. to-day.

This increase may not unreasonably be regarded as a most rassuring sign of how hopefully the future is regarded in highest financial circles.

KAISER'S PLANS CHANGED.

Mystery in Regard to the Abandonment of His Trip to Brunswick.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 19.—The following is the text of an order issued to the garrison of Berlin yesterday by the Kaiser as soon as the news of the birth of a hereditary Prince of Brunswick reached him:

> My daughter has to-day had her first son. Praise God, all is well! Let all barracks be flagged. Sentries will put on parade uniforms at noon. From noon the troops shall be freed from service. The garrison will go out in helmets.

Some mystery prevails in regard to the sudden abandonment of the Kaiser's projected "visit of inspection" to his newest grandson at Brunswick to-day. Instead of this, the Kaiserin returned to Berlin in the afternoon in order personally to report to her husband the Ducal baby's arrival. She went back to Brunswick to-night.

In some quarters the Emperor's change of mind is attributed to the terms in which the official organ of the Guelphs in Hanover, the Deutsche Volks Zeitung, welcomes the arrival of the "Cumberland heir." "Every Hanoverian worthy of the name," says the journal, "thanks God for this sacred hour. A wealth of aspiration is pinned on this new-born child—wishes for the continued development and prosperity of the glorious Guelph dynasty and hopes for the future of our Hanoverian nation and country."

$1,000,000 GIFT TO LOUVRE.

Marchioness Arconati-Visconti Presents Collections to It.

PARIS, March 19.—The Marchioness Arconati-Visconti has presented to the Louvre her entire collections of paintings, porcelains, furniture, and other art objects, chiefly of the French and Italian Renaissance periods, according to an announcement made by the Minister of Education at a Cabinet Council to-day.

The value of the gift is estimated at $1,000,000.

The Marchioness in April, 1912, presented to the United States National Museum the armchair of the Marquis of Lafayette.

Dog Suffocates Child Asleep.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, March 19.—With a pet dog lying across his face, the 12-months-old son of Dr. Manden of Chalford, Gloucester, was found ead toford, Gloucester, was found dead tobed, and in her absence the dog jumped up, and, falling asleep on the child, suffocated him.

M. MONIS QUITS FRENCH CABINET

Withdrawal Said to be Permanent—Resigns His Post Under Pressure.

CALMETTE FUNERAL TO-DAY

Authorities Take Precautions—Labori Tells Mme. Caillaux to Throw Herself on Court's Mercy.

PARIS, March 19.—French public opinion continues to be deeply occupied with the murder of M. Calmette, the editor of the Figaro, by Mme. Caillaux, and the resulting political agitation, although interest was less outwardly manifested to-day. The general interest of the pleasure-loving Parisians was centred in the Mi-Carême parade, of which confetti battles in the boulevards were a feature.

A few excited students in Paris and Versailles attempted demonstrations against M. Caillaux, but the police had no difficulty in dispersing them.

The principal development of the day was the resignation of Ernest Monis from the Ministry of Marine, and it is understood that his withdrawal from the Cabinet will be permanent, not temporary, as was at first expected, whatever may be the finding of the investigating committee.

Various names were mentioned in the lobbies of the Chamber for the post of Minister of Marine, but Premier Doumergue has decided to take no action for the present. For the present M. Lebrun, Colonial Minister, will also act as Minister of Marine.

While some kind of a demonstration by the anti-Republicans is certain to be attempted at the funeral of M. Calmette to-morrow, the police authorities do not anticipate serious trouble. Nevertheless, M. Hennion, the Prefect of Paris, has made extensive preparations to preserve order.

The Saint Lazare Prison, where Mme. Caillaux occupies a cell, was again the object of interest to-day on the part of many hundreds of persons. Mme. Caillaux, it is said, is beginning to show the effects of her imprisonment. Her young daughter, by an earlier marriage, Juliette Claretie, is allowed to visit her daily. Her husband and her attorney, Maitre Labori, called on her this afternoon and found her in a very depressed and nervous state. She discussed her case with M. Labori, in preparation for her first appearance before the Examining Magistrate next week.

M. Labori informed Mme. Caillaux, it is said, that she had no alternative but to throw herself on the mercy of the Court, and that in her defense he could not make any reflections on M. Calmette. In fact, he explained, it was only on this condition that he agreed to undertake her defence, and he had made this plain to both the family of his late friend, M. Calmette, and M. Caillaux.

The ex-Minister of Finance said he understood M. Labori's attitude perfectly, and approved of it, adding:

"I have asked you only to defend my wife; I do not want you to attack M. Calmette."

M. Monis appears to have withdrawn from the Cabinet reluctantly, and only after several of his colleagues had intimated that he must resign or that they would do so. He has been summoned to appear before the Committee of Inquiry appointed by the Chamber of Deputies for examination to-morrow. On that day M. Caillaux, M. Fabre, (the Public Prosecutor,) and M. Bidault de l'Isle, (President of the Court of Appeals,) will also go before the committee that is inquiring into the Rochette scandal.

Maurice Barrès, the Academician and novelist, who is regarded as one of the leaders of the new spirit in France, is among those added to the Rochette committee. The committee has decided to meet twice daily. The revelations, it is said in parliamentary circles, may deeply affect the elections, which are to be held on April 26.

The Senatorial Committee, under the Presidency of M. Ribot, to which the Chamber's bill to confer full judicial powers on the Rochette Investigating Committee was referred, took the matter under consideration to-day. Senator Richard considered that full judicial powers were not warranted, and proposed an amendment giving the committee power to punish witnesses who either refused to appear or take oath, and providing for punishment of from two to five years' imprisonment and a fine for those bearing false witness or suborning witnesses before the committee.

It is understood that the Government will accept the amendment and that the bill will pass the Senate to-morrow.

The Petit Journal says that, according to several persons who claim to be well informed, Mme. Caillaux on the morning of the tragedy had an engagement with a dentist, to whom she said: "Do everything necessary to put my teeth in the best of condition, because I shall not be able to see you again for a long time."

The Figaro comments with extreme bitterness on the treatment of Mme. Caillaux in the Saint Lazare prison, and compares the exceptional privileges and comforts accorded to her with the treatment of the other prisoners.

The paper says Mme. Caillaux complained o fthe cold, and a stove was immediately installed in her cell. The adjoining cell has been fitted up as a reception room, and the prisoner is allowed to have long private conferences with her husband, during which every opportunity is afforded to her to build up a plan of defense, which will be, according to the paper, that she acted in a moment of temporary insanity without premeditation.

"But," adds the Figaro, "we will be able to demolish this. We know that a colleague of M. Caillaux made the statement in a restaurant on Tuesday before several persons that Mme. Caillaux had announced on Monday morning her intention to kill M. Calmette. Further witnesses will be called to prove that Mme. Caillaux practiced in the shooting range of a well-known gunmaker in the Champs Elysées quarter."

PARIS, Friday, March 20.—An appeal to the people of Paris is published in The Figaro this morning by the members of the family of the late M. Calmette.

The people are asked to abstain from any sort of manifestation likely to disturb the dignity of the funeral. The hope is expressed that in the presence of a great sorrow all parties will sink their differences in common respect.

Deep gratitude is also expressed for the universal evidence of public sympathy.

CHECK BRITISH GAMBLERS.

Geneva Authorities Prohibit Sweepstakes Drawings There.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, March 20.—As a result of the English anti-gambling laws forbidding public sweepstakes, many English bookmaking firms established offices in Switzerland, from which country during the last few years they have conducted through the Post Office an extensive business with their English clients, running into many millions of dollars yearly. The anti-gamblers have made many efforts to put an end to the methods by which these bookmakers circumvent the English laws, and the Post Office on several occasions has attempted with little success to prevent them from using the mails.

It seems at last that the Swiss authorities have been induced to act in the matter. A Geneva dispatch says the Department of Justice and the police have prohibited English sweepstakes drawings. Yesterday fifteen promoters of such sweepstakes hastily summoned a meeting to protest against this decision, and later petitioned the President and State Council to remove the embargo. The State Council will decide the matter to-morrow. The prohibition applies only to the Canton of Geneva, but the question will later come before Parliament.

Drawings were to be made to-morrow in sweepstakes on two English races for which more than $500,000 have been received during the last two weeks from bettors in England.

GET-RICH-QUICK AIRMEN.

British Fliers Make $350 an Hour from Passengers.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, March 19.—Airmen who are taking passengers for flights are in the way of making speedy fortunes.

Gustav Hamel, who regularly loops the loop with a passenger at a fee of $250, is probably the most prosperous. To-day he performed the feat nearly forty times, taking four passengers, including two men and two women. Hitherto in England only women have ventured as passengers on looping flights.

Three of Hamel's passengers to-day were Prince Paul of Servia, Miss Trehawke Davies, and Mrs. Hart Davies. One of his male passengers carried up with him two little black pigs.

The present recognized charge for cross-country flying is 15 shillings ($3.75) a mile for return journeys, and £1 a mile for single outward journeys. An airman can travel with ease more than a mile a minute, and under favorable conditions on a cross-country journey can earn $350 in an hour.

At the Hendon aerodrome on an average, sixty passengers are taken up on a fine Sunday afternoon. Their fees amount to something approaching $1,000.

Slenczynski to be Extradited.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, March 19.—The Polish violinist, Slenczynski, who has been in custody here for some weeks on a charge of grand larceny, preferred by a New Yorker, will be put on board the Philadelphia at Cherbourg on Saturday for extradition to America.

$5,000,000 IN RARE BOOKS.

Value of Treasures Sent Here from England in Five Years.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, March 20.—The sale of a portion of the Duke of Devonshire's library is drawing attention to the steadily increasing drain on English collections, which has been going on for several years. It is estimated that the value of rare volumes sent to the United States in the last five years is little short of $5,000,000.

"I regret the passing of English libraries to America," said the manager at Quaritch's yesterday. "Americans generally have a finer appreciation of old books than Englishmen.

"The death duties may have much to do with the break-up of important libraries, as a library is the first thing to be dispensed with. A man will usually try to keep his picture gallery intact, and if his books realize the amount necessary his pictures are saved; if they do not, the pictures follow the books.

"From my knowledge of the books sold by the Duke of Devonshire, I do not regard the price paid as excessive."

The Times in an editorial article on the Chatsworth Caxtons finds no reason to lament their transfer to America. It says:

"Caxton's books have no spiritual value, neither have they, however rare and well preserved, even when they are unique, any value as works of art comparable with that of great pictures. When a Rembrandt perishes by fire the world is spiritually poorer for its loss, but by the destruction of a library of Caxtons the world, after all, loses little beyond rarity.

"When a number of Caxtons are merely transported from one side of the globe to the other, no one has lost anything.

"We think, therefore, the public may condone the act of the Duke in selling, and the policy of the Chancellor of the Exchequer in forcing him to sell, his ancestral treasures in the shape of the works of the first English printer."

A $7,000 BOOKBINDING.

Splendid Work, Just Finished in London, Coming to America.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, March 19.—A magnificent specimen of modern English bookbinding, valued at $7,000 and destined for America, is about to be exhibited in London by Sangorski & Sutcliffe.

The book is an illuminated manuscript of Keats's Poems, just completed after two years' work. It is illustrated with original watercolors and bound in morocco, elaborately gold tooled, inlaid with over 4,000 pieces of colored leather, and set with over 1,000 precious stones.

This is the most elaborate specimen of binding undertaken by the firm since its jeweled "Omar Khayyam," lost in the Titanic disaster with its owner, George Widener.

IOWA'S BILLIONS HYMNED IN HOUSE

A Billion in Land, a Billion of Eggs, and Other Assets of a State Bulging with Riches.

VOLLMER'S FIRST SPEECH

Astonished Congressmen Hear of Village "Millionaires' Rows" Inhabited by Retired Farmers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Andrew Vollmer, a member of Congress, who was seated only a few weeks ago in succession to the late Representative Pepper of Iowa, made his oratorical début in the House to-day. For nearly an hour he paid his tribute to the Iowa prairies, eulogized the Iowa hen, and pictured the Iowa farmer as "bulging with riches."

For Iowa he claimed "nothing less than unquestioned supremacy in this proud sisterhood of States as the greatest farming State in the Union." He said he was amazed "on coming here" to "be forced to listen to obituaries on the farmer by standpat Republican orators, shedding crocodile tears because of his moribund condition," and to have to listen to statements that "conditions in that industry are so bad out there where I come from that the Agricultural Appropriation bill must be passed, forsooth, as first aid for wounded industries and 'red cross for the dead.'

"Under the hypnotic spell cast upon me by these woful Jeremiahs of calamity," exclaimed Mr. Vollmer, "I began to see things. Under the influence of this oratorical dope I saw the great farming industry of my section give up the ghost, which thereupon proceeded to cross the River Styx in a goodly company of other industrial shades, all howling to the moon about the wholesale murder perpetrated upon them by the Democratic Congress in its recent tariff legislation."

According to Mr. Vollmer, the farmers of Iowa are rolling in prosperity. In his own county land values nave risen from $50 to $250 an acre, and are still rising.

"There is not a town of any size in the Middle West," said the new member, "which has not its quota of retired farmers, who have grown wealthy by reason of increase in value of lands. In my home town of 200 people we have one street on which the residents are mostly of this class. The people call it 'Millionaire Road.' In that town of 200 people are 77 registered and licensed automobiles. In the savings banks of my town are $30,000,000 of deposits, mostly farmers' money."

The eyes of veteran city members fairly bulged as Mr. Vollmer regaled them with his account of the Croesus farmers of the prairie region, telling how Iowa farmers had ceased to be borrowers and were loaning out millions on mortgages, while one farmer, during the panic of 1907, loaned a big manufacturing corporation at Davenport $50,000 cash after the banks had shut down on loans.

"The Iowa farmer," shouted Mr. Vollmer, "is the most prosperous, free, and independent citizen on the face of the earth. The farmer has not been hurt up to date. The daily quotations of corn for February, 1914, under the Democratic tariff, average 13 cents a bushel higher than the quotations for the corresponding month of 1913 under the Republican tariff. The daily quotations on wheat last month average 3 cents a bushel higher than under the Republican law in February, 1913. Daily quotations on hogs last month averaged 45 cents per hundredweight higher than those of February, 1913. Daily quotations on cattle averaged 18 cents per hundredweight higher in February than a year ago. Daily quotations on eggs last month averaged 9 cents a dozen higher than quotations for February, 1913.

"Since Iowa annually produces 97,549,731 dozen eggs, 'this little item of eggs,' an increase of 9 cents a dozen, according to the quotations, means $8,000,000 more in the pockets of the 'downtrodden, poverty-stricken' farmers of my State. 'Here's to the Iowa hen. Her son never sets.'

"We have become a billion-dollar State in farm values. The old song, 'The Bogey Man Will Git You if You Don't Watch Out' is being dinned into the farmers' ears. The first bogey is Argentine corn. Have you seen it? Compared with our Iowa corn, it is a measly, scrawny article, like popcorn, and full of bugs. All the imports of Argentine corn for a year would not furnish a morning breakfast for the hogs of Iowa. All the importation of Chinese eggs would not furnish a nestegg apiece for the hens of my State. I have traveled all through Central and South America. The Latin American is not yet born who can compete with the Iowa farmer in raising corn," concluded Representative Vollmer.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The resolution proposing Government ownership of Monticello, Thomas Jefferson's Virginia home, either by purchase or condemnation, was favorably reported to-day by the Senate Lands Committee.

GOETHALS TO SAIL TO-DAY.

Leaves Washington on his Way to Assume Canal Governorship.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Col. George W. Goethals left Washington to-night and will sail from New York to-morrow for Colon, where on April 1 he will assume his new title and office of Governor of the Panama Canal.

Before leaving Col. Goethals had a conference with Secretary Garrison and received the latter's approval of the men selected to head the branches of the permanent Government on the Isthmus. Salaries of the officers also were fixed.

Lieut. Col. William V. Judson, United States Engineers, who has been serving as one of the Canal Commissioners, has asked to be relieved from duty on the Isthmus. His request will be granted.

RUNAWAY GIRL ARRESTED.

Marie Stropper Detained Here at Request of Chicago Police.

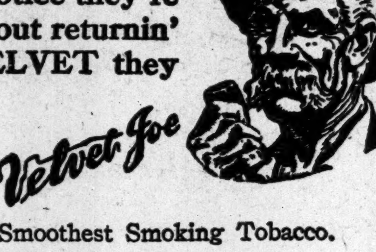
Marie Stropper, 19 years old, who lives at 2,043 North Tripp Avenue, Chicago, was arrested early last night at Twenty-eighth Street and Fourth Avenue and locked up in the West Thirtieth Street station, charged with being a fugitive from justice.

Miss Stropper left Chicago on Feb. 16 and, she says, ran away to New York to join a theatrical company. Since, she said, she has been with the company in New Jersey.

The Chicago police telegraphed for her arrest, saying that she was wanted in connection with the disappearance of $500 belonging to her mother, Mrs. Barbara Stropper. The young woman denied any knowledge of the loss of the money.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 19.—Miss Marie Stropper is a well-known North Side elocutionist and a clerk in the office of her father, William Stropper, who is President of the Star Plating Company. He refused to discuss the disappearance of his daughter further than to say that Feb. 15 he sent her from his office to attend to business for him and she did not return. He also said that no warrant had been issued for his daughter's arrest.



TH' feller that hollers loudest about th' duty o' citizinship is usually first to dodge payin' his income tax. Some folks hez a good deal t' say about "give an' take" an' "live and let live," but I notice they're kinda slow about returnin' any of the VELVET they borrow.

INDIANA DEMOCRATS HEED WILSON'S WISH

Adopt Statewide Primary Plank in Convention, but Many Are Resentful.

MAYOR BELL DENOUNCES IT

Platform Favors Labor Dispute Arbitration and Rigid Enforcement of the Liquor Law.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 19.—Indiana Democrats in the State Convention here to-day, heeding the wishes of President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, declared in favor of a Statewide direct primary law when they adopted, unanimously, the platform presented by the Committee on Resolutions, containing a plank indorsing the plan. The primary section was written into the platform after an all-night session, during which Senators Shively and Kern urged the members of the committee to include approval of the primary system in the document. The plank was approved by a vote of 7 to 6.

Previous to the adoption of the platform Senator John W. Kern was selected permanent Chairman.

The Committee on Rules recommended that as Senator B. F. Shively was unopposed for renomination he be made the party's nominee. The report was adopted unanimously.

Moses B. Lairy of Logansport was nominated as candidate for Judge of the Supreme Court; Frank M. Powers, Joseph Ibach, F. S. Caldwell, Edward W. Felt, and Milton B. Hottel were nominated for Judges of the Appellate Court; Homer L. Cook of Indianapolis was selected to make the race for Secretary of State, Dale Crittenberger for Auditor of State, and Charles A. Greathouse as candidate for Superintendent of Public Instruction.

After the platform had been completed, members of the committee expressed resentment over the actions of Senators Shively and Kern and members of Congress who appeared before the committee and urged the adoption of the primary plank.

Mayor Joseph E. Bell of Indianapolis, Chairman of the committee, declared only one out of the thirteen members of the committee favored the primary feature, and that it had been adopted only after the Senators and Congressmen had made a plea that if such a plank were not included, it would be a reflection on President Wilson's policies. He said that the members of the committee instead of being constructive for the party, had become its pallbearers, for, he declared, without the convention system, the party's organization would go to pieces.

Speaking for the committee, Mayor Bell also asserted that members of the committee had expressed their opinion that President Wilson and Secretary Bryan had not written the letters indorsing the State-wide primary to Senator Kern voluntarily, but had been asked to do so.

In addition to the primary plank the platform puts the party on record as favoring an arbitration act similar to the Erdman law and a demand for a rigid enforcement of the liquor laws. It heartily commends "the untiring zeal and ceaseless labors of President Wilson, Vice President Marshall, and the Democratic members of Congress in both the Senate and the House for the prompt and faithful manner in which they redeemed the solemn pledges made by the party to the people in the Baltimore platform of 1912," and attributes the present financial embarrassment of the State to the previous "extended rule of Republican extravagence and maladministration."

The Value of a Smile

Institutions, as well as people, are fortunate, that possess a pleasant countenance. A smile is catching and easy to cultivate.

GIMBELS is a store with a smile.

Broad, spacious aisles—with no twists or turns to perplex.

Plenty of light—bright daylight, which streams in from three sides, and thousands of electric lights, to let people see what they are buying.

Thirty-two passenger elevators and wide, frequent staircases, to make communication easy from floor to floor.

Service that is cheerful, courteous—and the subject of continual study, to make it still better.

A delivery system (by motor exclusively) which is acknowledged by experts to be the most efficient in the city.

These form the essential groundwork for the agreeable presentation of which enrich and beautify every one of the building's ten great selling floors of nearly two acres each—the result of incessant search by our merchandise experts abroad and at home, and the help of the fine GIMBEL Foreign Organization, with its permanent offices in Paris, Berlin and London.

These are radiantly interesting days in this fine modern store—please use their opportunities to the full, to see the new Spring things.

The GIMBEL Spring Fashion Display for Men

Now Fully Ready—Accept Our Cordial Invitation to See It

Winter's last official day finds the Gimbel Men's Clothing Store ready for Spring.

More completely so than ever before—each season we learn our lesson a little better how to cater successfully to the tastes of critical New Yorkers.

America's best wholesale tailors carry out our distinctive ideas as to style, and our instructions as to quality of work. Gimbel Clothing is out of the common run—distinctive, yet dignified; possessing freshness of style, but never freakish.

London, too, sends us its best—see the Top Coats, the rough-weather Overcoats, the Raincoats from English tailors of note.

MORE THACKERAY RELICS TO BE SOLD

Lady Ritchie, the Novelist's Daughter, Puts Four Manuscripts in Sotheby's Hands.

'NOTES FOR FOUR GEORGES'

Collection of 150 Items Sent by Thackeray to E. F. FitzGerald Pasted in Scrapbook.

Lady Anne Ritchie, daughter of William M. Thackeray, has decided to part with more of the famous English novelist's relics, and at Sotheby's in London on April 8, by her order, four interesting manuscripts of her father will be put under the auctioneer's hammer. It will be recalled that Thackeray's manuscript of "The Rose and the Ring," which brought the extraordinary record price of $23,000 at the recent Lambert sale in this city, was said to have been privately sold by Lady Ritchie to Major William H. Lambert for about $13,000.

One of the Thackeray items in the Sotheby sale is "Notes for the Four Georges," a quarto volume lettered thus by the author on the top corner, and consisting of thirteen and a half pages in Thackeray's hand, eighty pages in the handwriting of amanuenses, and six pages of American names and addresses, at the end, a few of which, including that of "Roosevelt, 836 Broadway," are in Thackeray's writing.

Those "Notes" which are not autograph bear the following headings, among others, some of them being in Thackeray's writing: "London Streets 140 Years Ago," "The Queen's Drawing Room," "The Opera," "The Park," "Atterbury," "Lady Suffolk," "Maids of Honour," "Republicanism," "Beau Nash," "Death of Caroline," "Charles II." "Lies in History," "Account of Paul Lewis, Highwayman," "Account of Rice, Executed for Forgery," "Authentic Narrative of a Duel Between Lord Byron and Mr. Chaworth," "Some Account of Benny Carroll and W. King, Lately Executed at Tyburn," and "The Prince of Wales, (George IV.,) Described by Jefferson."

Omitted From Printed Lectures.

Among the autograph "Notes" are the following:

"Transcript of a Monody by Richard West, Esq., (on the Death of Queen Caroline, Wife of George IV.;)" "The Sale of George IV.'s Wardrobe, Which Took Three Waggons to Move from Windsor to London;" "Accounts of Two Successors to Brummell," "The Etiquette of the Queen's Bedchamber," and "The Drinking Habits of the 18th Century." All these passages are omitted from the printed lectures, and many of them are illustrated by entertaining anecdotes of the manners and customs of the period. Of these the following may be quoted:

> I knew a Scotch Judge, famous bon vivant, who was forced to drink water for two months, and, being asked what was the effect of the regimen, owned that he saw the world really as it was for the first time for twenty years.
>
> Mr. Ball Hughes, called the Golden Ball, was a beautiful dresser. His colors were quiet, chiefly black and white, and he was the only man we ever saw who could carry off a white waistcoat in a morning. He was the introduer of the large black-fronted cravate, which helped to set off this otherwise difficult attire. No man, it has been said, is a hero to his valet de chambre, but the illustrous Ball was an exception to this rule, for we heard his valet publicly declare at a table d'hote in a Continental town that he was the handsomest man in the place except his master.

Of the autograph notes, two pages are about manners and events of the latter half of the fourteenth century, no doubt taken for the novel which Thackeray, as he told Motley, intended to write on the reign of Henry V., introducing ancestors of all his imaginary families.

Another of the items is the autograph manuscript of some "Unpublished Novels: a Fragment," four and three-quarter folio pages, in pencil. A third item consists of "Sketches to Illustrate 'A Journey from Cornhill to Cairo,'" about thirty in color or tinted and about forty-five in pencil or pen and ink, with part of the manuscript of "A White Squall," and half a page of pencil notes on the locality assigned to the Holy Sepulchre.

Collection of 150 Items.

The fourth offering is a collection of extraordinary interest. It consists of drawings, fragments of letters, eight plates for "Flore et Zephyr," upward of 150 separate items sent by Thackeray to E. F. FitzGerald, translator of "Omar Khayyam," and four added by Lady Ritchie. They were pasted in a quarto volume by FitzGerald with his book plate and autograph inscription:

> This volume of W. M. Thackeray's drawings, Fragments of Letters, &c., from 1829 to 1850, bequeathed to Annie Thackeray, his Daughter, by his Friend, Edmund FitzGerald, Woodbridge, Dec. 25, 1864.

It is accompanied by a description of its contents written by Lady Ritchie at Chelsea, 1913, from which the following is taken:

> Mr. FitzGerald put this scrapbook together in 1864, a year after my father's death. He gave it to me soon afterward, and I have had it ever since. * * * Mr. FitzGerald was scrupulous, far beyond the present standard, as to the reticence due to ourselves and others. He cut away and destroyed page after page, but he left enough to show what a happy, merry friendship was that of the two young men to begin with, and when trial and great sorrow came for my father, old Fitz's generous hearted sympathy never failed. The little drawings of Sir Roger de Coverly from the "Spectator" belong to that time when they were colored and paid for by this friend to give my father help and some distraction from present troubles. * * * One page is a FitzGerald page. It shows E. F. G. in a celebrated blue coat, which was much admired by his friends at the time. Then in a Weimar court suit. Then, in after life, surrounded by a large and aggressive family. Page 18 describes an imaginary journey to be taken the following year by the friends. "Fancy going to Spain; black eyed Donnas, (observe the — —,) meles and robbers, cigars." The grand climax is a design thus described:
>
> "The mules quietly going down the precipice, the faithful postillion—the miserable Pedro—is lying in his topboots with his face cut in two by Capt. FitzGerald, who is seen in the act of stamping out the wind of one of the banditti, while he is running another through the chin. Hon the right hof the picture Mr. Thackeray is to be hobserved, afte rthe manner of a true Hinglishman. He has fastened his fistes on the vizzen on two hof the robbers."

Among the drawings not mentioned by Lady Ritchie is a pen-and-ink of "Titania and Bottom," accompanied by a fragment of a letter beginning, "I have been reading Midsummer Night's Dream, God bless it." There is also a large water color drawing of "Arabian Nights," after Bonington, described by Thackeray as "a very bad copy of a bad copy. The original, I think, is the finest water color drawing I ever saw in the world."

This volume contains all that remains of the letters and drawings sent by Thackeray to FitzGerald except nine drawings given by the latter to Miss Churchyard.

THE BOSTON ORCHESTRA.

Mr. Paderewski as Soloist Plays His Own Concerto.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, now on its fifth visit to New York, the last one of the season, devoted its concert last evening to works of three living composers, all of whom were present in the hall. George W. Chadwick's symphony in F, No. 3; Rubin Goldmark's tone poem "Samson," and Ignace Paderewski's concerto in A minor for pianoforte and orchestra were the works presented; and Mr. Paderewski played the pianoforte part in his concerto.

The two American compositions did honor to American art, and the audience was enthusiastic in its applause of both of them. Mr. Chadwick's symphony is twenty years old and more. It won a prize offered by the National Conservatory of New York in 1894, but it has had a more fortunate career than many prize compositions, which are often not heard of a second time. It is dedicated to Theodore Thomas, and he played it not once but several times, and the Boston Orchestra has played it before. It has been said of this symphony that it was composed at a time when the writing of melody was not considered necessarily the proof of a sterile mind, nor the resolution of discords an indication of imbecility.

Mr. Chadwick's symphony is not deficient in frank melody, often of a distinguished sort and his harmonic treatment is rich and expressive, even though it has few of the significant features that are considered "modern" to-day. The music is strong, vigorous, manly, without affectation, both in the themes and in the development through which they are put, and this development is not only lucid and logical, but it is also finely and artistically conceived, musically beautiful. Mr. Chadwick's use of the orchestra is skillful, giving color and euphony. The symphony dates from the time when Dr. Dvorak was urging "Americanism" upon American composers, and whether or not that was the influence there are a few suggestions of a turn of melody that might be considered to be derived from the folk song of the negroes. At all events this symphony may be considered and prized as truly American music.

Mr. Goldmark, in his symphonic poem, "Samson," on the other hand, has deliberately chosen an esoteric subject, and has devoted his resources to representing the emotional and dramatic aspects of the Old Testament narrative, and, at the end, to some suggestion of the demolition of the Temple. But this delineation is hardly more than suggested, and Mr. Goldmark has done wisely in keeping to the field that music more rightfully claims as its own. The piece is in one movement, but there are four divisions, intended to portray Samson, Delilah, the betrayal, and the end in the Temple. The general impression is of somewhat too great length, and an insufficient differentiation and contrast of the musical substance.

There is, in fact, something of monotony. Yet there is much that is noble, dignified, impassioned, and exalted in Mr. Goldmark's music; finely expressive themes, stirring development of them, and an especially fine skill in the orchestral treatment, which is warmly, at times gorgeously, colored. There is little or no attempt to produce an Oriental atmosphere; but the mood of passion, of despair, of tragedy, is little lightened and ends by becoming oppressive. It was the first performance in New York of Mr. Goldmark's composition, which is still in manuscript; an admirable performance, as was that of Mr. Chadwick's symphony.

Mr. Paderewski's concerto, after a long rest, had been heard in New York a few weeks ago from Miss Katherine Goodson. The composer played it with inimitable brilliancy, power, and bravura with elegiac tenderness and poetry in the passages of cantilena.

The music has vitality, though the composer did not forget when he wrote it that one of the purposes of a concerto is display. In the last movement, indeed, he gave this a preponderating rôle. Yet even in the most dazzling pages of this music there is something more than mere glitter; there is a substance beneath it, and this Mr. Paderewski raised to its highest power.

ENRAGED BY THEFT, SHOOTS DOWN TWO

Engineer, Maddened by Loss of Rings in Turkish Baths, Mortally Wounds Another Patron.

SECOND VICTIM MAY DIE

Slayer Accuses Both Men of Theft, but Is Forced to Withdraw Charge —Their Taunts Infuriate Him.

Fourteen men in the cot room of Fensterheim's Turkish Baths at 306 Third Street were rudely wakened early yesterday morning when Isaac Swimer, a marine engineer and former soldier, of 46 East Seventh Street, announced in noisy tones that two rings, one worth $150 and the other $60, had been stolen from his fingers while he slept. Swimer glared angrily at the two men who had been sleeping at either side of him and asserted that he would have back his rings.

Once before, on April 23, Swimer had lost the finer of the two rings at Sixth Avenue and Fourteenth Street. Three men whom he accused of holding him up at the time were arrested, but the Grand Jury refused to indict them, upon their plea that the ring had been taken as a gambling debt in a crap game. Swimer regained possession of the ring by replevin proceedings. Later he was fined $10 for beating one of the witnesses who had testified against him. After that he carried a revolver, although a permit to do so was refused him.

Angry over the loss of the rings, which, he insisted, represented all his savings, Swimer sent one of the occupants of the baths, Arthur Cohen of 314 East Second Street, to report the theft to the Union Market Police Station. Meanwhile he kept his eyes on his nearest neighbors, Sam Connors, alias "Whitey," alias "Spunkey," of 315 Rivington Street, and Louis Baumgarten of 297 Rivington Street, both of whom had unsavory reputations in the neighborhood, according to the police.

When Cohen returned from the police station with Detective Lauterborn Swimer accused Connors and Baumgarten of having stolen his rings. Both denied the charge, and asked him to prove it. Swimer admitted that he had no evidence to support it, and finally told the detective he would have to withdraw the charge and pocket his loss.

Thereupon the two men, it is said, began to mock him, Connors, according to some of the bathers, announced that Swimer would never have another chance to "squeal."

The detective had just returned to the ground floor of the baths and was about to leave the building when he heard shots on the floor above, and a dozen men, most of them clad only in bath towels and sheets, piled pell-mell downstairs. Rushing up, he met Swimer at the head of the stairway. The engineer was flourishing a revolver, which he turned over to the detective, saying excitedly:

"I couldn't help it. I had to do it."

In the cot room Lauterborn found Connors and Baumgarten unconscious. The former had been shot through the left temple; the latter above the heart. Both were removed to Bellevue Hospital, where Connors died a few hours later, and Baumgarten was said to have little chance of recovery.

Swimer admitted that he had shot both men, saying he had been driven to distraction by their taunts and his loss. With the other patrons of the bathhouse he was taken to the Criminal Court Building and questioned by Assistant District Attorney Breckinridge of the Homicide Bureau. Thereafter he was remanded to the Tombs on a charge of homicide by Coroner Hellenstein. The two rings were not found in the bathhouse.

Swimer, who has a wife and a 12-year-old daughter, had just opened up a machine shop at 501 East Houston Street. In the Spanish-American war he served in Battery A of the Eighty-third Regiment of Coast Artillery. He was honorably discharged, with the rank of corporal.

The Success of the International Correspondence Schools

For the first time in the history of the world an educational institution has solved the problem of providing a thorough training for any one, anywhere, in more than two hundred subjects. The methods created for this phenomenal enterprise were necessarily so new that they have been misunderstood sometimes by those who have not taken the trouble to look into them carefully. They have also aroused the suspicion and even animosity of such men as are always jealous of the success of others. But after twenty-two years of continuous and beneficial educational work, the International Correspondence Schools are no longer an experiment. They have proved themselves to be so valid and effective in disseminating instruction and providing training, that many unscrupulous persons have tried to gain profit by similar enterprises which lacked either a legitimate financial basis or a sound educational foundation.

The newspapers of the country have recently given wide publicity to the efforts of a group of former employes of the International Correspondence Schools to discredit the financial management of the institution. A bill was introduced into the Massachusetts General Assembly purporting to regulate the activities of Correspondence Schools in that Commonwealth. The International Correspondence Schools have no objection to this measure, nor to similar ones in other States. Fully conscious of doing a perfectly legitimate business, they are anxious that the public should be protected from bogus enterprises designed solely to market stock or furnish inferior instruction.

But at a public hearing upon the bill, held in Boston, March thirteenth, it was obvious that the measure was introduced simply to give certain men an opportunity to discredit and depress the financial standing of the International Correspondence Schools. This was proved by the fact that those who urged the passage of the bill were former employes of the Schools who are at present engaged in trading in the securities of the International Correspondence Schools on their own account. Their purpose in attacking the institution is personal profit. We are, therefore, taking every possible precaution to protect those who are interested financially or educationally in the work of the International Correspondence Schools.

For this purpose we lay before the public the following facts:

The International Correspondence Schools had their birth in a humanitarian impulse. The first course of instruction was in coal mining, designed to safeguard the lives of miners by educating mine-foremen and superintendents. That course was quickly followed by others until now there are 275 courses of study.

During the past twenty-two years no fewer than 1,651,765 students have been enrolled in the United States and Canada, and enrollments are now being made at the rate of 100,000 a year.

The preparation of the textbooks written by the Schools for the use of students has cost more than $2,000,000. These texts are prepared solely for the work of instruction by correspondence and form the most up-to-date library of their kind in the world. Their value is attested by the fact that they have been purchased and are being used for classroom work or for reference purposes in 167 universities, colleges, institutes of technology, and other well known institutions of learning. The University of California has just discarded its textbooks dealing with the strength of materials. It has had I. C. S. instruction papers on that subject bound into volumes and has adopted them for the use of its students. The United States Navy Department is using 15,000 textbooks in the new naval ship-board schools, and this is about one-fifth of what will be required when these schools are in full operation.

The International Correspondence Schools are now the greatest teaching institution in the world. They have become a powerful factor in enhancing industrial efficiency. They have increased the earning power of hundreds of thousands of men and women, and, more than all, they have become a great social and moral influence by creating ambition, stimulating hope, and preaching self-reliance to their student body.

In Scranton, the International Correspondence Schools transact their business in buildings valued at $1,159,280.29, while their copyrights and plates are conservatively estimated as worth $1,864,404 after a liberal annual allowance has been made for depreciation.

Every effort is being made to keep the students at their studies in order that they may receive the full benefit of their courses. During the year 1913 no fewer than 805,079 individual letters were sent out to students with no other purpose than to encourage and inspire them in their work. Besides these, 205,813 special letters were mailed to students dealing with particular difficulties encountered in the progress of their studies. The International Correspondence Schools are faithfully, earnestly, and persistently trying to convey instruction and create efficiency by every possible method, and that they are succeeding is attested by the multitudes of students who have risen to positions of power, affluence and honor as the result of their training.

One feature, not always understood by the public, is the energetic manner in which the Correspondence Schools enroll their students. Hundreds of agents or representatives go into the homes, mills, factories and shops to persuade men that they can be benefited by a course of instruction. These agents create ambition and stimulate a desire for education. They tell men, and they prove their point by innumerable examples, that they can make themselves more efficient in their present occupation, or qualify themselves for other and more congenial and more remunerative occupations, by a course of study at home in their spare time. The cost of establishing these agencies has been very great, but the results have amply justified the investment from every standpoint. Up to the present the International Correspondence Schools have spent $1,703,965 in agency establishment. More than one million dollars of capital now in the Treasury of the Company will be used to develop still further the facilities for offering education to the people. Hitherto the largest part of the work of the I. C. S. has been in the cities and towns, but the rural districts of America are to be opened immediately by establishing automobile and motorcycle routes.

It will be seen at a glance that the $8,500,000 capitalization of the International Textbook Company, which operates the International Correspondence Schools, is really modest when the cost of creating the institution, carrying on the business, and widening the facilities for education, are considered. If the institution had not been upon a sound financial basis, under careful and expert business management, and furnishing bona fide education and technical training, it would have broken down long ago. Twenty-two years of ever-widening business, until the Schools now have 5,000 persons in their employment, are sufficient evidence of the validity and permanence of the institution. Since their foundation the Schools have done a gross business amounting to $85,753,140 and have distributed cash dividends amounting to $7,025,372 and stock dividends of $1,875,000.

The International Correspondence Schools are not interested in any enterprise that is not organically connected with their work of providing education for the people.

They are free from entanglements that might weaken or injure their educational efficiency, and they gladly court the inspection or investigation of all proper authorities. Their sole purpose is to give special training to all who cannot acquire it by any other means, and in doing this they place their costly plant and their valuable facilities at the disposal of the Government, the industrial corporation or the individual who desires to profit therefrom.

IMPERATOR ARRIVES, BATTERED BY STORM

Four Lifeboats Gone, Bronze Eagle's Wings Shattered, and Her Ports Smashed.

BABY BORN IN HURRICANE

Noted Passengers Praise Capt. Kier, Who Remains on the Bridge Seventy-one Hours.

The Hamburg-American liner Imperator arrived here yesterday from Hamburg twenty-four hours late owing to the hurricane she passed through on March 13. The storm stripped her of four lifeboats, clipped the bronze eagle's wings off her figurehead and smashed in the ports of three cabins on the port side of the "E" deck forward, letting in water.

Besides the storm there were two incidents on the voyage. A baby was born in the steerage in the course of the gale, and Johannes Schmidt, second cabin cook, died suddenly on Wednesday as the liner was nearing the Nantucket Lightship.

The Imperator is commanded this voyage by Capt. Thomas Kier, who was commended by the passenegrs for the skillful manner in which he handled the big ship. He made a record by docking her in Hoboken in fifteen minutes. She brought over 371 first cabin, 334 second, 819 third and 1,168 steerage passengers.

During the hurricane on Friday night, when the ship hove to for six hours, the wind whistled so shrilly over the skylights on the top deck that the guests in the Ritz-Carlton restaurant could not hear themselves speak, and passengers situated forward on the ship suffered from seasickness. The spindrift, blown high about the bow, was so dense that it formed a white fog, the officers said.

While the Imperator has been laid up in Hamburg the weight on her top deck has been reduced by 500 tons, through the shortening of her three funnels by twelve feet, the removal of dynamos that drove the patent ventilators to the lower deck, and the removing of the Ritz-Carlton restaurant kitchen to a deck lower.

Capt. Kier said that the bad weather began when the Imperator left Hamburg on March 11. There was a strong gale, followed by fog, in the North Sea.

"The Imperator left Cherbourg at 8 o'clock on Thursday night," the Captain went on to say, "and on Friday it blew a whole gale, starting in the west-southwest. By 6 o'clock at night it had reached a hurricane force of ninety to a hundred miles velocity. At 7 o'clock the ship was pitching into the big head seas, and an hour later I reduced her speed to dead slow, about three knots, which is just steering way. This was maintained until 1 o'clock the next morning."

"When did you lost the boats?" he was asked.

"About 9 o'clock Friday night she took over a sea that was probably forty-five feet high, and her bows went down twenty-five or thirty feet to meet it. When she lifted her bow out of the water the forward lifeboats had gone. They were made fast on patent davits at the break of the foc'sle deck, two on each davit. The davits went with the boats. The wings of the eagle, having an after spread of fifteen feet on each side, were snapped off close to the body of the bird.

"I was glad that we did not lose the gold crown from the eagle's head, because the sailors would have looked upon it as an ill omen to happen on the thirteenth."

Capt. Kier denied a report that the Imperator carried a lookout man in the figurehead forward.

For the run from Friday to Saturday noon the Imperator made 290 miles, making the voyage of 3,153 miles in six days, eighteen hours and twelve minutes, at an average speed of 19.44 knots. The weather moderated on Saturday morning but continued rough until Wednesday morning, when the ship ran into a thunderstorm with heavy rain.

Capt. Kier said that he had sent wireless messages giving details of the loss of the boats in the storm but they had been delayed by atmospheric conditions which had also delayed those sent to him from New York.

A testimonial was presented to the Captain on Wednesday night. It was signed by Mrs. John Astor, Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond, Warren D. Robbins, Parmeley Herrick, and all other influential persons on board, who complimented him on the skill with which he had navigated the ship during the hurricane. In all he was seventy-one hours on the bridge, with an occasional brief doze in the chartroom, all standing as sailors say, which means with seaboots and oilskins on.

Capt. Kier, who is 45 years old, is the son of Admiral Kier, who commanded the old North German Navy before the German Empire was formed. He was born in Hamburg and went to sea in sailing vessels at the age of sixteen. For years he was chief officer of the Deutschland under Capt. Albers and Capt. Berends. He has been in command nine years, and his last ship was the Cleveland, which he took on a 'round the world cruise with fifty-seven widows on board.

The baby boy born in the steerage on the night of the storm was christened Joseph Imperator Schnapp by Thomas McMullen, one of the first cabin passengers, who, with the aid of Mrs. John Hays Hammond, collected $285 for the mother and child. Other passengers suggested that the baby should be named "Hurricane Bill," which may be his nickname when he grows up, as it has been inscribed on a piece of paper and given to the mother with the meaning in German. The body of Schmidt, the cook, was brought into port and will be buried to-day.

WOMEN WANT A DAY.

Suffragists Ask President to Set Aside First Saturday in May.

President Wilson has been asked by the National American Woman Suffrage Association to set aside the first Saturday in May as "Woman's Independence Day." The Executive Board of the association yesterday sent this letter, written by its President, Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, to Washington:

New York, March 19, 1914.

President Woodrow Wilson, the White House, Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President: The agitation for the political enfranchisement of women has been carried forward without faltering for nearly threescore years along dignified and constitutional lines.

Year after year one nation after another has recognized the justice of this democratic demand for self-government, and has granted to women citizens equal political rights with men, and in our own country at the next general election women will vote in ten States and one Territory.

Amendments to State Constitutions granting suffrage to women in at least five States will be voted upon at the same election, and in six or more additional States in 1915, while in every State demands are being made upon the National Congress to so amend the National Constitution as to forbid the States from disfranchising United States citizens on account of sex.

Recognizing that the cause of woman suffrage is no longer an academic problem, but that it has entered the field of practical politics, and that its speedy solution is of vital importance to the country, the National Woman Suffrage Association has set apart the first Saturday of May for a great public demonstration throughout the nation for the purpose of setting forth the just claim of women to political freedom, to arouse such a spirit of patriotic devotion in the hearts of all mothers that it may burn with a quenchless flame in the lives of their children.

In this spirit of loyalty to a true democracy, Mr. President, the Executive Board of the National Suffrage Association appeals to you in your official capacity as President of the United States to set apart the first Saturday in May, to be known as Woman's Independence Day, in recognition of the loyalty of American women to the spirit and claims of 1776, that the foundation of all just governments rests upon the consent of the governed. Very truly yours,

ANNA HOWARD SHAW,
President National American Woman Suffrage Association.

Suffragists throughout the country are making elaborate plans for the proposed demonstration.

Plymouth Church Seeks $350,000.

Efforts are being made to raise a larger endowment fund to enable Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, to carry out its educational and other work. The found now amounts to about $100,000, and the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor, hopes to increase this to $350,000. With that end in view, he is sending out appeals to the members and friends of the historic church.

MRS. BISHOP CRUEL, DAUGHTER CHARGES

Nathalie Supports Application to be Given in Custody to Her Father.

OFTEN ABUSED, SHE SAYS

Mother Struck Her and Went Abroad Without Saying Good-bye, According to Girl's Affidavit.

Affidavits supporting the application of James Cunningham Bishop, the banker, for the custody of his daughter Nathalie, who is 15 years old, have been filed in the Supreme Court. Justice Lehman decided to grant the application on Wednesday, but he declined to reduce the alimony from $15,000 a year to $8,000. An interlocutory decree of divorce was obtained by Mrs. Abigail Hancock Bishop last May, and the two children, Nathalie and Abigail, were placed in her custody.

While the case was in the courts great care was taken to keep the charges in the complaint from reaching the public. Testimony was taken before Phoenix Ingraham, referee, and it was carefully guarded. After he made his report Mrs. Bishop delayed so long in asking for a final decree that Mr. Bishop moved to have the matter settled. He wanted to know whether he was married or single. Then the final decree was applied for.

The affidavit of Mr. Bishop for the custody of Nathalie was presented by Cadwalader, Wickershaw & Taft, his lawyers. Accompanying it was a sworn statement by Nathalie, which was presented by Mr. Ingraham, her guardian. Her statement was to the effect that her mother was frequently cruel to her and often struck and abused her. She said that her mother, on sailing for Europe last September, did not bid her good-bye.

Nathalie said that after the interlocutory decree was granted she and her sister Abigail were sent to a house at Beverly Farms, Mass. It was a large house, and was cared for by two servants. A governess was in charge of the children. Mrs. Bishop was with them only a short time, the petition says. Then it reads:

"During such period as Mrs. Bishop was at Beverly Farms, she off and on had the appearance of being under the influence of alcohol. She provided your petitioner with no money, and her daughter, Abigail Bishop, with practically no clothes."

The petition charges that Mrs. Bishop struck Nathalie and pulled her hair. The daughter says that on Sept. 6, 1913, she left Beverly Farms to join her mother at the Waldorf-Astoria, and that on Sept. 8, she went with her mother to the residence of Mrs. Bishop's sister, Mrs. A. H. Griffin.

Then she tells about the return of her mother from Europe on Nov. 12, the day after a sister of Nathalie had joined in an application for a change of custody from the mother to the father.

Nathalie says she was sent to a school in Connecticut by her aunt, Mrs. Griffin. The only child now in the custody of Mrs. Bishop is Abigail. The four others, Nathalie, Mary C., Augusta H., and Muriel, are in the custody of the father.

Martin W. Littleton, attorney for Mrs. Bishop, opposed the application, and said Mrs. Bishop had done all she could for the children placed in her care. Mrs. Bishop said in an affidavit:

"I gave her every luxury I could afford. I have been a dutiful mother to Nathalie. I made some of Abigail's dresses with my own hands, and I have been teaching her reading, writing, and arithmetic myself, and doing a great deal more for her than a governess could do."

DR. PARKHURST ON BENCH.

Attends Women's Night Court and Has Finger Prints Taken.

The Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, accompanied by Magistrate Joseph M. Deuel, spent two hours on the bench with Magistrate Barlow in the women's Night Court last night. He evinced keen interest in the various cases, and frequently consulted with both Magistrates.

When court adjourned at midnight Dr. Parkhurst spoke of the difference in courts of to-day and the old days, when politicians hobnobbed with the Magistrates on the bench.

In his opinion, the Magistrate of today was treated with more respect by those arraigned before him.

Most of the women arraigned were charged with intoxication. If some of them were sent to a farm the craving for alcohol might pass away, Dr. Parkhurst said. He considered the drink habit the most brutish of vices.

Dr. Parkhurst had his finger prints taken and evinced great interest in the process.

Henry F. Haggerty Left $217,941.

A report filed yesterday in the Surrogate's office in Brooklyn by Frederick Lundy, State Transfer Tax Appraiser, shows that Henry F. Haggerty, who died last November, left a net estate of $217,941. Mr. Haggerty was a law partner of the late Senator Patrick H. McCarren, Democratic leader of Kings County, and was at one time a City Magistrate. The chief beneficiaries under his will are his widow, son, and daughter.

SOPRANO AND BARITONE SING

Mme. Namara-Toye and Royal Dadmun Please in Aeolian Hall.

Mme. Namara-Toye, soprano, and Royal Dadmun, baritone, gave a joint recital yesterday in Aeolian Hall before a larger audience than usually rewards the efforts of any but the best-known singers. The soprano is not a new figure on the local concert platform, but Mr. Dadmun has been less frequently heard. They gave a varied programme, in which modern works figured conspicuously, and it lengthened out with encores to something more than all the audience had time to remain for.

Mme. Namara-Toye again showed that her voice is small, but generally pleasing, although it is not always to be depended upon for quality and intonation. She infuses a certain amount of personality into her work, and the total combination was such as to please yesterday's audience. Mr. Dadmun has a voice of good quality which lost value yesterday as the demands of his music were of the sterner sort, but was pleasing in the lyric style which most of his numbers were set in.

Kurt Schindler accompanied the soprano with good taste and Edward Rechlin was at the piano for Mr. Dadmun.

'DE LUXE' BOOKS PRICED LOW

Woman Who Paid $87,075 Admits She Bought Only to Sell.

BOSTON. March 19.—After Mrs. L. Rogers of this city had testified at the so-called de luxe book trial in the Superior Court to-day that she paid Glen F. Farmer, Samuel Rosenfield, and James P. Clark $87,075 for 1,000 volumes, Frederick M. Hopkins of Yonkers, N. Y., who said he was an expert, testified that the market value of the books was $4,079.

Mrs. Rogers said she bought the books not to read but to hold for an increased price, which the defendants had assured her she would be able to obtain within a few months, saying that the books were going out of print.

Building Inspector Sent to Prison.

Michael J. Whelan, formerly a Building Inspector, was sentenced to Sing Sing for from one to five years yesterday by Judge Swan in General Sessions on conviction for bribery. Whelan was found guilty of taking $25 from a contractor to allow alterations on a building in East Twentieth Street last December.

Merchandise Here Advertised on Sale To-day.

First Showing of Imported
FLOOR COVERINGS

Anticipating the new tariff law, which went into effect January 1, R. H. Macy & Co.'s representative visited the carpet weaving centres of Great Britain early in December and bought a most excellent assortment of Wiltons, Axminsters, Tapestry Brussels, Wilton Velvets and Linoleums in designs and colorings not made in American mills.

These goods are now on exhibition and sale in the Carpet Department, Fourth Floor, Broadway. They are to be seen in New York only at Macy's.

It is a mistake to conclude that imported Carpets and Rugs are higher priced than the domestic weaves. The fact of the matter is that with the exception of the imported Rugs, such as Axminsters, which use the Chenille weave, the domestic goods cost more in the open market.

Victorian Seamless Axminster Rugs

This high-grade Scotch Axminster Rug is woven in one solid piece, very much unlike the seamless Axminster Rugs made in this country. They are closely woven, beautifully designed, charmingly colored. The Chenille weave adds immensely to the beauty and durability of these Rugs. They come from the largest mill in Scotland. They are so made and colored that they are suitable for any room in the house. Priced as follows:

29 in. x 60 in.	$4.89	6 ft. x 9 ft.	$23.24
32 in. x 63 in.	$5.74	9 ft. x 10 ft. 6 in.	$39.75
4½ ft. x 6½ ft.	$13.74	9 ft. x 12 ft.	$46.50

Aragona Seamless Axminster Rugs

These Rugs are woven in one piece. There is no mill in America which produces Rugs of this kind. They will give excellent service, so that the customer can without hesitation put them in the living-room, library, dining-room, reception-room, reception hall or bedrooms. Several color and pattern effects adaptable to any of the modern style of decoration now in vogue. The range of designs and colorings is most comprehensive. Prices:

6 ft. x 9 ft.	$16.89	9 ft. x 10½ ft.	$29.50
7 ft. 6 in. x 9 ft.	$21.24	9 ft. x 12 ft.	$33.75
7½ ft. x 10½ ft.	$24.74	9 ft. x 13½ ft.	$38.25
9 ft. x 9 ft.	$25.50	10½ ft. x 13½ ft.	$44.75

Rock Wilton Rugs

Made in England, it is a high grade three-shot all-worsted fabric. The two-tone grays, two-tone blues, gray and blue, and gray and pink and dainty colorings adapted to present day decorations. The Rugs are not fringed, but their wearing quality cannot be surpassed. Sizes and prices:

27 in. x 54 in.	$4.24
4 ft. 6 in. x 7 ft. 6 in.	$14.24
6 ft. 9 in. x 9 ft.	$25.75
9 ft. x 12 ft.	$44.75

Seamless Wilton Velvet Rugs

The surface of these Rugs has a lustre like a piece of silk. One size only, 9 ft. x 12 ft., in small allover Persian effects and in the larger Oriental patterns. The price, $25.25, is less than is being asked for domestic goods of like quality.

Super Wilton Rugs

These Rugs are made by the largest manufacturers in Scotland. They have the same weave as the high-grade French weave Wiltons made in this country. The prices are less than for home-manufactured Rugs. A feature of these Rugs is the silky lustre of the finish. Sizes and prices:

27 in. x 54 in.	$6.48
4 ft. 6 in. x 7 ft. 6 in.	$19.48
6 ft. 9 in. x 9 ft.	$35.50
9 ft. x 10 ft. 6 in.	$53.50
9 ft. x 12 ft.	$58.50

Seamless Tapestry Brussels Rugs

Here we have the last word in Tapestry Brussels weavery. We searched the markets of England and America before finding this Rug. Prices:

7 ft. 6 in. x 9 ft.	$12.48
9 ft. x 9 ft.	$14.89
9 ft. x 10 ft. 6 in.	$17.74
9 ft. x 12 ft.	$19.00

Regina Axminster Rugs

This is an Axminster woven with a seam. They come in three sizes only. They are here because of their novel designs and colorings, particularly in the Chinese patterns. We have them in bold and Oriental effects, for living rooms, libraries and dining-rooms, and soft pastel shades for chambers. Sizes and prices:

27 in. x 54 in.	$4.74
6 ft. 9 in. x 9 ft.	$24.74
9 ft. x 12 ft.	$43.75

Worsted Wilton Velvet Carpets

We ask you to compare these fabrics with domestic Carpets of the same grade. The lustre can be compared only with that of an Oriental rug. The patterns are Macy creations, although the Carpets were made in England. Prices:

22½ in. wide	per yd. $1.44

Imported Inlaid Linoleum
A Scotch Product

Made in the North of Scotland, this importation is the first of the mill's output to come to America. They are in Mosaic and parquetry effects not produced elsewhere. Mosaic Tile Effects, $1.39 square yard. High Grade Parquetry Effects, $1.48 square yard. Super Parquetry Effects, $1.59 square yard.

If You Are Interested in Indoor or Outdoor Games and Sports you should give heed to the present opportunity.

You want to be well-informed on your favorite pastime, to know the records, the names of famous players, to get an expert's suggestions on the fine points of a game, or to know about its origin and development. You can find what you want in the new

Encyclopaedia Britannica

This work is something different from the ordinary cut and dried work of reference. It is a library in itself, a library of many interesting works by many experts of high reputation. This is illustrated by the fact that it contains the equivalent of a complete, authoritative manual of Sports and Recreation, with 260 separate articles, dealing with practically every kind of game or pastime, indoor or outdoor.

The World at Play

The variety of sports and pastimes described in separate articles in the new Britannica is suggested by the following headings, only a few out of more than 260 articles in this department:

Archery, Auction Pitch, Baccarat, Bagatelle, Basketball, Bezique, Blindman's-buff, Boston, Bowling, Casino, Checkers, Coasting, Coursing, Cribbage, Curling, Cycling, Diabolo, Dice, Dominoes, Ecarte, Euchre, Fantan, Faro, Gymkhana, Hammer Throwing, Hockey, Ice-yachting, Ju-Jutsu, Lacrosse, Lansquenet, Lotto, Pelota, Pigeon-flying, Ping-pong, Pinochle, Piquet, Pole-vaulting, Potato-race, Prisoners' Base, Push-ball, Putting the Shot, Roller-skating, Shuffle-board, Snip-Snap-Snorem, Solitaire, Swimming, Vingt-et-un, Water Polo, Wrestling.

Do you know that the earliest skates were made of bones? Has the length of the stroke used by famous speed-skaters increased or decreased as the speed in skating has increased?

If you want to know this or what "Little Dog" or "Big Dog" is in Poker, or what any other term used in cards or other games means, turn to the Britannica.

When the editors of this work wanted a game described they went to a man who had become a recognized expert on it. Thus polo is by a Steward and Member of the Council of the English Polo and Riding Pony Society, who has himself had a hand in developing the polo pony, "a new type of horse." Fencing is by a fencer of note. Football by Walter Camp, Golf by a former amateur champion, Card Games by a card expert, and so on.

If you want to know what it is to have "good hands" in Riding horseback or explanations by experts' concerning Lawn Tennis, Mountain Climbing, Angling, Big Game Shooting, or Yachting, any outdoor or indoor sport or recreation, the Britannica will give it to you.

There is a series of special articles on Dancing. You will find that the "Tango" and the "Turkey Trot" had ancestors that caused differences of opinion even in Queen Anne's day.

But this is merely one little corner of this working library of all useful knowledge. The treatment accorded to this one subject is typical of the treatment of all. The new Britannica is a book about

Everything You Want to Know by the Men Who Know

It will give you just as efficient help whether your interests lie in the direction of literature or art, fine porcelains, or motor-cars, travel or science, psychical research or philanthropy. You get the clear, trustworthy account by an authority of high reputation whether you want to know about Maeterlinck or flying machines, rural credit or architecture, polar discovery or tropical medicine, radio-activity or synthetic rubber, electricity or Oriental religions, the tariff or interstate commerce, navigation or prison reform, the Panama Canal, or the City of Cairo, tennis or fencing. And it is an interesting book, written to be read, not merely consulted.

NOW is the Time to Decide

The Britannica is the master-key to all human knowledge, to the accumulated treasures of every form of practical experience, as well as learning, of past ages and to-day. It is for you to use. Not to use it is to deprive yourself of power.

The present low price and the convenient plan of payment in monthly instalments as low as $5.00 per month will be available only for a short time longer.

ARREST WOMAN FOR THREATENING JUDGE

Mrs. Spencer Accused of Saying She Might Try "Unwritten Law" Against Cohalan.

SENT TO BELLEVUE HOSPITAL

Jurist Decided Against Her in Her Suit for Separation—She Tells Life Story in Court.

Clara B. Spencer, who asserts that she is the common law wife of George Spencer, an ex-convict, and now Inspector of Police for the Pennsylvania Railroad, was arrested yesterday morning at her home in the Bronx on the charge of threatening Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan. She was sent to Bellevue Hospital by Magistrate Appleton in the Tombs Court for observation by Dr. Thornton as to her sanity.

Mrs. Spencer's arrest followed an incident in the corridors of the County Court House on last Friday, when she went there to inquire as to the disposition of certain proceedings in her suit for separation from Spencer. Samuel Scheuer, an attendant in Part 7, asserted that Mrs. Spnecer told him then that she must have certain papers from Justice Cohalan.

"If I can not get them legally I will have to try the 'unwritten law,'" she is alleged to have said.

In the Tombs Court yesterday Mrs. Spencer denied that she had intended any threat to Justice Cohalan. She said that the allusion to the "unwritten law" was not in reference to Justice Cohalan. Scheuer admitted that there was some uncertainty as to whether the woman actually threatened the Justice.

That Mrs. Spencer nourished some ill-feeling toward Justice Cohalan was brought out, however, by Magistrate Appleton. He saw at once that the woman was apparently under great excitement, and by a few preliminary questions got her to tell her whole story.

"In 1887—I was only 17 then," Mrs. Spencer said, "I left a convent where I had been a novice and met Spencer. I fell in love with him and he agreed to marry me. We didn't have any money, so I went to live with him on his promise to have the ceremony performed in a short time by a Catholic priest. I am a devout Catholic, and I would not have any sacrament performed except by a priest. When we had money later I reminded Spencer of his promise, but he refused to have a priest marry us, and I preferred to live with him as his common-law wife rather than have any one but a priest perform the ceremony.

"Soon after I met Spencer I learned that he had served a term in prison. He was a burglar. He got into trouble again, and in December, 1887, he was sent to Sing Sing for six years and eight months for burglary. In all I lived as his wife for twenty-seven years, and he was out of jail only about three years. He was discharged from Sing Sing in 1892, and a few months later was sent to jail in New Jersey for burglary for a term of five years. Getting out in 1897, he was convicted in New York for having burglar's tools in his possession. On his release, in 1899, he was again convicted of burglary and sentenced to seven years in the Trenton penitentiary.

"When Spencer went to Trenton I thought that the seven years' sentence would entitle me to a divorce, and I married John Walsh in 1900 and went to live with him in Eleventh Street, New York. Spencer was released on parole in 1903, however, and found me again. For one year I lived as the wife of both men. At confession I was told that one man was my legal husband and the other my husband, according to the rules of the church, so I dared not leave either.

"One day Walsh said good-bye to me and I have never heard of him since. That was in 1904. Spencer went to work for the Pennsylvania Railroad as a special policeman. I began proceedings to have him restored to citizenship and in 1910 Gov. Hughes, with the recommendation of Gov. Fort, restored him. That was to help him to get the position of Inspector of Police for the railroad.

"My husband began to illtreat me and finally abandoned me. I determined to get a separation, which would recognize our marriage as legal and give me an opportunity to earn a living. I had been a vaudeville singer, but my voice is gone now."

Mrs. Spencer said that William Greenthal, who appeared yesterday as her counsel, took charge of her case and in May 1913 Justice Lehman granted her $10 a week alimony pending trial. On Jan. 23, Justice Cohalan handed down a decision in which he held that the woman was not Spencer's common law wife.

Mrs. Spencer began steps for an appeal, which she took in her own behalf, not having money for counsel fees and not wishing Mr. Greenthal to continue his work without pay. On March 9 she filed an order to show cause why the minutes of the trial should not be given to her and why she should not persecute the case as a pauper. By chance, the motion was referred to Part 2, Special Term, where Justice Cohalan was sitting.

When no action was taken on the motion, Mrs. Spencer told Magistrate Appleton, she went down to the County Court House and happened to meet Justice Cohalan, whose remarks about her in the decision, she thought were unjust. She talked with him for some minutes. Last Friday she went down again and then occurred the scene which resulted in her arrest.

FIGHT DRESSMAKERS.

Manufacturers Deny Making Concessions to Striking Employes.

A. Suffman, Chairman of the Independent Children's Dress Manufacturers' Association, announced last night that no member of the association had signed an agreement with the Misses and Children's Dressmakers' Union, Local 50.

A report had been published that this concession to the strikers had been made by several manufacturers, but Mr. Suffman said that the association had decided to maintain its present stand indefinitely. The thirty-three members of the association have subscribed a fund of $8,250 with which to meet conditions arising from the strike.

ORIENTAL ART OBJECTS SOLD

A Temple Garniture of Foo Chow Lacquer Brings $300 at Anderson's.

The sale of Japanese textiles with objects of art, Chinese and Japanese, belonging to the collection of Louis E. Charnley of New York, began at the Anderson Galleries last evening, and S. Baumeister gave the highest price, $300, for a temple garniture of Foo Chow lacquer. Garrett C. Pier was one of the purchasers, paying $37.50 for an old and interesting carving in wood of Kwannon, the Goddess of Mercy. S. P. Garvin made a number of purchases of Oriental robes, and Arthur of London, paid $47.50 for a Japanese obi of Ita Ori brocade. A collection of fifty bronze figurines went to H. H. Zellner for $85. The sale will be concluded this evening.

A Chinese Chippendale table sold for $1,000 at the Aimone sale at the Anderson Galleries yesterday afternoon, going to J. Graham. An Adam style sideboard, with oval end columns and knife urns, went to N. Beekman for $900, and H. Stark paid $600 for a Louis XIV. drawing room table after the original in the Louvre. S. Ackerman Ackerly gave $650 for a bronze conservatory fountain after a Cellini model.

The returns for the evening were $11,162 and the total to date $37,175. The sale will be continued this afternoon.

Dance in Aid of Fresh Air Home.

A dance for the benefit of the Roloff-Jansen Fresh Air Home at Tivoli-on-Hudson will take place on Thursday, April 16, at the Ritz-Carlton. For two years the dances have been held at Mrs. Frederick Edey's house, but this year it was decided to enlarge the affair. The committee in charge of the dance includes the Misses Gwendolin Condon, Mary Brooks, Louise Butler, Catherine Colt, Julia Edey, Gertrude Mali, Eleanor Marshall, Miriam Harriman, Margaret Overton, Constance Robertson, Julia Robbins, Louise Trevor, Cecile Tesson Thayer, Margaret and Louise Trevor, Helene Underwood, Marjorie Wiggin, Audrey Osborn, Marie Tailer, Mrs. Frank B. Washburn, and Mrs. Everett Shinn.

New York University 'Varsity Show.

The New York University's annual 'Varsity show will be given on Friday evening, April 24, in the Auditorium on University Heights. The production will be "Bagatelle," the libretto by Howard I. Young, '14, and the music by Michael Helpern, '15. Clarence C. Hunicke, '14, will stage it. The scene of the little play is laid in a restaurant, and Mrs. Peadon and Beverly Becker will take the leading parts. Mr. Muller, '17, will have the juvenile girl rôle. After the performance the senior ball will take place in the gymnasium.

High-Class Music for East Siders.

The Educational Chamber Music Society will give its ninth concert of the season at the Educational Alliance, East Broadway and Jefferson Street, on Sunday evening. The programme includes selections from Mendelssohn, Dvorak, and Schumann to be given by Alexander Saslavsky, Jacob and Modest Altschuler, and Nathaniel Finkelstein.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Laurette Taylor and her associate players in "Peg o' My Heart" will give the third special Friday matinee of J. Hartley Manners's one-act plays, "Just as Well," "Happiness," and "The Day of Dupes," at the Cort Theatre this afternoon.

Gertrude Hoffman signed contracts with the United Booking Offices yesterday under which she will produce annual revues for vaudeville and star in them for five years.

Harrison Grey Fiske announces that he has engaged Lydia Lopoukowa, the Russian dancer, to appear as an actress under his management next season. Mr. Fiske will star Miss Lopoukowa at the head of her own company in a play that is being written for her.

The cast for "Lady Windemere's Fan," which Margaret Anglin will produce at the Hudson Theatre on Monday, March 30, is complete. The company embraces Margery Maude, Arthur Byron, Sarah Cowell Le Moyne, Ruth Holt Boucicault, Sidney Greenstreet, Wallace Widdecombe, Lillian Thurgate, Norman Tharpe, Harry Barfoot, Florence Wollersen, Margery Card, and Pedro De Cordoba.

The English rights of "The Midnight Girl," now at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre, have been disposed of by the Shuberts to George McLellan, who will secure an immediate production in Lonodon. Emmy Wehlen, who was seen here as "The Girl on the Film," remained over to study the role of "The Midnight Girl," sailing for Europe last Tuesday on the Lusitania.

The production of "Panthea" at the Booth Theatre has been postponed from Monday until next Wednesday night.

RAYMOND BELMONT ADMITS DESERTION

Actress Wife's Charges in Separation Suit Are Not Denied by His Counsel.

ALIMONY FIGURES SOUGHT

Attorney Inquires Into Income of Defendant, Who Is Abroad When Case Comes Up Without Jury.

The separation suit begun against Raymond Belmont, son of August Belmont, by Ethel Lorraine Belmont, came up before Justice Greenbaum in the Supreme Court yesterday afternoon. Edwin L. Mooney, attorney for Mrs. Belmont, finished his opening address, and Mrs. Belmont will appear this morning to tell her story of the hasty courtship and wedding.

The defendant probably will not appear. He has been abroad, and for a time has been the guest of Sir Bache Cunard at Market Harborough, England. Counsel for Mrs. Belmont have endeavored to examine him to discover what his income is in order to compute the alimony to be asked.

There was no jury in court, the idea appearing to be for counsel on both sides to agree later on some plan by which Mrs. Belmont can be provided for and the case disposed of as speedily as possible. Mr. Mooney told the story of the marriage, of how Mr. Belmont deserted his bride within a few days after the ceremony, and how the defendant had failed to provide for her. De Lancey Nicoll, counsel for Mr. Belmont, admitted the truth of Mr. Mooney's statements.

Mrs. Belmont's name was Ethel Lindner, but she took the name of Lorraine when she went on the stage. When she met Mr. Belmont she was 22 years old and was a showgirl in the Winter Garden company. Mr. Belmont's infatuation for her was a subject of gossip for a long time. It was said that his father heard of it and did what he could to bring the affair to an end, but his efforts failed. On Nov. 21, 1912, Mr. Belmont and Miss Lorraine journeyed to Jersey City, where they were married by the Rev. Edward F. Crowen, a retired Baptist clergyman, at his home, 58 Boyd Avenue. The license was dated just a week before the marriage took place.

Eight days later Mr. Belmont left his young wife, and he has never lived with her since that time. It was rumored that $50,000 had been offered her to consent to an annulment of the marriage, but Mrs. Belmont denied this, and said that she loved her husband too much to give him up for all the money in the world.

"I didn't marry him for his money," she said. "I don't want money, I want Raymond. I could, no doubt, have got more by not marrying."

In the complaint filed by Mrs. Belmont she said that her husband had contributed only $50 to her support since the marriage. She said she had telephoned to August Belmont in January, 1913, and asked him where her husband was. He replied that he could not tell her. This was the only incident in which the name of August Belmont figured in the complaint.

Mr. Mooney said Mrs. Belmont was entitled to the greatest consideration because she had behaved herself like a lady and had refused many financial offers to go upon the stage and use her romance and the famous name of her husband for the bettering of her own financial condition. He also said that all counsel wanted to do at that time was to discover just what Mr. Belmont's income was. He did not know whether the defendant had any income of his own or whether he was dependent upon his father.

To Show Film Picture of Pope.

A motion picture of Pope Pius will be shown during a travel talk on Rome by E. M. Newman on Sunday evening at Carnegie Hall and Monday afternoon at the New Amsterdam Theatre. Mr. Newman had the Pope's permission to take views of the interior of the Vatican, with its art treasures, seldom before photographed. Mr. Newman will show views of imperial and modern Rome in addition to views of religious interests.

PLANS FOR RIVER TUNNELS.

Each to Consist of Two Tubes—Acquiring Land for Work.

Each of the two tunnels under the East River to be built from the lower part of Manhattan in connection with the new subways, it was stated yesterday at the Public Service Commission, will consist of two circular cast iron tubes, each of which will contain one track. They will be built at the proper level under the bed of the river by the shield method with compressed air. The same material and method of construction were adopted in the construction of the present Subway tube from the Battery to Brooklyn.

The ventilating shafts for each tunnel will be sunk near the river front, and while the construction is in progress will be also used as working shafts. The commission has already made arrangements for the acquisition of property needed for the shafts and power plants, and by doing this in advance has saved a good deal of time and money. In Brooklyn it has leased from the New York Dock Company property at Furman Street and Fulton Street, where the contractors for the tunnel will erect a compressed air plant to be used in both tunnels. On the Manhattan side of the river the small park in Coenties Slip will be used for a like purpose.

As the Steinway Tunnel cost about $8,000,000 to build, it is expected that the construction of these two new tunnels will require the expenditure of from $12,000,000 to $16,000,000. They will take about three and a half years to complete, and a penalty of $1,000 a day will be attached to each contract for delay beyond the time limit set. The placing of the dual subway system contracts in operation, however, will not depend upon the completion of these tunnels, as they are not essential to the beginning of operation on the new subway systems. The bids will be invited on each tunnel separately or on both together, so that one contractor, if he bids low enough may receive the award for both tubes.

PLAN NEW DRUG LAW.

Bill Drawn to Embody Results of Mrs. Vanderbilt's Campaign.

A bill making it a misdemeanor to sell, handle, or have in one's possession any habit-forming drug, unless it is properly labeled and is sold under prescription, was prepared yesterday at the Criminal Court Building as the result of a campaign started by Ernest K. Coulter in behalf of Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt. The bill is the result of several conferences held in the chambers of Judge Swann in General Sessions.

The drugs specifically mentioned are arsenic, cyanide of potassium, hydrocyanic acid, cocaine, morphine, opium, strychnia, heroin, chloral hydrate or derivities thereof, and all other medical poisonous alkaloids and their salts. The bill will be introduced by Senator Frawley.

Catholic Club Election.

The annual election of the Catholic Club was held yesterday. The officers chosen were President, Michael J. Mulqueen, First Vice President, John R. Butler; Second Vice President, Frank F. Lisiecki; Secretary, Percy J. King; Treasurer, Alfred M. Barrett. The following were elected to the Board of Managers to serve until June, 1916: James A. Beha, John F. Cross, John J. Durkin, Henry Heide, Jr., Roger P. Kavanagh, Edward E. McCall and James S. McDonogh.

MAKE BIG SILENCER FOR A NOISY PLANT

Giant Sleep-Killing Electric Generators Enlist Services of Scientists.

SEND AIR THROUGH A WELL

Ingenious System, Inventors Believe, Will Stop Complaints of Washington Heights.

Several authorities on acoustics and methods of silencing noise indoors and out are at present engaged in an effort to devise some scientific method of silencing the roar of three giant 15,000 kilowatt turbine driven generators in the 201st Street station of the United Electric Light and Power Company. Prof. Wallace C. Sabine, dean of the Graduate School of Applied Science at Harvard, is among those who are considering the problem.

Because of the complaints of Washington Heights property owners the lighting company engaged a firm of engineers to make a thorough study of conditions and to try to find a remedy. This firm several months ago was engaged to undertake the task of making sound proof a large room in the Cuyahoga County Court House in Cleveland, Ohio. C. M. Swan, a former Institute of Technology professor, and an associate of Prof. Sabine, was in charge of the task, which was carried out successfully in the face of many obstacles.

The success of the Cleveland man led the electric lighting company to believe that it might be possible to kill the rumble of its huge generators. Because of the great speed at which the turbine driven generators are operated, it is necessary to keep a draught circulating through the generating room. Otherwise the air would become unbearably warm and the machines would be overheated.

Two large doors in the front of the building are left open all night, and with the rush of air from the basement generating room the roar of the generators is carried out into the night, disturbing the sleep of apartment dwellers a dozen blocks away.

Prof. Sabine and Prof. Swan have worked out an elaborate system which they think will do away with the sleep-disturing roar in the future. They believed that the rush of air up from the basement, carrying the sound off the generators through the open doors, was a vital part of the problem. A system has been devised whereby the air from the basement will be conducted into a small well which will lead to the first floor. This well is to be equipped with partitions, arranged close together after the fashion of the series of compartments in the Maxim silencer. These partitions are made of thin boards, which provide a substantial foundation for layer after layer of felt made of cattle hair. This felt is three inches thick.

Prof. Sabine's idea is that when the air rushes through the well to the first floor the sound will be killed and the grumble of the generators will be reduced to a minimum.

The 201st Street power plant has been in operation only a few weeks. More than $6,000,000 was spent for the building and equipment.

"ALL-NIGHT" PLAN READY.

Mitchel Will Announce His Policy to Go Into Effect at Once.

Mayor Mitchel to-day will announce his policy as to the closing hour of restaurants. The report of the special "curfew committee" reached the Mayor's office yesterday, but Mr. Mitchel did not have time to study it. When he left his office last night he carried the report with him, intending to examine it at his home.

"Whatever policy is determined on," said the Mayor, "will be placed in operation immediately."

Mr. Mitchel's attention was called to the fact that his committee recommended closing the cabaret restaurants at 2 A. M. He was asked whether that implied closing in the strict sense of the word or only that the sale of food and drink would be stopped at 2 o'clock.

"I believe in a common-sense interpretation of any measure like that," said the Mayor, without committing himself. "What we need is a law that we can live up to, and not a law which will be violated. But I will not discuss the closing question now. I will express my views to-morrow, and immediately will instruct the Police Commissioner to issue orders in conformity with the new plan."

If the closing time is fixed at 2 o'clock, or any other hour of the early morning, restaurants desiring the privilege must take out all-night licenses. The Mayor said yesteray he had received eighteen applications for such licenses.

MRS. JOHN ASTOR ARRIVES.

Greeted at the Pier by Miss Helen D. Huntington, Her Son's Fiancee.

Mrs. John Astor arrived yesterday from Europe on the Imperator to attend her son's wedding next month, and was met at the pier by Miss Helen Dinsmore Huntington, her future daughter-in-law, and William A. Dobbin, who was secretary to the late Col. Astor and now holds the same office with his son.

Mrs. Astor was dressed in black with white ruff at the neck, and had on a black picture hat with ostrich plume of the same color. She said her time would be divided between New York and Newport, and that she had not decided when she would return to Europe. Her chief object in coming over was to be at Vincent Astor's wedding.

While waiting on the pier for her baggage, Mrs. Astor divided her time between talking to Miss Huntington and dodging two moving-picture men who were trying hard to get her on the film.

There is nothing equivocal about Equitable advantages

THE Equitable Building is not merely nearly central—it is the actual centre of Downtown New York.

It is not merely one of the most modern buildings, it is actually the most modern building extant, so modern that it is not built yet.

And the superiority of its advantages clean through is just as indisputable as the centrality of its location and the modern character of its construction.

It is the ultimate in buildings, leasing now and building to finish next year.

Leases now being made from May 1, 1915. The building, however, is due to be completed 2 or 3 months ahead of that date.

MISS WAGNER WINS INDOOR TENNIS TITLE---BASEBALL---BILLIARDS---FENCING---ATHLETICS

MISS WAGNER HOLDS LAWN TENNIS TITLE

Mrs. Weaver and Miss Cassel Win Doubles Championship on Armory Courts.

Miss Marie Wagner defended her title as national lawn tennis indoor champion yesterday at the Seventh Regiment Armory when she defeated Mrs. Charles N. Beard by two sets to one by the score of 6—1, 2—6, 6—3. In the final round for the doubles title Miss Clare Cassel and Mrs. S. F. Weaver won from Mrs. W. McLean and Mrs. Frederick Schmitz in another three set match by the score of 4—6, 6—2, 6—4. The two events closed the most successful tournament since the introduction of the women's championship.

The championship round in the women's singles was a repetition of one year ago, when the same players were the finalists. At that time Miss Wagner won with ease, but yesterday's victory was secured only after a hard fight. The former Western and Middle States champion forced the title holder to her best, and succeeded in making the score one set all, but in the end the superiority of Miss Wagner told and Mrs. Beard was reluctantly compelled to acknowledge Miss Wagner as her superior.

From the time Miss Wagner led off with the service up to the final stroke there was plenty of action, and the court honors changed repeatedly. The first game was a close one, deuce being called before the champion could score the first point. Mrs. Beard returned to the attack on her own service and brought the score to an even basis. From this point to the end of the set, Miss Wagner was invincible, and in only one game was deuce called. She ran five games in succession, scoring 30 points to 18 to her opponent.

Conditions were reversed in the second set, when Mrs. Beard completely outplayed Miss Wagner in driving. The champion was unable to compete with the challenger, who cut the lines clearly on both sides when Miss Wagner came up to the net. The best Miss Wagner was able to do in this set was to win the fourth and fifth games. She could not beat Mrs. Beard at driving, because of her errors, nor did the champion show the pace and strength to force her opponent out of position. The superior court generalship and her strokes showed so much improvement over the first set that not a few of those present predicted the downfall of the champion.

Miss Wagner made a splendid rally in the third set, but Mrs. Beard for a time was able to keep on even terms with her opponent. With the score at 2 all the champion broke through Mrs. Beard's service and secured a lead of one game. This appeared to affect the challenger's game and Miss Wagner was not slow to take advantage of this. Mrs. Beard still put up a gallant battle, but Miss Wagner finished the match with a straight rum of five games in order.

The doubles furnished an unexpected ending. Miss E. C. Bunce and Mrs. W. Sullivan lost a hard match early in the morning to Mrs. McLean and Mrs. Schmitz in two out of three sets. Twenty-five games were played and the latter pair were not entirely recovered when called upon to play Miss Cassel and Mrs. Weaver. The early part of the first set showed the two teams apparently evenly matched, each securing two out of the first four games. Mrs. McLean played the back court to splendid shape and kept Miss Cassel busy racing after the long lobs. The style of play was effective and Mrs. McLean and her partner scored many points. With the score 4 all Mrs. Weaver went into the net and developed unsteadiness, which enabled Mrs. McLean and Mrs. Schmitz to run out the next two games and win the set.

Mrs. Weaver played close up to the net in the second set, while Miss Cassel took the long drives. The combination was a winning one, and after the score was carried to 2 games all Mrs. Weaver and Miss Cassel ran four games in succession, showing splendid placement shots, while their opponents repeatedly drove out of court. Four of the eight games in this set went to deuce, Mrs. Weaver and Miss Cassel winning 37 to 27 games.

The third and deciding set was the best contested and most sensational of the match. Finding that the long court game suited them Mrs. Weaver and Miss Cassel kept it up and brought off many shots thereby. Mrs. McLean and Mrs. Schmitz fought gamely and actually led 4 games to 3, when their opponents broke down their defense and ran out the set with three straight games and for the first time in their careers won a national title. GOULD TO PLAY COVEY AGAIN

England to be Scene of Next Open Court Tennis Match Next Year.

PHILADELPHIA, March 19.—The Hon. Neville S. Lytton, who employs George T. Covey as a professional and accompanied him to this country for his match at court tennis with Jay Gould, announced to-day that Covey will play a return match with the new title holder in the Spring of next year in England.

"It was thoroughly understood that we would receive a return match to be played in England in the event of Covey losing to Mr. Gould," said the English visitor, "and I will arrange for the same to be played next Spring.

"Mr. Gould played a wonderful game, quite unbeatable, to my way of thinking at this particular time, but when you consider that he was favored by a home court and American balls, he certainly had Covey playing under a strong handicap.

"I am quite sure that when they meet in a return match next year there will be a different story to tell. The advantage then will be with us, and I know Covey will do much better."

Mr. Lytton, who is amateur court tennis champion of England, defeated Jock Soutar, world's racquet champion, to-day in a special court tennis match, two sets to one. The English champion allowed his opponent one point in each alternate game, and was himself allowed to claim one point in each set.

DAVIS CUP MATCHES HERE.

West Side Sure of Challenge Round—Executive Committee to Meet.

Officials of the United States Lawn Tennis Association will held their annual schedule meeting to-day at the Waldorf-Astoria, when an effort will be made to complete the list for the season. The difficulty in arranging the dates for the important tournaments is due to the Davis Cup matches, which will be played on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, Aug. 13, 14, and 15. It is possible that owing to these difficulties the official list of dates will not be announced until next week. The all-comers tournament at Newport is scheduled to begin on Monday, Aug. 24, while the week between these two important fixtures will be taken up by the Meadow Club at Southampton.

It is hoped that the foreign players will consent to play one or more of the preliminary matches in the United States. The preliminary round for the international cup must be completed by Aug. 8. This leaves only four days for rest for the team of the nation that wins the right to challenge for the cup. This short time may influence the teams in the semi-final round to play in this country. In which event the players could remain over for the national tournament.

The Longwood Cricket Club, represented by National Executive Committeeman Palmer E. Presbry, is working on the International Committee to secure the Davis Cup challenge round. The general feeling, however, is that Boston will get one of the semi-final matches should the foreign nations consent to play in this country. That the West Side Lawn Tennis Club will be awarded the biggest attraction on the season's list, is almost an assured fact. The businesslike handling of the tournament last year on the old club courts is recognized by President Wrenn and his associates on the committee, and the fact that seating accommodations for 20,000 will be provided by the club strengthens the hold on the committee's grounds selection.

There is little enthusiasm over the application of the Crescent Athletic Club. The grounds at Bay Ridge are inaccessible, and the difficulty in reaching the courts is a strong argument against staging the Davis Cup match there. The New York State championship will be awarded to the Crescent Athletic Club, and this will be the club's feature tennis exhibit for 1914. With the challenge round practically assured the West Side Club, tentative dates will be set for the preliminary rounds in the event of playing them in this country. There is certain to be a scramble for these events, and Boston will likely get one, while Philadelphia is in line for another. If there are enough matches to go around, Pittsburgh or Chicago will be awarded one event.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., March 19.—The Australian tennis team is anxious that the elimination match with the Canadian team in the Davis Cup series shall be played in New York instead of Niagara. A request has been forwarded to the United States Lawn Tennis Association to this effect.

RAIN IN YANKEES' CAMP.

Manager Chance Releases Pitcher Rose to Houston Club.

Special to The New York Times.

HOUSTON, Texas, March 19.—Manager Chance has come to the conclusion that this is the time of year when he will have to decide whom he will keep among the new men. The weeding-out process, which generally begins about this period of a training trip, started to-day. While the rain was falling and the Yankees had to stay indoors the first of the rookies to be released was Charley Rose, the little left-handed pitcher, who was secured from the Houston Club. Rose will again play with the Houston Club. Rose pitched good ball in the Texas League last season, but the consensus of opinion seems to be that he is a little too light for the big organization, but he may come back for another trial next season.

Manager Chance is evidently delighted with the work of King Cole, who at one time was a great pitcher for Chance when he was the leader of the Cubs.

"I think Cole is going to win a lot of ball games for us the coming season," said the New York manager. "I have known the King for a long time, and I never saw him in such grand condition as he is on this trip."

Ray Keating reported to-day that his toe was better and that he would be able to get in uniform, probably, to-morrow. Only two days are left for the Yankees to finish their work at Houston. It is very likely that Chance will have his men out twice a day for the finish of the preparatory trip.

CALUMETS LOSE AGAIN.

University Club Scores Easy Victory in Interclub League.

After being kept indoors for almost three months by rain and snow, the Interclub League resumed activities at its Fifth Avenue ball field yesterday afternoon. The University Club and the Calumets were the contenders in the game played, and the University players strengthened their hold on first place by making the Calumets more secure in the cellar. The score was 16 to 3 in favor of the Knicks, who presented a veteran aggregation against a team made up of several newcomers in the Winter League.

The hitting honors were almost evenly distributed, but the Knickerbockers far outclassed the Calumets from a fielding standpoint, and this told the tale. The winners fielded perfectly, while the Calumets made eleven errors, most of them being wild throws in an effort to locate the bases. The Calumets had runners on the bases in every inning, gathering fourteen hits off Frank Simmons of the Knickerbockers, but they could do nothing with him when a hit meant anything. Simmons was about as successful at scattering the hits as the Calumets were adept at scattering errors into the game with runners on the paths.

"Billy" Tilt, one time a star boxman at Columbia and later a champion at pocket billiards, was introduced to Winter League society yesterday as pitcher for the Calumets. Tilt's pitching was good enough, but his throwing to bases, or in the general direction of the bases, was very bad. The line-up and score:

Columbia Wrestlers Lose.

A team of Columbia substitute wrestlers showed unexpected strength against the New York A. C. team last night in a meet held in the Morningside Heights Gymnasium, although the Winged Foot grapplers won five out of the seven bouts and a draw. Under the new system of points the New York A. C. team scored 24 to Columbia's 6. Only two falls were scored by the club team, the other bouts going on close decisions after the full limit of time. The summaries:

115-Pound Class.—A. Pascarella, Columbia, drew with G. Downey, New York A. C. Time—12:00.

125-Pound Class.—H. L. Meyers, Columbia, defeated H. M. Graham, New York A. C., on decision. Time—9:00.

135-Pound Class.—C. Carlson, New York A. C., defeated C. B. Sadler, Columbia, on decision. Time—9:00.

RAIN IN THE SOUTH RETARDS BALL CLUBS

Giants Run Cross Country and Yankees Are Kept Indoors in Texas.

Special to The New York Times.

MARLIN, Texas, March 19.—After the stretch of good weather, cold rain and wind afflicted the Giants to-day and kept them away from their ball park entirely. It was the first complete day to be lost from baseball practice. Not a bat, glove or baseball was touched. Uniforms were donned, however. There were cross-country runs, morning and afternoon, and the packs had to stick to the railroad tracks to keep out of the mud. The various parties went to where fancy dictated. Jim Thorpe headed one pack, and his marathonian accomplishments were too much for the rest. Jim was first going and coming and led in a party of stragglers.

For the first team's two games in Dallis this week-end the pitchers selected by McGraw are Marquard, Tesreau, Fromme, and Schauer, with Meyers and Johnson to share the backstopping. For the triumphant team marshalled by Donlin and Snodgrass in Waco on Saturday and Sunday the twirlers will be Mathewson, Demaree, Schupp, and Williams. Williams has not been out of Marlin since he came here, and will have his first chance as a Giant to show his goods against a professional team.

Snodgrass by his work at third base for the second team is making a strong bid as the regular in that position. He has a good chance to play it, McGraw says, if Mr. Hempstead is not successful in his California quest of Arthur Shafer. The manager opines that the batting, base running, and hustling of Snodgrass are valuable to have in every game. Snodgrass says he had rather play third than the outfield.

"You're in the game more in the infield," is the view he takes of it. "You have more to do and a chance to make more noise."

Relief from baseball to-day was not an unwelcome change for some of the players, as the work during the fair weather was exacting.

JOHNSON NOT INTERESTED.

As Murphy Is Out, Affairs of Cubs Do Not Concern Him.

CHICAGO, March 19.—President Johnson of the American League, who returned late this afternoon from Wisconsin, declined to comment on Charles Thomas' appointment as President of the Cubs. He seemed to be assured that Charles W. Murphy was no longer connected with the Cubs, and said that affairs of the West Side Club were of no concern to him.

President Comiskey of the Chicago Americans, whose illness while abroad caused his friends anxiety, has improved greatly since he went into the North woods, according to President Johnson.

Secretary John W. Ward stated yesterday that Charles W Murphy had certainly "put one over" on organized ball when he "sold out" to Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati. Mr. Ward thinks that the appointment of Charles Thomas as President of the Cubs is a distinct victory for Mr. Murphy.

"The National League marched in solid phalanx on Cincinnati," said Mr. Ward, "to drive Murphy out of base ball forever. I did not think at the time Mr. Murphy could be disposed of in that way. He is too clever. To my mind, he is a shrewd and clever baseball man. The united forces of the National League might have believed that they had gotten rid of Murphy, but this last move makes me think that Charles W. 'put one over' on the whole league. I knew that they wouldn't get rid of him as easy as they announced. Putting Thomas in at the head of the Chicago Club looks to me very much like a Murphy move.

"An impression which we wish to correct," said Mr. Ward, "is concerning the dates of the Federal League. Our policy from the first has been to avoid confliction with the clubs of organized ball, and when our dates are arranged in Baltimore next week, we will make a special effort to avoid conflicting dates with the Brooklyn Nationals. Of course, you understand on our circuit we have to contend with the schedules of four leagues, the National, American, International, and American Association, and it will be impossible to avoid conflictions in every city. Our effort will be, however, to avoid conflicts in the major league cities.

"I visited Washington Park yesterday," said Mr. Ward, "and received assurance from the contractors that the park will be ready for the opening of the season."

Brooklyn Feds Win Easily.

Special to The New York Times.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., March 19.—The Brooklyn Federal League team to-day experienced no difficulty in trimming the Wofford College nine of this place by the score of 15 to 0. The team, under the guiding hand of Manager Bradley, was composed of a mixture of veterans and youngsters. Fifteen players made the trip, the rest of the squad remaining in Columbia with Artie Hoffman in charges. The score:

										R.	H.	E.

Batteries—Brooklyn: Chappelle, Summers, Peters, Owens, and Hildebrand; Wofford: Frey, Lawton, Osborne, and Cross.

Skip Wymard to Coach Fordham.

The Athletic Association, at Fordham, yesterday announced the selection of Norman L. (Skip) Wymard, Georgetown '12, as coach of the football team next Fall. Wymard succeeds Tom Thorpe, the old Columbia Captain. Wymard was the only man of his class to win the "G" in three sports. "Skip" is a brother of "Bud" Wymard, Captain-elect of Fordham's eleven, and hails from Pittsburgh. It was Wymard's great defensive playing and punting that stopped the winning streak of Fordham's stellar eleven in 1909 and humbled West Point in 1910, when the Southerners tied the Army, 0—0. The selection of Wymard, a son of Fordham's great rival to coach the eleven is a novel one, and was variously commented upon on the campus.

Notes of the Turf.

Saratoga citizens have raised $10,000 on behalf of the coming race season there and Assistant Secretary Earlocker is preparing a stake programme for the month of August. The $10,000 will be turned over to the association by the merchants and hotelmen of the Springs, and this amount will be distributed among the horsemen in purse prizes for the races.

At a meeting of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association the application of the Maryland Jockey Club for racing dates from May 6 to May 23 were granted. The Jamestown Jockey Club was also authorized to give hurdle races at its coming Norfolk meeting, which is to open April 1.

John Bullman, who rode with much success over most of the tracks in the country a dozen years ago, is critically ill in the St. James Hospital at Butte Montana. Bullman rode both Sidney Lucas and Robert Waddell to victory in the American Derby. He rode for August Belmont when in his best form and shared in most of the turf triumphs of Mizzen, Masterman, and others of the same time. He also rode Africander in some of his best races, when that three-year-old was making turf history.

CHICAGO MAY KEEP SEATON.

George Ward Confers with Gilmore on Probable Trade for Pitcher.

CHICAGO, March 19.—President Gilmore of the Federal League and George Ward of the Brooklyn Club to-day discussed a possible trade which may result in Pitcher Seaton being transferred from the Brooklyn team to Chicago. Seaton has been anxious to remain with Manager Tinker's team, and if a deal satisfactory to Brooklyn can be made it is likely he will do so. Temporarily he will continue to train with Chicago, but President Gilmore refused to discuss the case further.

GOOD DAY FOR SUPERBAS.

Play Full Game and Have Two Workouts at Augusta.

Special to The New York Times.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 19.—The Superbas played a nine-inning game this afternoon, in addition to having two good workouts. The scrub affair was won by the regulars, minus the services of Capt. Jake Daubert, by a score of 5 to 3. The big feature was the hitting of Cutshaw, who made four hits—two triples and two singles. Other features were a catch by Wheat in the third inning and two remarkable catches by Holmquist in centre field. Buck followed his great catch by a long triple.

With the score a tie in the eighth inning the regulars got to Pitcher Herbert and gathered in two runs. Cutshaw opened with a long triple. Kraft followed with a double, and on Wheat's out and Smith's sacrifice fly two runs were put over the plate.

Pitchers Pennington and Ring, both Brooklyn semi-professionals, will leave here next Tuesday morning for Brooklyn, via Savannah. There is a very good chance that they will be recommended to Eddie Phelps, manager of the Albany Club, for a tryout there. The other young pitchers, Andrews and Neyenhaus, the latter also a Brooklyn semi-pro, will remain here with the local club for more seasoning.

Outfielder Collins, who came from Newark last Fall, will be sent back to that club when it arrives here for a brace of exhibition games this week. He probably will play first base in place of Swacina, who jumped to the Baltimore Federal League Club.

President Ebbets made a great hit with his players this morning by donning a uniform and taking a little exercise. Manager Robinson had the "Squire of Flatbush" doing everything except practicing in the sliding pit.

FEDS BEWARE OF STALLINGS

Boston Manager Restrains Outlaws from Tampering with His Men.

MACON, Ga., March 19.—George Stallings, manager of the Boston National League baseball club, last night announced that he had obtained an injunction to prevent agents of the Federal League from having communication with any member of the Boston Club.

The injunction was obtained from Judge Mathews of the Superior Court here, under provisions of the Georgia Contract Labor law.

"If any Federal League representative comes to Macon or any point in the State of Georgia and attempts to get my players away from me I'll put him in jail as sure as he gets off a train," said Stallings.

"The Georgia Labor Contract law is explicit on that point. When an employer has signed an employe to a contract calling for his services for a stated time, any other employer is violating the law when he attempts to get the employe under contract to violate that contract with a view to taking employment with another party.

"We have been waiting for some Federal League agent to come to Macon. I am sorry the news leaked out, as we were looking forward with pleasure to the arrival of an emissary of the Federals."

Stallings made the announcement only after it became known generally that an injunction had been granted.

Exhibition Games in South.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 19.—Heavy hitting by Chicago marked to-day's game here between the Chicago National League team and the Savannah South Atlantic League Club, the former winning, 12 to 3. Reisigl, loaned to Savannah for the game by the Providence International League team, pitched part of the game for the locals. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Chicago	12	19	4
Savannah	3	8	5

Batteries—Zabel, Utrek, and Hargroves; Tyree, Reisigl, Bentley, Cheney, and Smith.

MACON, Ga., March 19.—The Boston National League Club to-day defeated the Newark, N. J., International League team, 8 to 2. Maranville, shortstop, and Evers, second baseman of the Boston team, played sensational ball. E. Zimmerman and Tooley scored Newark's runs with home runs. The score:

Boston	8	7	1
Newark	2	7	2

Batteries—Rudolph, Cocerhan, Tyler, and Gowdy; S. Smith, Schacht, and H. Smith.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 19.—The Cleveland American League team and the Atlanta Southern League team played a tie game here to-day, 6 to 6, the contest being called at the end of the eighth inning on account of darkness. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Cleveland	6	8	4
Atlanta	6	6	8

Batteries—Cullop, Hagerman, O'Neil, and Billings; Efrid, Lawrence, Browning, and Dunn.

WAYCROSS, Ga., March 19.—The Philadelphia American League team to-day won from the Waycross, Ga., State League team here, 9 to 0. McInnis, Philadelphia's first baseman, hit for a home run in the seventh inning, scoring one run ahead of him. The score:

Philadelphia	9	16	2

Batteries—Plank, Shawkey, Durning, and Thomas; Higlefort, Warwick, and McAvoy.

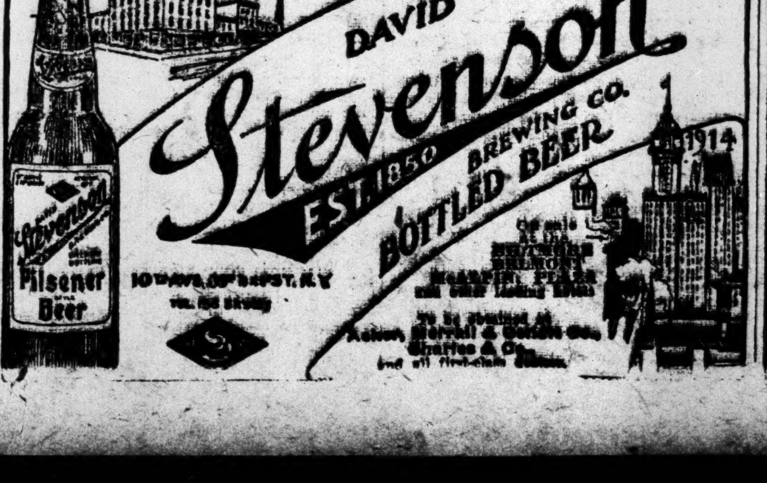
To Prepare Polo Grounds Field.

Groundkeeper Henry Fabian of the Polo Grounds will arrive in this city to-day and immediately begin the work of getting the playing field in shape for the opening of the season. Fabian has been in Marlin Springs, where he performed the difficult task of preparing Emerson Park for the training practice. For the first time in several seasons, there will be no games at the Polo Grounds before the opening of the regular season on April 14 between the Athletics and Yankees. As the Giants open in Philadelphia, they will stay in Baltimore until the day before the opening of the season. The agreement which the Yankees have for the Polo Grounds does not permit exhibition games, and therefore their exhibition games will be played in Brooklyn and Jersey City.

The football games at the Polo Grounds last Fall did not damage the field to any extent, as the base paths were protected by a layer of turf, which can readily be removed.

Umpire Hart for National League.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 19.—President Kavanaugh of the Southern League to-night announced the release of Umpire William Hart to the National League. Hart, a veteran pitcher of the National League, was a former team mate of President Tener when the National League President was a baseball player. To-day Mr. Tener telegraphed an offer to purchase Hart. Mr. Kavanaugh to-night replied that the release would be granted unconditionally.



ATHLETES TO QUIT MILITARY LEAGUE

Thirteenth Regiment and Naval Militia Want a New Organization.

Col. Nathaniel B. Thurston of the General Staff of the National Guard, who was referee of the recent Military Athletic League championships in the armory of the Seventy-first Regiment, has disallowed the protests of the Seventy-first Regiment athletes, which were made in connection with the running of the one-mile relay race and the military hike. In the first-named event it was alleged by the protestants that the crowd of hikers interfered with the progress of Homer Baker, the anchor man of their relay team, in his efforts to overhaul Abel Kiviat of the Thirteenth Artillery, the team of which ultimately got honors. In the hike all of the competing teams were disqualified with the exception of the Second Infantry of Schenectady, which received first prize.

The Seventy-first Regiment authorities will ask for a reversal of the decision in both cases at a hearing to be held by the Military Athletic League Committee this week. The Seventy-first's team finished first in the hike, a team race of two miles in which, according to rules, the men were to finish in close formation. One member of the team got into the armory nearly a minute earlier than his mates, and after he had made one circuit of the armory he accompanied his mates around the required two laps, with the result that the team easily finished first. Protests followed, and a decision was not reached for more than an hour after the event had been concluded.

The sports developed much dissatisfaction, and it is acknowledged that there is little unanimity among the members of the league.

The spirit of dissatisfaction and unrest which has developed in many spheres of sport in connection with rules and management, and which pervades some of the athletic associations of the National Guard, took definite form with the announced intention of the Thirteenth Artillery, C. A. C., to withdraw from the Military Athletic League.

In addition to this proposed defection, it is stated that others intend taking similar action, and that the next to follow will be the Second Battalion, Naval Militia, of Brooklyn, which has been rapidly rounding itself into a strong athletic organization.

The old complaint of "taxation without representation" is said to furnish the keynote of the situation, the assertion being made that, while the organizations named have many men in their ranks who are fully qualified to interpret and administer the laws of the M. A. L., all have been sidetracked, to the end that "gold lace and trimmings" appears to be the main qualification for governing positions in the league's work.

There is an undercurrent of opinion among members of the guard who are aligned with the Brooklyn regiments that a new organization should be formed among the present members of the M. A. L. across the bridge. Support is promised from the Twenty-third Regiment and Forty-seventh Regiment if any break is made from the present parent body, which was reorganized a year ago to take over all of the athletic activities of New York State.

PRINCETON INDOOR GAMES.

Sophomores Win Point Honors—'Varsity Runners Barred.

Columbia Mass Meeting April 3.

Members of the Columbia University Athletic Association will have their long-sought opportunity to voice their views on the way in which the association should run and the policies it adopts on April 3, when a mass meeting will be held. C. P. MacCarthy, Chairman of the Board of Student Representatives, announced the meeting yesterday. It will be the first time that a general meeting of this kind has ever been held at Columbia, and every member of the association is invited by the Student Board Chairman to suggest his own plan for the rehabilitation of athletics on Morningside Heights in order that its qualities may be tested and thrashed out in open meeting.

Kimm Roller Skating Champion.

DETROIT, Mich., March 19.—Leon Kimm of Chicago won the mile race for the amateur championship of the world at the roller skating tournament here last night. His time was 3:05 1-5, the fastest time for a mile made thus far during the meet. Elmer Eckman of Chicago was second. There were five starters.

BROWN DEFEATS MAYER.

Amateur Champion Billiardist Goes Down by Score of 400 to 379.

Morris D. Brown, a former title holder, practically eliminated Joseph Mayer, the champion, from the series for the amateur billiard championship when he beat him in last night's game at the Amateur Billiard Club, by 400 to 379. The match was the best of the tournament, and served to shape up a three-cornered tie, at four wins and one defeat each for Poggenburg, Gardner, and Brown. The winners average was 11 4-36, with high runs of 52, 35, and 34.

From a somewhat indifferent beginning Mayer soon got the spheres rolling to his satisfaction and in the fifth inning managed to net 28 before he missed. This bevy he immediately afterward supplemented with 25, but it was not until he had made his first shot in the fourteenth inning that he got by the first century mark, his opponent's string showing 65 at that stage.

Following the 200 mark, however, he slowed up in lamentable fashion, whereas his opponent found his stroke to such good purpose from his twenty-first to the twenty-fourth innings, inclusive, that he rolled up 98 buttons for a total of 315, with Brown 111 points to the bad. Mayer's twenty-fourth time at the table was productive of the fastest work of the night.

One of the most brilliant attempts of the game, and which resulted in a count, was Brown's third essay in his twenty-eighth inning. The balls were in opposite corners near the lower rail, and in his desire for position he glanced off the first ball, which he drove alongside the other in the opposite corner. While his cue ball traveled the length of the table and back again for a carom, incidentally getting the spheres in perfect position, making it possible for the corralling of 29 for a total of 274.

From here on the most exciting stages of the game and tournament were the outcome of the play, as first one and then the other player was in the van. Brown gave his admirers a shock in next to his final inning, when he aggregated 23, needing but four points for the game, slipping up on a draw shot. Mayer failed to inflict any appreciable damage in his last inning, and Brown ran out the game, 400 to 379. The summaries:

Sutton Ends Practice.

George Sutton of Chicago concluded his series of exhibition games at the Morningside Billiard Academy, 125th Street and Lenox Avenue, where he has been practicing for his match to-night with Willie Hoppe for the 18.2 balkline billiard championship yesterday, with two games with E. Brown. Sutton displayed his best form of the series and won both matches handily, his consistent playing in each contest being the feature. In the afternoon the Chicago player won by the score of 400 to 78, running out his string in eight innings. In the evening Sutton again outplayed Brown and won by the one-sided score of 300 to 60 in nine innings.

In his final practice matches at Thum's Billiard Academy, Thirty-first Street and Broadway, last night, Willie Hoppe showed a marked improvement over his form in previous exhibitions, and won both games rather easily. In the afternoon Hoppe defeated Al Latchford by the score of 250 to 30 in seven innings. C. Chapman opposed Hoppe in the evening contest, and the final score favored the champion by 400 to 55 in nine innings.

N. Y. A. C. Protests to the A. A. U.

The New York Athletic Club has officially protested against the action of the Amateur Athletic Union in suspending several of the club's swimmers for competing against the United States Naval Academy cadets. At a meeting of the club's officers the following resolution was adopted:

That the New York Athletic Club notify the Amateur Athletic Union that it is the sense of this club that clubs or members of clubs which are allied with the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States be permitted to compete with the students of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., and the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., without subjecting themselves to suspension or other penalties by the Amateur Athletic Union.

As a matter of fact the Amateur Athletic Union at its last meeting provided for just this sort of thing by deciding that at the next annual meeting of the union a law will be passed allowing club and other athletes to compete against the Service athletes without the latter having necessarily to be registered.

U. S. Power Squadron Lecture.

A public lecture on the questions asked by the examiners of the Hudson River Division of the United States Power Squadron will be given to-morrow evening at the Hotel Hermitage, Broadway and Forty-first Street, at 8 o'clock. All yachtsmen interested in this movement will be welcome. The Hudson River Yacht Racing Association will hold a general Regatta Committee meeting in the afternoon at the same place.

ALL VEHICLES MUST CARRY LIGHTS

Measure Sought by Motorists Becomes Law—Interesting Wheel Test by A. C. A.

Motorists have been much pleased by the passage of a measure at Albany and its signature by Gov. Glynn which embodies a principle for which they long have been fighting. This is the Wilson bill requiring lights on all vehicles, both motor and horse drawn, which has now become a law. The contention of motorists has been that only by forcing all vehicles to show lights at night could safety be secured. Heretofore, motor vehicles only have been legally compelled to carry lights, and the dangers of the dark cart or wagon have become familiar to users of automobiles. These dangers will now be eliminated in New York State.

The Merchants' Association has indorsed two street safety bills introduced in the State Senate at the request of the Corporation Counsel by Senator Simpson. One bill amends the city charter by increasing the limit of policemen in the Traffic Squad in New York City from 550 to 1,000. The other measure provides that disobedience of an order issued by the police in the enforcement of the rules governing vehicular traffic in public places shall be a misdemeanor, punishable by imprisonment for not less than two nor more than thirty days, or by a fine of not less than $5 nor more than $50, or both. The association believes that the Traffic Squad is at present insufficient to discharge its duty effectively, and it will use its efforts ot secure the passage of both bills.

The testing laboratory of the Automobile Club of America will undertake shortly an elaborate road test, with a view to showing the relative effect of wooden and wire wheels on the wear of automobile tires. Two sets of tires of the same make, size, and quality will be fitted to two cars of the same make and model, one car using the wooden wheels furnished by its maker, the other wire wheels of some well-known type. These two cars will be driven an average of about 125 miles a day for a period of several weeks. Each car will be continuously in charge of an official observer, acting under the direction of the club's Technical Committee and Herbert Chase, engineer for the club. Both cars will follow a certain route each day, one leading and the other following closely behind, as nearly as possible in the same track and at the same speed. The next day the cars will travel the same course, but the one which followed on the first day will lead, while the leader on the first day will follow.

The drivers will also be interchanged. On many of these trips the cars will carry a full complement of passengers or equivalent ballast, but the number of passengers will be changed from time to time, so that the condition under which the car is operated will approximate as nearly as possible the actual conditions under which the average car is operated in normal use. Careful note will be made of the distance covered by each tire and of the conditions of each at various times during the run. At the end of the test an official report will be published by the club, giving a record of all happenings of moment affecting the tire wear during the test and the mileage covered by each tire during its useful life. The tires used on the rear wheels will be interchanged with those on the front wheels after they have covered approximately half of the total mileage for which they are expected to run.

Road Drivers' Beefsteak.

With all the prominent whips of the city among the 350 guests, the annual beefsteak dinner of the New York Road Drivers' Association was held at Reisenweber's last night. The horsemen all predicted a big season on the Speedway. The plans for the season were discussed and the opening day at the Speedway in May promises to be the biggest in the history of the organization.

Andrew Crawford was toastmaster, and among the speakers were Vice President James B. Kennedy, Park Commissioner Cabot Ward, Sidney Toman, ex-Senator George W. Plunkett, Jacob Tabolt, Paul Dana, Hugh Reilly, winner of the President's Cup on the Speedway last season; Judge Tompkins of Nyack, Alexander Johnson, and several others.

The officers of the Road Drivers are: President, Dr. J. H. Ferster; First Vice President, James B. Kennedy; Second Vice President, I. V. Hunt; Third Vice President, E. O. Benson, and Secretary-Treasurer, R. O. Currie. Among those present were W. F. Donnelly, Boston; James Shannon, official starter on the Speedway; Dr. Moffitt Smith, Herman Grossman, Robert L. Davis, Edward Gray, Al McKean, George Darrow, J. A. Park, Thomas J. Hines, William A. Martin, Ellsworth C. Westcott, Plainfield; Samuel Breisland, Sr., Plainfield; Walter Tausig, Sol B. Wolf, Joseph F. Gibbons, Adam Blair, Edward Shoemaker, Reuben W. Smith, Thomas B. Kennedy, Horace Ingersoll, Thomas R. Eichinger, and Robert Jacobs.

New York A. C. Fencer Wins Dr. Buys Medal at Crescent A. C.

F. B. O'Connor, Jr., of the New York A. C. last night won first prize from a field of twenty-one junior foilsmen at the Crescent A. C., Brooklyn, for the Dr. T. A. Buys Medals. S. Straus of the New York Turn-Verein and C. MacPherson of the New York A. C. tied for second honors, the former winning the fence-off and relegating his opponent to third place. The winner won four bouts and lost one in the finals, while the runners-up each won three and lost two. The preliminary competitions, fought out on three strips, required nearly four hours before the final six were decided.

WILL DEFEND HER TITLE.

Miss Ravenscroft to Play in Women's Golf Next Fall.

PHILADELPHIA, March 19.—Miss Gladys Ravenscroft of England, woman's golf champion of the United States, denied to-night reports sent out from Pinehurst that she had decided not to come to this country next Fall to defend the title she captured at the Wilmington Country Club last October. Miss Ravenscroft arrived in this city to-day from the South where she had been for about three months.

"I said before leaving Philadelphia," she declared, "that I would return for the next women's national tournament in the United States, provided it was at all possible for me to make the trip. I fully expected to come to this country the latter part of August, and I still hope to do so."

Miss Muriel Dodd, women's golf champion of Great Britain, will not come here again next Fall, according to Miss Ravenscroft, but one or two other women who rank high in British golfing circles probably will try for the American title. Miss Ravenscroft expects to sail for England on March 25.

Golfers to Uplift Caddies.

CHICAGO, March 19.—Presidents of twenty-five golf clubs in and around Chicago have formed the Chicago District Golf Association, the object of which is to look after the welfare and uplift of the club caddies. F. S. Peabody, President of the Hinsdale Golf Club, was elected President of the new association, and D. F. Kelly, President of the Exmoor Golb Club, was elected Vice President.

"We have received inquiries from golf clubs all over the United States as to how we are able to achieve the success that we have with our caddies," said Mr. Kelly. "The time is coming when all golf clubs in the country will have welfare committees, and it is the object of this association to further the interests of the caddies in every way."

New Y. M. C. A. Swimming Records.

Three new branch records were established and two equaled last night at the annual championship swimming meet of the Bedford Branch Young Men's Christian Association in the branch natatorium, Bedford Avenue and Monroe Street, Brooklyn. T. Backe was credited with two of the new records, which were at 25 and 100 yards, while Thomas Beer eclipsed his own figures in the plunge for distance. The point trophy went to G. E. Reddall, who scored 21 points, with T. Backe and E. H. Wood second and third, respectively. The summary:

100-Yard Swim.—Won by T. Backe; R. Long, second; E. H. Wood, third. Time—1:02 4-5.

220-Yard Swim.—Won by E. H. Wood; Dr. E. C. Place, second; J. G. Kahaly, third. Time—2:48 2-5.

Plunge for Distance.—Won by Thomas Beer, distance, 46 feet 6 inches; G. E. Reddall, distance, 43 feet 10 inches, second; E. H. Wood, distance, 42 feet 8 inches, third.

Cross and Shugrue To-night.

After a lapse of two weeks the boxing game comes into its own again to-night, when Young Shugrue of Jersey City and Leach Cross clash in a ten-round bout at the Empire A. C., 107th Street and Park Avenue. The attraction is one of the best staged since the opening of the club. The meeting to-night will be the second between the two boxers. In the first Shugrue surprised the veteran Cross at Madison Square Garden last year. Cross will enter the ring to-night in the best physical shape of his career. The aggressive and clever lightweight from Jersey is confident of scoring a victory. Shugrue has trained hard at Waterbury, Conn., and is in perfect condition for the battle.

N. Y. U. Seniors Win Basket Ball.

In the final game of the interclass basket ball championship series at New York University yesterday, the senior team defeated the freshmen by a score of 15 to 9. The victory gives the class of 1914 the university basket ball championship for the fourth successive time.

THE INHERITANCE TAX.

There is, unfortunately, a chance that the amendments to the law imposing inheritance taxes will be passed. It is a bad law. The only excuse for it is that the State needs more revenue. That is a foolish excuse, for experience shows that the changes proposed will tend to reduce not to increase revenue. Up to 1911 we had a law that tried to tax intangible property in this State, including moneys and securities deposited here, belonging to persons dying in another State or abroad. We had to repeal it because it was found that its effect was to induce the withdrawal of such property. The tax was, moreover, obviously unfair, since it was necessarily double taxation.

It is now proposed to go back to the inequitable and ineffective system of three years ago. In addition to this change, it is proposed to repeal the exemptions up to $5,000 for near relatives and to $1,000 for remoter relatives. Within these narrow limits it is good public policy that inheritance shall not be taxed, and no one benefits by these exemptions except persons of small means, often dependent, whom the State should not tax, whom it cannot tax without persecution. So to the element of folly and wastefulness these amendments add the element of cruelty. They should be killed.

ANOTHER INSURANCE WAR.

Missouri not long since started out to cheapen insurance by edict, and ended by passing laws to please the insurance companies. Kentucky is now well advanced upon the same course of instruction. The Legislature passed a law giving a Rating Board power to supervise insurance rates and contracts, and compelling the companies to pay the expenses of experts to manage the business on the part of the State. The Governor had hardly signed the Glenn bill before eighty-four companies served notice of withdrawal from business within the State. The others delayed their withdrawal until actual demonstration that the rates imposed by the State would be unprofitable. The companies' rating agency had records accumulated through many years' business, and by the expenditure of several hundred thousand dollars. These papers were mostly copyrighted, but the State board demanded the right to use this private property. This was refused, and the State summoned the companies to show cause why they refused to do business, on pain of indictment for refusal to comply with the law.

This is as far as the controversy has proceeded as yet, but other interests are taking a hand. The Louisville Board of Trade passed resolutions reciting that it was "practically impossible" to get insurance, and that the effect upon business was so serious that the Legislature was petitioned to repeal the unwelcome law. That this was no overdrawn picture appears from the fact that one lender of a million dollars upon mortgage called the loans for the expiration of the insurance, and gave notice of intention to exercise the right to foreclose whenever the condition of the security became unsatisfactory. There is $80,000,000 worth of whisky in bond in Kentucky, with storage receipts attached to the collateral of the loans while the whisky is ripening. There is a similar situation regarding tobacco, and the State market in these two leading staples is disturbed. The two Kentucky insurance companies which are doing business are anything but happy at the overflow of trade so far beyond their facilities. The entire cost of the Actuarial Bureau, which fixes rates in Kentucky according to the law, falls upon them alone, whereas it has been divided among the hundred or so of companies. The cost of the Actuarial Bureau is $425,000 annually, which is more than the business of the two companies will warrant. The situation is so unendurable that the Governor was compelled to receive a delegation of representative business men from Louisville and Lexington to petition that a special session of the Legislature should be called to repeal or amend the obnoxious statute. The Governor this week replies that nothing can be done. The cost of the special session would be excessive, besides the certainty that the legislators would not reconsider their action.

Incidents like this are so numerous that they have palled upon the public attention. The Kentucky Legislature is not exceptional in being unable to perceive that it ought to abide by the method established by itself for the regulation of insurance. But the fact that there is a lawful method for fixing rates was no bar to fixing another method, and imposing a burden of 7½ per cent. upon all premiums collected. In New York as well the Legislature is accustomed to invade the functions and prerogatives of the Public Service Commissions at will. A telephone rate bill was announced yesterday, of which the merits are obscured by the methods. So long as the Robin Hood method succeeds it may be expected to be practiced. The incidents in Missouri and Kentucky are useful in showing where the corporations are able to draw the line, and refuse the service if the profit is withheld.

THE CANDIDATES NEXT FALL.

Unless a large vote is polled in the direct primaries next Fall, and unless the voters have a chance to scrutinize the long lists of candidates before they enter the booths, a compact "machine" minority can carry the day. On this account Gov. Glynn urged in his special message that the primary day be changed to the first day of registration, and that sample ballots be sent out beforehand to the enrolled voters. In reporting the primary amendments to the Assembly, its Committee on the Judiciary omits these essential provisions.

Is it the wish of Chairman Phillips of Monroe, and Messrs. Sullivan of Chautauqua, Conkling of New York, Knight of Wyoming, Pratt of Washington, Cristman of Herkimer, Bockes of Otsego, Fuess of Oneida, Goldberg, McGrath, Murray, and Sufrin of New York, and Van Name of Richmond, or of a majority of this committee, that the voters shall not be accommodated in these ways? It would be convenient for the enrolled voters to register and vote in the primaries at the same time. That is done successfully in New Jersey, where the voting districts are even larger than New York's, and it saves the large expense of a separate election. The voters should have opportunity in advance to scrutinize the long ballots. The National Democratic Club and the Citizens' Union proposed the amendments. They have been largely supported by the press of this city and of the State. No good reason exists for killing them.

MAKE THE BEST OF IT.

Now that it has become practically certain that the Mayor's police bills cannot become law at this session of the Legislature, we venture to suggest to his Honor that he would do well to see how nearly he can accomplish the aims he had in view in these bills by means ready to his hand. One of the professed aims is, of course, now out of the question. He regarded the passage of the bills as necessary in order to secure the acceptance by Col. Goethals of the Police Commissionership. He must give up that idea, but he can console himself with the fact that many persons, including apparently Col. Goethals himself, were very doubtful whether that gentleman really would have taken the place.

The reason why Mr. Mitchel desired to get a repeal of court review was that he thought that review interfered with the independence and, therefore, with the undivided responsibility of the Commissioner. Now that the repeal is denied it is open to him to endeavor to prevent the review from doing any real mischief. This can be done if trials are fair and intelligent and absolutely free from political or personal interference, and if the results of such trials are ably and skillfully defended before the courts, from the lowest to the highest. The first step toward making the trials adequate and impartial, as, indeed, the essential step toward an efficient administration of the police in all directions, is to give the Commissioner a free hand, and hold him to a corresponding responsibility. This is wholly within the discretion of the Mayor. If he himself is careful to avoid anything like intervention in the affairs of the department, while vigilantly watching their course, he can be entirely sure that interference from any other source will not successfully be undertaken. It will not be undertaken in any manner that he cannot defeat.

It is especially important, now that court review is to continue, that its exact scope shall be considered. It is by no means so sweeping or so likely to interfere with proper discipline as it has been represented. Gen. F. V. Greene, in his recent correspondence relating to the police bills, has shown that the highest State court has insisted that in an appeal from the Commissioner sitting as a court of trial "only errors of law materially "affecting the rights of the party "may be corrected"; that "if there "was evidence to sustain the charge "sufficient so that the verdict of a "jury would not be set aside as "against the weight of evidence, the "decision may not be reviewed"; and that "the extent of punishment rested "entirely in the discretion of the Com-"missioner, and neither the Supreme "Court nor this court has any juris-"diction to interfere therewith." With the rights and powers of the head of the police force thus clearly defined and amply protected by the Court of Appeals, it is a fair inference that the decisions of the Commissioner, fairly and carefully made and thoroughly defended before the courts, will not be interfered with.

And the Mayor, by the failure of his bills, is left in a far more satisfactory situation as regards the Commissioner than he would have been had he been clothed with authority to review his trial decisions. In the latter case he would have been the centre on which all the influence that could be summoned would have been directed to secure revision of decisions or to delay their full execution. He is now in the position that the charter intended for him. He has the power of appointment and of removal of the Commissioner, while he is entirely relieved of any necessity or even excuse for intervening in trials or in any other branch of police administration. If he takes a comprehensive and just view of his position, and resolves that the Commissioner shall have his hearty support in the right management of the force, subject to removal if the work be not done well, he can accomplish much in the reform of the force. And a lot of time and energy which would have been wasted on the functions assigned to him by the police bills can be devoted to his general work, which is pressing and important.

MEXICAN RUMORS.

That some solution of the grave Mexican problem may be found in the reported renewal of negotiations between Mr. Lind and the Provisional Government of Gen. Huerta is not improbable. The reports are coincident with accounts of preliminary triumphs of the Federal arms near Torreon, which are important if true. Further confidence in either the trustworthiness or the stability of the Constitutionalists is almost impossible, and a decisive victory at Torreon by the Federals, if it should be followed by any manifestation on the part of Gen. Huerta to consider seriously the views of President Wilson in regard to the settlement of the troubles, would be reassuring. But it must be confessed that what news we are getting from Mexico is of the usual vague character. Villa's plans are Napoleonic. He will take both Torreon and the Pacific port of Mazatlan, and will then march on Guadalajara. That would be quite a march.

To the rebels, who have no ships at all, the capture of Mazatlan would mean very little. A large force would be required to hold the port. It is interesting to learn, however, that Carranza is at last marching into Chihuahua. His palace in the capital of that State has been ready for him a long while, and we had feared that he would never occupy it. It must be admitted that there is more practicality in Huerta's demand on the wealthy men of Mexico City for immediate assistance to prosecute a vigorous campaign than in any of the tales of great victories to come sent out by the Constitutionalist press agents.

FOREIGN FIELDS FOR AMERICAN CAPITAL.

The Government of the United States turned a frowning countenance upon our Standard Oil Company and smashed it. But China found the Standard Oil folks eligible partners and welcomes their coming with capital to develop her resources. The Guggenheims were willing to spend millions for the development of our distant and much-neglected province of Alaska, but the Government would not have it. It would not permit them to carry on large-scale coal mining or to build railroads. The Government is going to build a railroad itself at an estimated cost of $35,000,000, without any certainty about an operator. In The Times yesterday morning there was published the story of the Chile Copper Company, of which Mr. Daniel Guggenheim is the head. The company is to develop vast deposits of copper ore in Chile. The Guggenheims were forbidden to do business in Alaska, but they have an open-handed welcome in Chile, where they will carry on one of the world's largest copper mining industries. It is estimated that in the development of the 200,000,000 tons of ore which the mine is known to contain wages to the amount of $225,000,000 will be paid to Chilean labor.

This country is not yet a squeezed orange. Its resources have by no means all been developed. There are great possibilities in many fields. We presume that all the capital we can readily dispose of could be profitably employed within our own domain. Some American capital goes abroad lured by the hope of great returns. This was the case, no doubt, with the greater part of the capital of the United States that has been invested in Mexico. But some capital goes abroad because of inhospitable treatment here. Mr. Harriman was ready to build railroads in Texas, but the Populistic spirit of the people of that State drove him and his money to Mexico. We scourge with whips and bind with withes the millions of capital that in foreign places are welcomed with all honors and with conditions of favor. Capital accumulates rapidly with us, even in times called dull. Experience has taught our capitalists to beware of railroad investments. The Government's policy has done its work in that field. If Washington continues to turn out bills and laws according to its present policy and in its present temper, American capital will presently shun industrial investments. There is evidence that it is avoiding them already. That policy, if adhered to, will undoubtedly be vastly helpful to China and to Chile. The consequences to ourselves are too obvious to require pointing out.

THE DEVONSHIRE TREASURES.

Through the agency of rapidly accumulated private fortunes this country is assuredly receiving its full share of the treasures of the earth. The acquisition by Mr. Huntington of the wonderful collection of Caxtons, long associated in the minds of collectors with the name of the chief seat of the Dukes of Devonshire, Chatsworth, and the Shakespeare folios and quartos from the same library, together with John Philip Kemble's collection of valuable editions of old plays and souvenirs of the British stage in its most interesting epoch, naturally excites both amazement and gratification here and a renewal in England of the now familiar complaint that American millionaires are denuding that country of its art treasures. The increased taxation of land and the enormous death taxes made the present Duke of Devonshire's sale of some of his inherited possessions inevitable, while neither the British Government nor the private collectors of England seem to be able successfully to compete in the market for such treasures with wealthy Americans. The twenty-five Caxtons now in the possession of Mr. Huntington constitute the most notable array of books from the presses of that great printer in any private collection except that of the late Mr. Morgan, which is superlative in nearly all departments. The early editions of Shakespeare's works acquired from the Chatsworth library will make Mr. Huntington's in this particular the equal of any collection in America. The Kemble collection of old plays is unique. More than $1,000,000 was paid for these treasures, and there is no cause for wonder at the annoyance the sale is causing in England.

It may seem indeed to the apprehensive Englishmen that their nation is in a way to part with all its wealth of this sort, and to become merely an industrial community striving against great obstacles to maintain its commercial supremacy in the world. But probably this is taking too grave a view of the matter, though it may be justified by the tone of the English press. The English taxes on inheritance are so large as to compel a nobility which has never had much "ready money" to adjust itself to a new condition by radical measures, but large fortunes are often scattered within a generation or so in this country, and all of the rare works of art that come here in a period of economical readjustment abroad may not remain here permanently. Great Britain's taxes are required to carry out the huge socialistic schemes, credited so generally to Lloyd George, though he is only the exponent of a movement, and it is possible that the country may find itself better able in time to bear its increased burdens. Also, a modification of some of the questionable schemes of permanent pauperization may be made after a while. There is no doubt, however, that the taxation of hereditary wealth, especially when it comprised large land holdings, was much too small in England until lately. In this country public interest in Mr. Huntington's acquisition is enhanced by the common knowledge that such collections in America are generally destined either to become public property or to be made easy of access for free examination and study.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

He Ignores a Good Grievance.

With a tender reverence for the courts and their proceedings which he has not always shown, Thomas E. Watson, sometime Populist candidate for the Presidency, has viewed the present status of the Frank case and sees in the probable success of the efforts making to get a new trial for the condemned man nothing except a struggle between wealth and justice. Screening his ears in the same manner as his eyes, he hears in Atlanta only the issuance from newspapers and pulpits of "orders" for an annulment of the verdict passed on a rich man and to give him a chance for his life that a poor man would not have.

This contraction of Mr. Watson's means of communication with the rest of the world is curious and a little pathetic. With a broader vision and a hearing more acute, Mr. Watson would have been saved from reaching and promulgating some obviously wrong conclusions in a truly serious matter. As it happens, Frank is not a rich man, but a poor one. It is a fact, however, that he has some friends and relatives able and willing to spend money in considerable amounts to save him from what they believe to be undeserved punishment.

Mr. Watson was therefore justified in saying something about the relation between legal justice and wealth, but as no improper use of money in Frank's behalf has been charged, or even suspected—as its employment has admittedly been to bring out the truth, not to conceal it—Mr. Watson, instead of complaining about the powers of wealth, should have denounced the disabilities of poverty. He would have had at least a colorable excuse for saying that except for his command of money Frank's first conviction would have stood and he would go to the gallows without any articulate or effective protests in his behalf. Even that is by no means certain, but it is fairly probable, for long legal battles are not conducted without large expenditures. But for this particular inequality before the law the remedy is not to deprive the rich of justice, but to assure it to the poor in equal measure.

To warrant his indignation, Mr. Watson will have to prove that Frank's defenders are corrupting witnesses and bribing Judges, newspapers, and parsons. He has not attempted to do this—presumably because he couldn't.

Marconi's Patents Upheld.

After an admirably comprehensive study of wireless signaling from its almost prehistoric beginning, in beacon fires on hilltops, down to the utilization of Hertzian waves, Justice Veeder of the United States Circuit Court has decided that William Marconi was the first man to make of wireless telegraphy a practical means of communication and that the patents for which he applied in 1886 and secured in 1897, 1898, and 1904 are valid. As such litigation goes in matters of such financial importance, this is quick work, but that the decision just rendered should end the controversy—that it should put an end to any use of Mr. Marconi's devices unauthorized by him—would be expected only by those who have given no attention to the workings of our wonderful patent law.

One particularly redoubtable antagonist against which he will still have to contend is, strangely enough, the United States Government itself. Justice Veeder had hardly completed the reading of his decision before those in charge of the Government's activities in this field announced that it wasn't a very important pronouncement, at least as regards themselves, for they thought it would be a good while before Mr. Marconi would be getting any royalties out of them. Other infringers are more cautious in their prophetic comments, but doubtless they, too, know that the possibilities of resistance to the Marconi claims are not yet by any means exhausted.

In spite, however, of the fact that litigation over wireless telegraphy will doubtless continue, in one form or another, for years to come, Justice Veeder's decision, confirming, as it does, others to like effect rendered in England and France, gives Mr. Marconi a strong position from which to conduct his battle. It is in harmony, too, with public sentiment everywhere, for there has never been any question in the general mind as to the originator of wireless telegraphy, or to whom fame and gratitude should be accorded for the almost inestimable benefits which the world has derived and will derive from this remarkable invention.

That in addition to fame and gratitude the inventor should have exclusive control of a means of communication so important, and should monopolize its profits, was vehemently denied by the counsel of his rivals, but the various Governments of the world are quite competent to protect themselves against abusive exploitation of the rights they grant.

Provided for a Contingency.

Some comment has been excited by the fact that a will just filed in Yonkers contained a clause providing for the distribution of the estate by a trust company in case the maker and her daughter should perish in the same calamity.

This provision did not, as it was interpreted, indicate a presentiment or special fear on the part of the testatrix that she and her daughter were fated to perish together. It simply meant that the mother—or more probably her lawyer—realized the possibility, greater than formerly, in these days of automobiles and frequent journeyings by train and steamer, that people closely related may meet a common fate. The desire was to avoid the inconveniences that have so often arisen when doubt existed as to which of two persons dies first.

Important questions as to inheritance often depend upon the answer to this question, and it has started many a long and bitter litigation. It has therefore become common, when circumstances demand, to insert provisions like the one that appeared in the Yonkers will. It is a highly sensible proceeding, for not infrequently it will save a lot of trouble.

THE AMERICAN PHYSIQUE.

English Army Standards Do Not Prove Deterioration.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In an address on the alleged degeneracy of American physique, the Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, at Battle Creek, made the statement that "in 1813 the English standard for admission to the army was 6 feet; in 1845 the standard was dropped to 5 feet 6 inches; in 1883 it was lowered to 5 feet 3 inches, and in 1901 to 5 feet." Waiving the question as to whether physical degeneracy in England has a direct bearing on the problem of physical development in the United States, it may be pointed out that, as a matter of fact, and upon the basis of an official statement of the British War Office, the minimum height requirements for the infantry of the British Army were, in 1800, 5 feet 5 inches; in 1801, 5 feet 7 inches; in 1802, 5 feet 7 inches, and 5 feet 5 inches for growing lads. In 1847-51 the height was 5 feet 6½ inches; in 1852, 5 feet 6 inches; in 1854, 5 feet 4 inches; in 1890-96, 5 feet 4 inches, and in 1914, 5 feet 3 inches.

Instead, therefore, of a decline in the physical requirement of twelve inches, the actual decline during the historical period was, at most, only four inches. As a matter of fact these requirements are not admissible evidence of physical decadence on the part of the British working class. Army recruiting requirements are largely affected by special considerations during times of peace and they do not represent the physical status of a nation as a whole at different periods of time.

There is a lamentable tendency toward the misuse of figures in the presentation of picturesque arguments attempting to illustrate national deterioration and social decay. The foregoing is a conspicuous illustration of such a misuse of the statistical method, which, unfortunately, is becoming exceedingly common, and even on the part of speakers who, on account of their prominent position, should be more restrained in their public utterances on weighty questions of serious interest to the people.

Wifeless Breakfast Tables.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reference to "wifeless breakfast tables," will you permit me to say that they are apparently due to a variety of reasons; probably grouchiness looms in the foreground. The average man, given a comfortable breakfast to his desire and his morning Times, cares little whether the wife is present or not. If wife is afflicted with morning grouch, she shows great consideration for her family by absenting herself from the breakfast table, and if husband happens to be the grouchy one—and he most frequently is—then wife displays great good sense in not appearing until the grumbler has vanished. Given competent service in the home, the breakfast hour presents no problem, but, as already stated, men being the greatest sinners in the matter of grouchiness, by far, it is the wives of these, who are compelled to rise early and themselves prepare and serve the breakfast whom we must consider.

NOT A GROUCH.

Motion Pictures of Steamships.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is said that the moving-picture takers have covered about all the available space on earth, but there is one section which they have neglected, and that is the transatlantic steamers of the first class. So prolific is this field in personal and natural effects that it seems to me every big ship would have a moving-picture camera as part of its equipment. Certainly in times of storm, as they have been having recently, no more moving pictures could be had than from these ships, and in calm weather the movements of passengers on board would always supply interesting material. Will the time ever come when no big ship equipment will be complete without its moving-picture camera?

THE IDEAL GIRL.

A Man Defines Her, as Opposed to Two Other Types.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Being young, I can hardly help but wonder if the Bachelor Girl, whose letter appears on your editorial page to-day, is not one of the females of the species "more deadly than the male." Of course, it fills her with disgust when she hears the average man say he likes the "quiet, homelike, modest, sweet, and a good housekeeper" kind of a girl. It fills me with disgust, too—the mere thought of what her idea of such a girl must be.

Let us picture for a moment a type as extremely the opposite of her "good sport and a good mixer," as her idea of an up-to-date girl seems to be. Of course, it is overdrawn; but just imagine a lusty female about ten years behind the current fashions, with a hat which would scare an automobile into a balk and make it kick off its tires in an epileptic fit. Upon her feet monstrous shoes or brogans, shapeless and with flat heels; while projected from the bridge of her nose would extend a pair of tortoise-shell glasses. Her hair would be plastered to the side of her head like a wet flag to a pole, and about her would be an all-pervading atmosphere of would-like-to-look-like-a-man-liness. She would prattle unintelligibly about Schopenhauer, Wagner, Weber and Fields, Darwin, Grieg, Bergson, Henry VIII., Ibsen, and Laura Jean Libbey, with no sense or sequence, but with the rush of a Subway express, in order to impress the unlucky man who fell into her clutches with her extraordinary erudition.

For the sake of informing your correspondent, and also to remove the general impression that a man who likes brains in a girl does not care a hoot about her looks, let me give you my idea of what the "quiet, homelike, &c.," kind of a girl, whom I would marry, is. She would be just that; but she would be dressed in a style of garment that at least looked feminine and had been invented subsequent to the arrival of the Ark upon Mount Ararat, while she would make the most of what beauty she had, both of character and appearance. Furthermore, she would have a thorough knowledge of current topics of interest to the average man, instead of a useless jumble of literary and scientific junk long since buried and never again to be exhumed. It is the adorable quality of femininity that pulls the heartstrings of a man—not a jumble of philosophical sophistries. She would be the kind of a girl whose quietness of manner and dress, sweet, clean freshness of appearance, and general air of decency, repose, and good breeding would be a welcome rest from the eternal flash of paint and powder and gilded dingle-dangles that one sees so continuously upon the streets of to-day.

Can the bachelor girl prove that men (sane men not under the influence of alcoholic beverages) actually marry the type of girl she describes? Heaven forbid! A man, foolish as the creature is, can still claim intelligence enough to distinguish between the clothes and the woman; and he still retains brains enough, addled though they may be in some instances, to realize that when he marries a girl it is the girl he is marrying, and not her clothes; and if he chooses the latter, he does so deliberately and with intent, because he prefers a woman who knows how to dress, and even to paint or make up artistically, to the dowd or the female nonenity who wots not of the appearance she can and should make in the world.

And, say, tell me, who of the pants-wearing bipeds cares to listen to a disquisition on the Darwinian theory, or the pessimism of Schopenhauer as interpreted by his better half-and-half, after a year of married life, and a day of supposedly hard work at the office? Methinks he would far rather listen to the clang and clatter of dishes. And, forsooth, the smell of dinner would cause him to wax fatter than a garbled discourse of the theory of domestic economy. I notice that the chink of the weekly stipend or the rustle of new-laid bills brings a far sweeter smile to the face of the female than any quantity of dislocated ethics or addled gush upon a long dead scientific theory.

Besides, the home isn't a college—it is a retreat (or ought to be)! One has to listen to enough rot concerning things he cares not a hang about, and things which we may safely assume he knows as much of as the discourser, without marrying an everlasting phonographic reproduction of a college curriculum.

But, for all that, give me the bachelor girl type rather than your gum-chewing, French-heeled, painted and powdered key-pusher who crowds the Gay White Way at noon. The bachelor girl has enough brains under her switch to think with, anyway; and it is not true that the average man prefers a woman whom he can fool and deceive.

Is this too foolish for utterance in The Times, which, by the way, is the best paper in the City of New York, to my mind at least?

WHAT WAR MEANS.

A Dying Soldier's Letter in the Confederate Museum.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In order to appreciate the significance of war one cannot do better than to visit the Confederate Museum at Richmond. The stained and tattered battle flags, the coats of gray riddled by bullets, and a multitude of other pathetic relics, are eloquent of the sad story of desolation. But perhaps nothing so forcibly brings home the cost of armed conflict as a human document such as the following:

> Spottsylvania County, Va., ——, 1864.
> Dear Father—This is my last letter to you. I went into battle this evening as courier for Gen. Heth. I have been struck by a piece of shell and my right shoulder is horribly mangled, and I know death is inevitable. I am very weak, but I write to you because I know you will be delighted to read a word from your dying son. I know death is near, that I will die far from home and friends of my early youth, but I have friends here too who are kind to me. My friend Fairfax will write you at my request and give you the particulars of my death. My grave will be marked so that you may visit it if you desire to do so, but [it] is optional with you whether you let my remains rest here or in Mississippi. I would like to rest in the graveyard with my dear mother and brothers, but it is a matter of minor importance. Let us all try to reunite in Heaven. I pray my God to forgive my sins, and I feel that His promises are true and that He will forgive me and save me. Give my love to all my friends. * * * My strength fails me. My horse and my equipments will be left for you. Again a long farewell to you. May we meet in Heaven. Your dying son,
> J. R. MONTGOMERY.

Cold type will give but a faint idea of the impression derived from the blood-stained sheet itself and its labored characters bearing witness to painful effort and losing strength.

Do those who are clamoring for intervention in Mexico realize the price that must be paid?

ART NOTES.

Early Mohammedan-Persian Art on View—Allied Artists' Exhibit.

H. Kevorkian's exhibition of early Mohammedan-Persian art at the Charles Galleries brings to the public beauty of a kind long known to the artists. But in addition to the irresistible charm of this early yet highly sophisticated art is the historical interest attaching to the objects excavated by Mr. Kevorkian at Rhages which are believed to bridge a gap in the history of the Middle Ages and to prove that from the ninth to the thirteenth century a period of high culture existed in Persia and strongly influenced European civilization.

There are a bewildering number of exhibits. There are books with memoranda on their fly-leaves telling us how much money Emperors had paid for these beautifully illustrated and illuminated volumes. In one case a sum amounting to $65,000 was the cost of a small book of only sixty-nine folios. There are bronzes presumably representing the period between the Sassanian epoch and the time of the Mongolian domination. There are more than two hundred and fifty miniatures in which we see that life was fair and fine in Bagdad when the Raphael of the Eastern world, the gifted Bihzad, made his graceful drawings.

There is a bull's head of massive bronze, probably of Sassanian workmanship, and there are a few examples of Byzantine and other Christian art to illustrate the relationship between this art and that of Persia at corresponding periods. Finally there is the superb Mihrab (which corresponds in the que of the Moslems to the records in Christian churches) which was brought in sections to this country and reconstructed for the purpose of the present exhibition. It belongs to the thirteenth century and is made of blue and white tiles ornamented with the magnificent calligraphy of the period, an art then esteemed as highly as painting and adapted to architectural decoration.

The Allied Artists of America are to hold an exhibition in the new Municipal Gallery from March 27 to May 1. More than 30,000 people visited the Municipal Gallery the first month that it was open, and many of the visitors were attracted from the east side, where there is little opportunity to see pictures but ample interest in them. The new organization of artists felt that they could not better justify the existence of their society than by assembling an important collection of pictures in this gallery. The advance notice states:

"In the exhibition which is now being installed there has been an effort to fix a broad standard of taste, without, however, admitting anything that was not serious and sane. It was felt that in an exhibition with an educational purpose, purely experimental work of unproved worth would have no proper place. It is worthy of note that among the exhibitors are to be found a number of painters who have specialized in painting the streets and the life of New York—Jonas Lie, George MacCrum, Max Kuehne, Edmund Greacen and Paul Cornoyer. A portrait that is bound to attract a large share of attention is Ledyard Towle's likeness of the Mayor. William Cotton's portrait of Miss Dvorak is also a work of great distinction.

"Among the other artists from whom striking canvases are to be expected are: Irving Wiles, Cecelia Beaux, Helen M. Turner, Edward Potthast, F. Luis Mora, Frank Bicknell, Ernest Albert, G. Glenn Newell, R. F. Maynard, Charles Ebert, Arthur Crisp, Howard Hildebrandt, Frederick Frieseke, Richard F. Miller and John F. Carlson."

Public Building Contracts.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Senate Bill No. 989, introduced by Senator Pollock on March 4 last, entitled "To Amend the General Municipal Law and the State Finance Law in Relation to the Awarding of Contracts," provides that in all contracts awarded subsequent to its enactment for State and municipal work the "structural steel and iron work" shall be awarded separately, i. e., apart from the general contract.

This proposal would make the construction of the skeleton, or frame work, of a building a separate and independent part of the work, without relation whatever to the other trades employed and independent of supervision looking to a completed whole. Nevertheless, it is axiomatic that if an undertaking is to be carried to a successful termination there must be some one in command.

Senator Pollock's plan will cost more. The builder's profit is not dependent on iron only, (as is the case with a separate iron contractor;) he draws profit from a variety of sources on an operation and can consequently afford to handle each item for a lesser per centum of profit than each sub-contractor could do independently. Again, it will cost more because it will take longer to complete a contract for the entire completion of a building.

It may serve to state here that the function of the iron and steel contractor, whose interests this bill is designed to serve, is largely that of a middleman, and since the tendency of the day is to get away from that individual, why this backward step?

Lights on All Vehicles.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It would be more than gratifying to many a motorist, especially those resident in small rural towns, if Assemblyman Gillett's bill No. 193 requiring lights to be displayed after dark in the front and rear of vehicles other than motor cars becomes a law. It is no uncommon thing for motorists to drive on country roads that are not lighted and suddenly be confronted with some dark object ahead, which proves to be a horse-driven vehicle, without lights of any kind, and the motorist is fortunate, indeed, if he is able to reduce the speed of his car, though it be moderate, quickly enough to avoid running into the unlighted vehicle.

It has always been a puzzle to the writer why the law for lights on motor cars is so very strictly enforced, and yet nothing is done about horse-driven vehicles. Why should not the same rule hold good for all vehicles?

Stevenson's Opinion of Figaro.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of the tragedy in Paris, we read in "A Plea for Gas Lamps" what R. L. Stevenson thought of the Figaro:

> The word electricity now sounds the note of danger * * * at the Figaro office, a new sort of urban star now shines out nightly, horribly, unearthly, obnoxious to the human eye. * * * That ugly, blinding glare may not improperly advertise the home of slanderous Figaro, which is a backshop to the infernal regions.

THE DAWNING.

Sun kissed and conquered, Winter's veil,
Fast melting, lies upon the grass—
Prophetic fragrance fills the air,
And wondrous things shall come to pass!

Across the meadow's wak'ning life,
Down by the brooklet's happy purr,
The pulsing sap of Springtide flows
In yonder willow's yellow blur—

Dear, see the treebuds blushing red!—
Do pale blue shadows in the snow
(That lingers late in sheltered nooks)
Foretell where violets will blow?

Poised on life's threshold, joyous, free,
You gaze at me beneath glad skies—
Untouched by thought of love, as yet,
You smile, with cool unconscious eyes.

Dear, does no echo of my song
Clasp tender fingers 'round your heart?
Well, sunshine melts snows with a kiss!
I'll borrow sunshine's magic art!

LOUISE VON WETTER.

'FREEDOM RING,' BY JOHNSON, FOR $750

LOW PRICES AT ART SALE

J. M. Hart's "Tree in the Meadows" Sold for $420, and J. G. Brown's "The Young Peddler," $320.

There were many bargains at the third night's sale of the pictures of many owners at the American Art Galleries last evening. "The Freedom Ring," that interesting picture of slave days by Eastman Johnson, brought the highest price of the evening, going to Timothy F. Crowley for $750. It is the picture of "Little Pinky," the slave child of a white father whom Henry Ward Beecher sold into freedom in his church one February day in 1860. This was to keep the child, a pretty girl, from being sold by her owner into the South.

It was an emotional scene, tears fell fast from the eyes of the members of the congregation as they gave their money, and Mr. Beecher, taking a valuable ring from the contributions in the basket, Rose Terry Cooke's gift to the cause, he placed it on the child's finger, saying: "With this ring I do thee wed to freedom." Later he had Eastman Johnson make a picture of the child sitting on the floor before an open chest gazing at the ring.

Mr. Crowley also purchased James G. Tyler's marine, "Plowing the Ocean." The Eastman Johnson picture was from the estate of the late Thomas Hitchcock.

Among the pictures bringing the higher prices, with names of artists, buyers, and prices, were:

Moorish Lady, Bridgman—J. B. Dickson	$120
A Farm Pool, Leon Richet—George E. Ruppert	105
The Document Bureau, G. Bettinger.—S. G. Bayne	200

The Evening Hour, Walter Blackman—Clifford Miller	200
Children and Kid, John T. Peele—R. H. Lorenz, agent	310
Pleasant Pastures, E. Van Leemputten—C. H. Offerman	140

The total for the sale was $7,950. The grand total for the three evenings is $83,170. The sale will be concluded this evening at the American Art Galleries.

$1,200 FOR K'ANG-HSI VASE.

First Day's Sale of Antique Oriental Porcelains Brings $13,307.

The first day's sale of the antique Oriental porcelains, collection of a New York amateur sold by order of Albert S. Ridley of Sullivan & Cromwell, attorneys for the owners at the American Art Galleries, yesterday afternoon, brought $13,307. The names of the buyers of many of the most important pieces were not given. A fine club-shaped vase in blue and white, K'ang-hsi, 29¾ inches high, brought the top price of the day, $1,200. The decoration showed a vigorous mountain landscape by the sea. Bernet, agent, paid $575 for a blue and white temple jar with mandarin cover of the same period, and $200 for a blue and white beaker-shaped vase with branches and blossoms of wild plum tree in white reserve on cracking ice ground. A blue and white oviform vase, a remarkably fine specimen, in the soft, white paste, the brilliant dark blue decoration showing two kylins under a tree on a rocky seashore, and the obverse side two bats flying over a bamboo tree.

Another blue and white temple jar brought $300, going to Seaman, agent, and to the same buyer went a blue and white beaker-shaped vase, hawthorne decoration, for $120, and a second beaker-shaped vase in blue and white, with a decoration of landscape with sages white beaker-shaped vase, hawthorn jar went to Seaman for $140. A blue and white bottle, spherical, with long, slender neck, cream-white porcelain cobalt decoration in different tones, three rampant kylins and three filleted balls went to P. W. French & Co. for $330, and a blue and white hawthorn jar with original cover went to French for $190.

R. E. Moore paid $240 for a cylindrical, club-shaped vase with decorations in two shades of blue, four fire-breathing kylins, and $145 for an inverted pear-shaped vase, blossoms and scattered petals of the Winter-blooming wild plum tree. A bottle-shaped vase with body and foot of solid slate, blue and white neck, with a chain band brought $130. A blue and white bottle-shaped vase with sea waves on rocks and an archaic dragon in the decoration sold for $125, and T. Mori paid $130 for a blue and white bottle-shaped vase, and another bottle-shaped vase, with a bandana leaf necklace and body design of tiger lily scroll went for $100. A blue and white Mandarin vase, Yung cheng, with two deep panels with landscape and marine designs brought $260. Jacob Ruppert, Jr., paid $100 for a broad, squat inverted pear-shaped vase with a floral band encircling the body.

Paul D. Wells gave $110 for a blue and white hawthorn ginger jar with cover, and for a large jar French & Co. paid $135. G. L. Rives gave $100 for a blue and white ginger jar with four medallions in the decoration. To the same buyer went a tall club-shaped vase with two flying storks and a stag and doe in a marine decoration for $100. R. M. Parker paid $110 for a blue and white temple jar with mandarin cover.

Mrs. Ogden Mills made a number of purchases, among them a blue and white ginger jar, plum blossom design, for $100. A blue and white water jar went to Mrs. Mills for $62.50. Percy Pyne paid $42.50 for a large blue and white rouge box, and $50 for a 7½ inch blue and white bottle-shaped vase, Ch'ien-lung, with conventional leaf and flower scroll decoration.

The sale will be continued this afternoon.

WANT PERMANENT CHAPLAIN

N. Y. University Students Ask for Appointment of Rev. A. H. Linouze.

The students of New York University asked the Faculty yesterday to appoint a regular chaplain for the university, naming as their choice the Rev. A. H. Linouze, rector of the Northminster Presbyterian Church in 115th Street near Seventh Avenue. Student attendance at morning prayers is compulsory unless the student chooses rather to write a thousand word essay for every fourteen days' absence.

For the last two years it has been the custom for the university authorities to invite neighboring pastors to serve in the office of chaplain for a month each. Dr. Linouze is an alumnus of the university and has endeared himself to the students by the interest which he has taken in their activities.

MARGARET ANGLIN SPLENDID AS KATE

"The Taming of the Shrew" Is Played in Lively Fashion at Hudson Theatre.

A gay, rapid, rattling farce, richly Elizabethan in its flavor and full of fun for an audience of this day and city—such is "The Taming of the Shrew" as it came to New York last night with the progress of the Shakespearean repertoire now playing at the Hudson Theatre. There are many reasons for congratulating Miss Anglin on this production, and one of them lies in the fact that it serves to remind us how capital and entertaining a farce Shakespeare builded when he wrote down the story of Katharina and Petruchio.

Just as the "Shrew" as it is being played at the Hudson is not the refined comedy of the old Augustin Daly dispensation, so the "proud Kate" is not the grand lady in the tantrums that Ada Rehan made so captivating. Margaret Anglin's Katharine is touched more with the farcical spirit and approaches far more nearly the common scold that Shakespeare would seem to have had in mind—the rebellious Katharine "renown'd in Padua for her scolding tongue." A human tempest in the opening scenes and radiantly delightful in the hour of her surrender—this is Miss Anglin's Kate. She plays it with vigor and dash and with fine comic spirit.

She makes her first entrance when her anger is at white heat. From then on until her wearied capitulation on the way home to Padua she keeps afire her fierce resentment against the world in general and Petruchio in particular, but through it all there is within her a lurking appreciation of the humor in her situation. It touches now and then a word or a gesture, it lights in her angry eyes, and it is charmingly present in the long speech which comes when the play is drawing to its close, and Kate is strong in her "new-built virtue and obedience." When it comes time for her to step before Bianca and the Widow and read the lines, "Fie, fie! unknit that threatening, unkind brow," none sees so well as she the comic irony that Katharine should have come to such submissiveness. The sweetness of surrender is there in abundance, but in the shining eyes there is the gleam of a wit untamed, the light of a humor that is a match for her lord and master's. Miss Anglin's delivery of this lecture to the wives is music.

It is a notably good cast which surrounds her in the "Shrew"—a company in which none play badly and nearly all play well. Mr. Blind is a spirited Petruchio, his playing admirably in key with the whole performance, his well-planned swaggering spiced with a fine sense of nonsense. Mr. Greenstreet discards the motley of Touchstone and appears to good advantage as Biondello. He is vastly amusing. Mr. de Cordoba lends his gallant presence and good voice to the part of Lucentio, and, of course, Fuller Mellish plays the Pedant well. From Harry Barfoot as Baptista, whose gentle face wears a reminiscent and contented smile when he sees his daughter raging in the clutch of her new-found master to Max Montesole's Grumio, the company plays with that good "team work" which gives a touch and go to their "Taming of the Shrew."

This showed to best advantage in the rousing scene just after the wedding, when the guests break into a rollicking dance about the tattered bridegroom and his distracted bride, and again when the action shifts to the home of Petruchio in the country. This action is very properly and wisely broken by an interlude, and it is enlivened by odds and ends of business, bits of amusing by-play, a few of which are new and none of which is out of keeping.

But into the spirit of the play and its performance not even the best of them entered more completely than Livingston Platt, who fashioned the settings and the costumes. The opulence of the Italian Renaissance is in his interiors and in the stuff the men and women wear—fine tapestries, rich brocades, cloth of red-gold and deep-hued velvets. There is much beauty in this dressing of "The Taming of the Shrew," and, as in his work for "Arden" in "As You Like It," so here Mr. Platt has so arranged the settings that it is possible for the play, for all its nine changes of scene, to move at such rapid pace as befits a lively farce. The curtain does not rise until 8:30 o'clock and the play is over well before 11. And yet it is Shakespeare, and most handsomely staged Shakespeare at that.

This brisk movement of the performance is helped, too, by some judicious cutting. To begin with, the induction is left out bodily, and one sees nothing of tipsy Christopher Sly, "old Sly's son of Burton Heath." That does not matter much. Two of the scenes in the first act are consolidated, and the break between them is ingeniously indicated by sounds of revelry that come from an inviting Paduan inn, of which the door looks on the court before Baptista's house.

The first appearance of Katharine is postponed even longer than it was in the Daly version. Miss Rehan's whirlwind entrance is a vivid memory for many a faithful playgoer, who has only to shut his eyes to see the curtain seething where she had just passed through. Miss Anglin not only omits her part in the first street scene, but omits as well the quarrel with Bianca and does not make her first entrance until Petruchio is already come and is waiting to begin his stormy wooing.

The entrance when it is made is theatrically effective, for she comes on with eyes ablaze and tongue sharpened to a knife-edge. One other cut may be noted. The curtain falls only one line after Katharine has spoken the lecture to the wives. The last half dozen lines or so are cheerfully lopped off, and it is just as well, for there have been certain dark suspicions circulated as to whether Shakespeare ever had anything to do with them, and with them gone we take our leave of Kate with her lord and master kneeling rapturously at her feet.

DANCE IN FANCY COSTUMES.

West Side Juvenile Club Gives Its Annual Mi-Careme at Sherry's.

The young men in charge of the West Side Juvenile Club gave the annual Mi-Careme dance last night at Sherry's, which was largely attended by society. The majority of the young people came in fancy costume, and the spirit of carnival reigned throughout the evening. Many dinners preceded the dance.

An informal vaudeville entertainment was interpolated in the evening's jollities about 10:30 o'clock. This was given on the large ballroom floor. Theodore E. Steinway appeared first in a prologue, dressed as a Pierrot, after which Mrs. Thurber Pruyn sang some Brittany peasant songs, wearing a quaint French costume. Then followed little Miss Virginia Myers in an exhibition of fancy dancing.

The club, for the maintenance of which the proceeds of the dance are to be devoted, is at 826 Greenwich Street. Howland S. Davis is President of the Board of Directors, which includes Edward S. Brockie, C. A. Richards, J. Horton Ijams, Harold Imbrie, William M. Brewster, Percy S. Weeks, Charles King, J. Fahys Cook, Schuyler M. Meyer, W. Shippen Davis, and Ernest S. Ballard.

Among the dinner hostesses before the dance, who took their guests to it, were Mrs. W. M. Carson, Mrs. J. E. Fisher, Mrs. J. Edgar Bull, Mrs. H. G. Trevor, and Mrs. Langdon Geer. W. B. Boulton, Jr., also gave a dinner at 40 Fifth Avenue, chaperoned by his sister, Mrs. John Grenville Bates.

Mrs. Carson's dinner was for her daughters, the Misses Betty and Rosetta Carson, and the guests included the Misses Thompson of Philadelphia, Margaret and Charlotte Strong, Constance and Joy Williams, Elizabeth Jay Russell, and also John J. Terry, Jr., Edward and George Stevens, Francis Geer, Fisher Goodhue, and Robert R. Livingston.

Mrs. Trevor's dinner was for Miss Louise Chappell. The guests were Mrs. Trevor's daughters, the Misses Margaret and Louise Trevor, Margaret Bowers, Eleanor Hartshorne, Catherine Colt, Amy B. Johnson, Tesson Thayer, Marie Tailer, Gwendolin Condon, Genevieve Sanford, Margaret Porter, Mark Brooks, Rudolph Kunhardt, Jr., Francis Boyd, Henry Dearborn, William T. Philips, William F. Philips, Dr. Harold Pardee and Irving Pardee, Bryce and Stewart Wing, W. Travers Jerome, Jr., Carroll Carstairs, and Morris Pryor.

Mrs. Bull's dinner was for Miss Priscilla Bull, and the guests included the Misses Susanne and Margaret Warren, Dorothy Anderton, Dorothy Taylor, Emilie Ford, Mildred Rice, Frederick MacDonell, Alden Talbot, Vivian Palmieri, William Palmer, John Norris, Henry Corse and Paul Atocha.

Mrs. Fisher's dinner was held in a private room at the Ritz-Carlton. Her guests included the Misses Vieva Fisher and Mary Baker, Thomas McC. Peters, Rene Hoguet and C. B. Garver. Mrs. Langdon Geer's guests included Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Murchison, Mrs. Hilborne Roosevelt, Jarvis Geer and Howland S. Davis.

Mr. Boulton's dinner guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Grenville Bates, the Misses Sophie Norris of Philadelphia, Eleanor Townsend, Mary Myers, Gertrude Munroe Smith, Dr. H. Rawle Geyelin of Philadelphia, Reginald Willis, Alfred H. Ely, Jr., Henry Smith, J. Horton Ijams, H. Duncan Bulkley and Alvin Beard.

Among the patronesses, many of whom were present, were Mrs. Edward D. Adams, Mrs. Joseph S. Auerbach, Mrs. Lindley Hoffman Chapin, Mrs. B. Ogden Chisolm, Mrs. John Claflin, Mrs. Howland Davis, Mrs. J. Henry Dick, Mrs. Horace Havemeyer, Mrs. Henry R. Hoyt, Mrs. William Kingsland Macy, Mrs. Francis U. Paris, Mrs. Hilborne L. Roosevelt, Miss Shippen, Mrs. James Remsen Strong, Mrs. Percy S. Weeks, Mrs. De Courcy L. Hard, Mrs. E. S. Harkness, Mrs. Colgate Hoyt, Jr.; Mrs. George Bullock, and Mrs. John T. Ijams.

MRS. R. S. WHITE A BRIDE.

Married to F. S. Hutchins at Her Home—Her Daughters Bridesmaids.

The marriage of Francis S. Hutchins and Mrs. Sarah Crane White, widow of Raymond S. White, took place quietly yesterday at the residence of the bride, 10 East Sixty-third Street.

The house was decorated with American Beauty roses, and the ceremony took place in the drawing room, and was performed by Dean William M. Grosvenor of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, a cousin of Mr. Hutchins.

Mrs. White wore a trailing gown of lavender chiffon velvet, the corsage trimmed with point lace, and carried orchids. She wore pearls, and a diamond brooch, the gift of the bridegroom. The bride's attendants were four young girls, two being her daughters, the Misses Margaret E. and Katharine V. White, and two nieces of the bridegroom, the Misses Margaret and Katherine Hutchins, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Grosvenor Hutchins.

The Misses Margaret White and Margaret Hutchins were in white embroidered lingerie frocks over pale blue silk, topped by large natural leghorn hats trimmed with pink roses, and carried roses. The little Misses Katharine White and Katherine Hutchins wore white net frocks over white silk, and also wore leghorn hats with flowers. They carried baskets filled with flowers. There was a small reception, there being about 100 guests for both the ceremony and the reception.

Burton Holmes to Wed To-morrow.

Burton Holmes, traveler and lecturer, and Miss Margaret Elise Oliver of 157 West Seventy-second Street, daughter of Charles Kemble Oliver, are to be married to-morrow in St. Stephen's Church, West Sixty-ninth Street. They visited the City Hall yesterday and took out a marriage license. Mr. Holmes gave his age as 44, and his address as the Congress Hotel, Chicago. Miss Oliver is 35 years old, and was born in Baltimore, Md.

Miss Sutro to Wed W. L. Ward.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sutro of 465 West End Avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Edith Hunt Sutro, to Warren Leland Ward, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Ward of Port Chester, N. Y. Mr. Ward is a graduate of Yale. No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Mary Raymond Engaged.

The engagement is announced of Miss Mary Raymond, a daughter of Dr. E. H. Raymond and Mrs. Raymond, to Clarence Cowles Hellen, formerly of Washington, D. C., but now of New York. Miss Raymond is a sister of Dr. E. H. Raymond, Jr., who on June 26 married Miss Grace I. Ashwell.

At 11:14 last night the audience at the New Amsterdam Theatre witnessing the "Maids of Athens" had no inkling as to whether Capt. William Penn Harris, U. S. N., or Van and Dyke Green, detectives, would capture Stavros, King of the Mountain Bandits. Moreover, just about that time they started to sing a song about Waltz, the Siren of Melody, instead of getting busy on the far more important question of the bandit, which removed several of the first-nighters from the scene and left the matter an entirely unpenetrated mystery as far as they were concerned.

The situation at 11:14 gives more than a hint about what was the matter with the "Maids of Athens." There was too much of it as a whole and too much of many of its parts.

The comic opera was written by Franz Lehar and Victor Leon, the "creators"—the phrase is the programme maker's—of "The Merry Widow," and, in the form which it came over the footlights last night, the work of Carolyn Wells as adapter. In the operetta which laid the cornerstone of their fame the Viennese collaborators did "create" something, but they revealed themselves last night as borrowers, aided and abetted how far by Miss Wells and the stage director will never be known.

It is easiest to make fragmentary comment on "The Maids of Athens," for that is the way the work struck one. It was rather a hodge-podge of quickly shifting effects, which left no strong single impression, least of all any sense of just what the title meant or who the maids of Athens alluded to could have been.

It seems entirely likely that in the beginning the character of the Prince of Parnes, who spent his off hours as the King of the Mountain Bandits, not because he needed the money particularly, but because he liked the excitement—it seems likely that his character was supposed to dominate the piece.

Whether that is so or not, two low comedian detectives emerged as the heroes last night with the other characters not more than a fair second. This was unfortunate because most of the good stuff of the production was in other people's hands and they knew how to handle it with distinction, neither of which things can be said of the comedians with as much enthusiasm.

What the production lacked most was this element of distinction. In the first place, the action of the piece never carried conviction. Its incidents were always promising something which never turned up. If they had never promised anything, as has been known to be the case with musical comedies, nobody could have had any quarrel, but the producers made the mistake of never letting the audience be sure whether it was supposed to take what was going on seriously or not.

Finally, the authors having failed to make up their minds, the audience did it for them, thereafter refusing to consider the action anything but silly.

Miss Carolyn Wells has made many friends, and rightly, by her work in the field of light verse, but she cannot be said to have triumphed in the new direction. The dialogue was not strong or original, and too often took refuge in puns and other play on words. The music also lacked distinction.

There were several tunes which will be remembered, notably "When the Heart is Young," and a song by the bandit and male chorus at the beginning of the first act. The composer writes throughout in a musicianly, tasteful style—a better style than we are accustomed to by the average run of musical comedy—but there is little that stands out strongly, and there are often reminiscences, not of other operetta music, but of the musical thoughts of Puccini and Wagner; and if one has to be reminiscent it is perhaps better to be so in a new direction.

Albert Pellaton as the Prince of Parnes and later the brigand, Cecil Cunningham as his Princess sister, and Leila Hughes as an American tourist were the only ones who brought a measure of distinction to their work. Miss Hughes, having the music in her rôle, made the individual hit of the evening, although her voice was not the equal in quality of Miss Cunningham, who had little opportunity.

Mr. Pellaton has a fine baritone voice of full, resonant power, and was also equal to meeting the acting demands of his rôle with credit. Elbert Fretwell disclosed a pleasing personality as Capt. Harris, and his tenor voice is agreeable in the lower ranges. Marie Horgan contributed some good singing in "Rosie."

Of the comedians, Bert Gilbert and W. S. Percy, it can be said that they had some good moments. Perhaps the estimation of their work suffered by the frequency with which they appeared, although they gave no sign of not enjoying it. They possessed the routine accomplishments of the low comedian, and they seldom rose above routine.

The stage settings and the costuming were satisfactory, and more than that in the last act, which showed the deck of an American battleship. This setting was strikingly well done. A word is due the chorus, which could sing, dance, and look well all at the same time, and to the energetic conducting of John McGhie.

BLAMES CONSUMERS FOR COST OF LIVING

Grocer Says Retail Dealers Are Forced by Patrons to Put Their Prices Up.

WOMEN ARE INDIFFERENT

Give More Attention to Tango Teas and Bridge Parties Than to Running Domestic Establishments.

Tango teas and bridge parties, which take up much of the time of the women, play their part in keeping up the high cost of living, according to Alfred D. Woodruff, manager of the Bureau of Food Supply of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor. Mr. Woodruff, who formerly was in the grocery business, and now runs the first model store for the association in Exterior Street, made that statement at the conference on the cost of clean and wholesome food, held under the auspices of the association at the Academy of Medicine yesterday afternoon. He said:

"We do not suggest that the retailer must not make a legitimate profit, but we do know that not less than 25 per cent. can be deducted from his gross profits if the consumer will become as familiar with this all-important subject, and give it at least the time that she now gives to matters of less importance, such as dress, bridge parties, and tango teas. If she will so do she will in the first place become competent to judge as to the quality of the foodstuffs she uses, she will provide adequately for the testing of short weights and measures, and she will not resort to the 'hit or miss' system of buying in quantities sufficient only for immediate needs."

The consumer, said Mr. Woodruff, forced the retailer to charge high prices by the demands she made for immediate delivery of goods, extra clerks, and trading stamps. She added to the high cost of living also, he said, by demanding credit. Investigation showed, he said, that of those who sought credit, 30 per cent. paid their accounts in full each month, 28 per cent. in from one to three months, 40 per cent. never paid their accounts in full, always leaving a balance, and 2 per cent. never paid at all.

"So much has been written and said and so little accomplished," he asserted, "that it seems there is no solution of the problem, and until the consumer does something the high cost of living will remain with us.

"The cost of food supplies to-day is exceedingly low. In fact, I don't know if we ever had a lower market. Take eggs. The wholesale price of fresh-laid eggs, dark, is 20 cents a dozen; of eggs, white, 22 cents a dozen. Pure breakfast cocoa, the same that you pay 40 cents a pound for in half-pound tins, is 11 cents a pound. Rice is quoted at 2.5 cents. Oranges, which you pay 50, 60, and 70 cents a dozen for, sell at $2.25 a box. There you have but a few examples. You ask why the retailers add from 40 to 60 per cent. to the prices; it's because of the unusual demands made upon him. It's because of the credit demanded and of the vest-pocket purchases.

"The cost of food is much more important to the people of a great city than lower street car fares or things of that kind, and this situation is held in the grasp of the consumer. In the district from Fifty-ninth Street to Seventy-ninth Street, from Third Avenue to the East River, there are 20,800 families, which spend $11,000,000 a year for their food supply. I am in a position to know that 20 per cent. of the cost to these 20,800 families, or $2,200,000, can be wiped out, and think of what such a sum would mean to the consumers in that district!"

"I'm just a plain grocer," Mr. Woodruff said to a reporter after the meeting. "Not a doctor or anything like that, and I know what I'm talking about," he said. "I know that a good many persons are not satisfied that they have the best unless they pay high prices. I have sold eggs out of the same crate at different prices, to some for 35 cents, to others for as high as 55 or 90 cents, and that is being done by many. The retailers are forced to do it.

"If you tell some customers that your best tea is 50 cents a pound, they won't believe that they are getting the best, and so they are charged 75 or 80 cents, although 60 cents is a good price for tea."

Mrs. Julian Heath, who heads the Housewives' League, was the only person to offer a word of protest. She said that the women were doing much more to solve the problem than was generally supposed, and that they found the retail men ready to co-operate. There had been too much destructive criticism of our food supplies, she said.

Dr. Haven Emerson of the Committee on Public Health of the Academy of Medicine presided at the meeting. The milk supply was considered first, and Paul E. Taylor of the New York Milk Committee led the discussion. He favored legislation which would limit the number of bacteria in a cubic centimeter of Grade B milk at 1,000,000. The law at present, he said, provided only that "the bacteria should not be excessive." Sometimes, he said, the number reached almost 50,000,000.

Miss Laura A. Cauble of the Bureau of Food Supply spoke of the cost of uncleanliness in retail food stores. She said uncleanliness was due to laziness, greed, and ignorance, principally to ignorance. Miss Cauble told of an inspection of 146 shops in the district east of Third Avenue between Fifty-ninth and Seventy-ninth Streets. One and four-tenths per cent. were found to be clean, 12.1 per cent. unclean, and 86.8 per cent. in need of overhauling. A deterioration of 10 per cent. in the food after it reached the retailer was the result of conditions, she said. Conditions in restaurants, into which she did not have time to go into detail, she characterized as "filthy beyond measure." She said that as a general thing storekeepers were willing to follow advice.

Dr. Marian McMillan of the City Health Department talked about the cost of municipal food inspection. To give his auditors some grasp of the immensity of the task, he said that approximately 2,225,000 quarts of milk were consumed in New York daily. The general inspection of food cost the city $82,577 annually, and the inspection of milk in the city and at points of production something more than $100,000. To show that the department was doing much work, he pointed out that more than 6,000 prosecutions were brought last year and $48,001 in fines collected, setting a new record.

JUDGE PLEASES W.U.T.BOYS

Refuses to Grant an Injunction Against Detroit Strikers.

DETROIT, March 19.—Grinning messenger boys partly filled the Federal Court room to-day when Judge A. J. Tuttle announced that the Western Union Telegraph Company had not made a proper showing for an injunction against its juvenile strikers.

The injunction was asked yesterday on the ground that the boys, by attacking strikebreakers, had interfered with interstate messages. The court held that the fighting, alleged to have taken place, was a matter for the police courts. The boys seek an increase in pay for delivery of messages outside of the mile circle.

"That court's got the right idea," commented one of the strike leaders, after the injunction had been denied.

FUEL OFFICIALS TO PRISON.

Three Sentenced for Customs Conspiracy Against Government.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19.—The three officials of the Western Fuel Company recently convicted of conspiracy to defraud the Federal Government in customs dues were sentenced to-day by Judge Maurice T. Dooling in the United States District Court.

James B. Smith, Vice President and General Manager, was sentenced to serve one and a half years in San Quentin Prison and to pay a fine of $5,000; Frederick C. Mills, Superintendent, was also sentenced to one and a half years in San Quentin; Edwards H. Mayer, a weigher, was sentenced to a year in the Alameda County jail.

IMPORTERS ORGANIZE.

Combine to Stop Undervaluations and Get Fair Treatment.

The American Importers' Association, U. S. A., Inc., recently organized as a membership coporation under the laws of the State of New York, yesterday, through its counsel, Ex-Judge Thaddeus S. Sharretts, gave out a prospectus setting forth the aims of the new association, which will be to organize importers in all sections of the country in defense of their rights, and to co-operate with the Treasury Department in the elimination of undervaluations and fraud in the import business. Henry D. Cooper, of James F. White & Co., linen importers of this city, has been chosen President, and among the promoters of the association are Lee Kohns, of L. Straus & Sons; Max Neuburger, of Neuburger & Co., Albert Lorsch, of Albert Lorsch & Co., and Robert T. Fox.

According to the prospectus, the new association will strive to promote harmony and co-operation among its members, and also do all in its power to assist in the prevention of improper and unlawful practices in relation to importations, and especially so relative to undervaluations in imported merchandise. It is proposed to investigate, and act upon, with the united aid of its members, any unfair action taken in respect to any member of the association under the Tariff act, and the administrative sections thereof, and to secure for its members, individually and collectively, fair, impartial and just administration of the provisions of the law, both with respect to reappraisement and classification cases.

The prospectus makes it plain that the association will endeavor to clear up prejudice against importers whether existing in the Treasury Department or in Congress. On this point, the official announcement says:

> To accentuate and emphasize the dignity and importance to this country at large of the business of the importation of foreign merchandise, and to eliminate any existing prejudices and discrimination, wheresoever the same may be found or however the same may arise, against importers of foreign goods, and in so doing, to correct any misapprehension which may exist among members of the national Legislature or officers or employes of the Government instrumental in the administration of the Tariff Act, that importers in foreign merchandise as a class are not desirous of maintaining their business upon an honorable place and of avoiding evasions of the Tariff Act of fraudulent undervaluation or otherwise.
> The foregoing purposes can only be effectively carried out by an association, nation-wide in its scope, which shall take a firm stand and present a united front in carrying out its objects.
> The affairs of the association will be in the hands of gentlemen of recognized standing who command the confidence not only of the members of the association, but of the public at large in respect to the furthering of the aims of the association and the enlargement of its power for good in behalf of all engaged or interested in the importation of foreign merchandise in this country.

Judge Sharretts, who is the legal advisor of the association, said yesterday it is apparent that, the larger the membership of the association the more effective it will be, and the more representative its membership the greater will be its power and importance in achieving the desired aims. "For a good many years," said the attorney, "importers have been regarded in many quarters as criminals. Among other things we hope in time to correct this erroneous impression."

With the launching of the new organization will begin a nation-wide campaign for members. It was said yesterday that 6,000 members are expected within a short time, and at least 10,000 ultimately. For the present, the headquarters of the association will be in Judge Sharretts's offices in the City Investing Building.

Who Is Mr. Wilson?
"The Columbia has scored what is undoubtedly the greatest triumph in the history of dance recording by securing for this important branch the one man who, above all others, is responsible for the renaissance of dancing in America, and who is the greatest living authority on the subject, Mr. G. Hepburn Wilson. Many of the most prominent instructors now teaching the new dances owe their success to Mr. Wilson's training."

WHAT LIGHT BULBS COST.

The Kind for Christmas Trees Figure Out About a Cent Apiece.

Interesting data regarding the cost of making fancy electric light bulbs in Germany are revealed in a decision of the Board of United States General Appraisers handed down yesterday. The case decided stood in the name of A. Wolff & Co., of this city, who imported the goods for Christmas tree decorative purposes. The bulbs are colored and represent 24 varieties of fruit. The Collector classified the goods as articles in chief value of blown glass under Paragraph 98, Tariff act of 1909, while the importers claimed 45 per cent. under the provision for manufactures in chief value of metal.

The contention of the importers was that metal predominated in the make-up of the bulbs and should rule in the classification. One of the witnesses testifying on this point gave the relative values as follows: metal base, 6-10 of a cent; leading-in wire, 2-100 of a cent; nickel wire, 5-100 of a cent; platinum, ½ of a cent; 4 joints of platinum and copper and nickel alloy, 12-100 of a cent; the joints of the filaments are nickel, 3-10 of a cent; filament, 35-100 of a cent; solder, 2-10 of a cent, and the breakage in putting these things together, the waste, amounts to about 10 per cent.

Continuing, the witness was examined as follows:

Q.—Now, what is the value of the blown globe? A.—The globe is manufactured here at a price of $1.25 a hundred.

Q.—Have you ever imported them? A.—Yes, Sir; we pay for the same goods in Europe 4 marks (95 1-5 cents) the hundred.

Q.—Is that in the painted condition? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—What is it worth in the condition as imported? A.—We pay for the painting of the globes about one-fourth of a cent each.

Q.—Based on those calculations, which do you find the component material of chief value, the glass parts or the combined metal parts? A.—The combined metal parts.

Customs Examiner Haigin, called as a witness by the importers, testified that later shipments of the bulbs are better imitations of fruit than the earlier shipments, and added: "It does not cost any more to make better goods, than it did before to make poorer goods." He said metal still remains the component of chief value even in the better grade of blubs.

Judge Sullivan holds, in his decision sustaining the claim for lower duty, that as the facts are without dispute regarding the component of chief value, the Collector's assessment must be overruled.

LONDON'S FUR SALE.

Millions of Pelts Offered at This Great Trade Auction.

About 420,000 skunk skins were disposed of yesterday at the opening of the March fur sale of C. M. Lampson & Co. in London. Because of the great size of the offerings and the lack of spirited buying, prices showed an average decline of 27½ per cent. from the prices obtained at the March sale in 1913. They were also about 5 per cent. lower than the figures secured at the January, 1914, sale of these skins, according to cables received by Alfred Fraser of this city, the American representative of the Lampson firm.

To-day's offerings at the sale will consist of 1,800,000 musquash, or muskrat, skins, and 700,000 Southern muskrat skins. On April 1, the closing day of the sale, about 750,000 more of these skins will be put up, making the offering for the entire sale about 3,250,000. Other heavy offerings will be 250,000 raccoon skins on March 26, and the same number of mole skins on the following day. Other notable offerings will be 5,000 Russian sables on March 23; 60 sea otter, 500 silver fox, and 3,000 lynx skins on March 27; 180,000 ermine on March 30, and 120,000 mink on March 31. The sale, as a whole, will be one of the most stupendous ever known, the number of pelts to be offered running well up into the millions.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

WHEAT.

Prices advanced quickly at the close on covering, and final prices were ⅜c to ¾c net higher. The foreign market showed little feature.

Leading authorities and crop experts seem to believe that the crop will pass through the Winter with less than the average Winter killing, which will leave the largest acreage on record.

In the local cash market No. 2 hard Winter wheat was quoted at $1.01¼, cost, insurance, and freight, to arrive; No. 2 red, $1.04½, elevator, domestic; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.03½, free on board, afloat, opening navigation; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.03¾, free on board, afloat.

COTTON.

The cotton market lost most of an early advance yesterday, closing easy at a net gain of 5 points on March, but 2 points lower on June, while other months were unchanged to only 1 point higher. Closing prices were the lowest of the day.

The report of the Census Bureau, indicating that the production of linters this season has been about 629,000 bales, was about in line with expectations and failed to create fresh sentiment.

Southern spot markets as officially reported were unchanged to ⅛c higher. The local market for spot cotton was steady and unchanged at 13.25 for middling upland; sales nil; delivered on contract, 1,100 bales.

The range of contract prices was as follows:

Selling Terms, Not Merchandise.

Selling terms and not merchandise is the way a coat and suit manufacturer characterizes present selling methods. "Our terms," he said, "are 7-10-60, but a buyer will invariably demand 10-10, and when we suggest adding the difference in terms on the price of the merchandise the order is torn up. Another custom is accepting our terms and taking the difference between the terms given and asked off the price of the merchandise. For instance, if we fix a price $27.50 on a suit, our terms will be accepted if we make the price $26.50. Again, shipments made on the 15th of the month will be considered as received the end of the month. That is why I claim terms are being sold nowadays, not merchandise."

Narrow Cottons More Active.

Trading in the local gray goods market was featured by an improved demand for narrow fabrics. Some good sales of 27-inch 64-60s were made for spot and nearby delivery at 3 3-16 cents. There was some talk of contract business at that price, but it was not confirmed. There was also a revival of the report that 80 squares could be had for nearby delivery at 7 cents but, so far as could be learned, sellers were firm in their demands for 7⅛ cents. For delivery later in the year, however, the mills were willing to quote 7 cents. A few sales of 39-inch 68-72s, for nearby delivery, at 5¾ cents were about the only evidences of interest in wide printcloths. The call for high-class sateens continued, and there was also a picking-up in the demand for the cheaper constructions of these goods.

Will the Crinoline Come?

Is the little short jacket that is now so popular with women a forerunner of the return of the crinoline? There are some in this market who think so, and among them are men who have been alive long enough to remember the little jackets that went with the crinoline in the '60s. The opinion is expressed, however, that the crinoline will not come until the dancing habit of the moment comes to an end, and on this point predictions vary considerably. In answering a TIMES reporter's question as to how the wearers of the hoopskirt could make use of the transit facilities of the present day, one veteran dry goods man said that they could do it as easily as the ladies of the olden days made use of the Broadway buses. He backed water a little, however, when he thought of the Subway rush.

Broadcloths Sure for Fall.

There is now little doubt in the minds of the principal dress goods operators in this market that broadcloths are coming back for Fall with a rush. For several seasons these fabrics have been more or less neglected by the retailers and the garment makers, but there is now a well developed trend toward them. A good serge season is also predicted by some of the trade authorities. Not all the demand will be for staple goods, however, and the mills that now have looms busy on fancy goods will get their share of the season, from all accounts. Business in the jobbing end of the dress goods market is fairly active, and there is a feeling that after the turn of the month duplicating on Spring merchandise will be liberal. Some of the jobbers' salesmen will leave for their territories with Fall lines late this week or early next.

Raw Silk Prices Easier.

With the arrival of Spring reelings in the Yokohama raw silk market, holders are showing more of a disposition to offer slight concessions in price in order to attract the attention of buyers. Stocks have been increased a little in the last few days, but they are still low as compared with last year. The Canton market has lately been more active both for American and European account, and the supply of sixth crop silks will shortly be exhausted. Prices have picked up a little on old silk in consequence, as well as on new crop reelings. Business in the latter silks is fairly active for late delivery. Shanghai continues unchanged. There has been better buying for European account in Milan, but the scarcity of silk at that point is hindering business to a considerable extent. This is especially true of the better grades. In New York the price situation shows no change, and there is a fair general demand for spot and forward delivery silks.

Co-operative Buying a Success.

The operation of the co-operative purchasing bureau of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, according to Walter H. Bartholomew, its manager, has proved most successful. During the past year supplies to the amount of $83,000 were bought with a saving to members estimated at 25 per cent. Pins are bought by the ton, 6,000 tons being consumed last year, and paper by the carload. By purchasing through the bureau manufacturers are assured that what they buy is of standard quality and quantity and that no graft is being paid to a shipping clerk for poor substitutes. It has been found in the case of pins that, while a low price may be quoted, the number of pins running to a pound is much smaller, a variance of 200 to 300 pins per pound from the number of standard quality pins sometimes occurring. Where a standard is not fixed and a shipment of tissue paper carefully examined upon receipt, 22 sheets may often be substituted for a quire. The purchasing bureau of the association attends to these details, and the results have been most satisfactory to the members. The exchange bureau of the association through which a manufacturer who has a surplus of fabric on hand may sell to another member, has also justified expectations. This bureau deducts 1 per cent. for finding a buyer for surplus fabrics, and generally between 70 and 80 per cent. of the original cost is realized whereas if the goods were unloaded on the open market a much lower price would be obtained.

Pamphlets, Soaked Flax, and Velvet Selvage Cases Decided.

The dividing line between publications for free distribution was decided yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers in the protest case of Hind, Rolph & Co., San Francisco, involving matter imported for the Union Steamship Company, Ltd., of New Zealand, and the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company. The publications consisted of pamphlets descriptive of the South Sea Islands and other parts of the world visited by the steamers of the lines mentioned, together with folders entitled "Union Line Passenger List" and "Royal Mail Service, via San Francisco."

Duty was assessed on all of the publications at the rate of 25 per cent. ad valorem, as printed matter, under Paragraph 416 of the old law, while free entry was claimed under Paragraph 517 as "publications of individuals for gratuitous private circulation." It appeared from the record in the case that the pamphlets and folders are distributed free of charge to prospective passengers of the two lines. Judge Fischer holds that the pamphlets possess an educational and literary value on account of their contents, and orders them admitted free, while the folders descriptive of the companies' services are held to have been properly classified. A somewhat similar protest by Kronfeld, Saunders & Co., New York, was sustained.

The board sustained a protest by the Linen Thread Company, New York, in which the claim was made that duty had been assessed upon an amount in excess of the actual weight of undressed flax by reason of the absorption of much water while in transit. The Government weigher's return made no allowance for water, although it was apparent from the return that a great many bales were wet, some in fact so soaked that they became slack. This, it was claimed by the importers, was caused by the excessive moisture absorbed, bringing about an expansion of the fiber which burst the bales. The board holds that the excessive weight caused by the water amounted to 57,875 pounds. The Collector is ordered to reliquidate the entries, and make allowance for this weight.

Whether the selvage of velvets shall or shall not be measured in determining the width of the fabrics for dutiable purposes formed the subject of a controversy between the customs officers and M. E. Mailhouse, New York. The officials included the selvage in estimating the duty, and this resulted in the levying of a higher rate than would have been the case had the selvage been excluded. The importer went before the board with the claim that the selvage should not have been counted. Judge Cooper dissented from this view and affirmed the Government's method of arriving at the duty.

SIDINGS ARE LUMBER.

A Liberal Interpretation by the Appraisers in the Matter.

That the lumber schedule of the Tariff act of 1913 will be interpreted in the liberal spirit intended by Congress in its framing was made plain yesterday in a decision of the Board of United States General Appraisers affecting so-called novelty sidings. F. W. Myers & Co. imported merchandise of this description at Burlington, Vt., immediately after the passage of the present tariff law.

The Collector returned the sidings or fancy clapboards at 15 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 176 of the new act as manufactures of wood. The importers set up the contention that as the sidings had been planed only, they did not lose their identity as lumber, and accordingly should be given free entry under Paragraph 647. The merchandise, the subject of protest, is reduced to the desired size and condition by being put through Berdin planers, which smooth the edges and sides and give the coving or concaving effect. The witnesses for the importers were men of extended experience in the milling and lumber trade. They united in saying that planed lumber, as known to the trade, embraces all forms of lumber made through the use of a planer, or planer and matcher. Judge McClelland, in his decision sustaining the claim for duty exemption says in part:

"It is difficult to conjecture upon what theory the Collector classified this lumber under Paragraph 176, unless it be that it comes under the provision for 'manufactures of wood.' Very clearly it would seem as though Paragraph 176 was not framed to include such lumber for the very obvious reason that it has nost its identity by being manufactured into an article with a distinct and new name. The most that may be said here is that these boards are lumber manufactured, which is altogether different from being manufactures of lumber.

"In the tariff revision of 1913, Congress eliminated from the dutiable schedules every kind of lumber named in Paragraph 201 of the act of 1909, and transferred them to the free list, (Paragraph 647,) and while it is true that neither in the act of 1909 nor in the existing law is novelty siding mentioned under that name, we are satisfied that it was the purpose of Congress in this latest revision to place all kinds of lumber, regardless of how it is treated, so long as it has not lost its identity as lumber, on the free list. Furthermore, we are of the opinion that the terms 'clapboards' and 'planed lumber' are each sufficiently comprehensive to include the lumber in question."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Firmer Again, but Very Dull—Political Influence Upon Trade.

Dealings on the Stock Exchange fell yesterday to still smaller proportions, but prices hardened and the general level of quotations showed a small net gain. For many days the market as a whole has moved aimlessly, making a little ground and losing it and then regaining it with the dealings all the while on a scale so limited as to suggest a minimum of public participation. In neither direction have price movements barring exceptional cases, gained much headway, but if the market has not been able to sustain long any forward impulse neither has it developed weakness. The underlying firmness commands all the more attention because of the fact that trade news has been unfavorable rather than encouraging.

Business which yields the profits underlying security values has in a number of directions been under check and this has been no small handicap for the stock market as a whole. Its relative strength under these unfavorable circumstances naturally increases interest in the showing which the stock market would make if trade were permitted to expand as much as it easily might expand were it not for the repressive force of governmental activities which restrict enterprise. That of course is not the sole reason for quiet trade, but it is one which accentuates every other retarding influence. It is accountable in not a few instances for the hesitation which is holding back new undertakings. At the moment no one in the financial district seems to be doing anything that he can avoid doing, and for this apprehension born of political considerations is in no small measure responsible.

The market, however, has the advantage of very great money ease and this has been a sustaining force which has outweighed some other factors of opposite import. Easy money primarily supports the bond market and some evidence was afforded yesterday of a new turn for the better in that department. In some quarters buying was a little freer and prices firmer and there were one or two movements in the bond list sufficiently out of the ordinary to attract wide interest. Chief among them was the large buying and sharp advance in the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy joint 4s. Not all of that buying was based on the revival of the report that the bonds would be called for payment as a step in rearranging the present scheme by which ownership of the Burlington is divided between the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific. The transfer of full ownership to the Great Northern has long been discussed as a possibility, but it was thought likely in banking circles yesterday that the present time would be chosen for carrying through such a plan.

The filing of the Government's suit against the Lehigh Valley did not prove an adverse factor in the market for the railroad's shares, which made a gain of over a point, but the Coal Sales Company's stock declined somewhat sharply in the outside market. In view of the similar suits lately filed against other coal roads this latest action caused no surprise.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Sinking Funds in Favor.

The action of the Chesapeake & Ohio Directors in agreeing to spend $17,000,000 on improvements in the next five years in consideration of a loan of $33,000,000 has started a revival of agitation in favor of a return to the practice at one time in vogue, but of late years almost forgotten, of setting aside a portion of earnings each year for a sinking fund. The Chesapeake's action, which puts the improvement fund ahead of dividends, was not relished by some of the stockholders, but the larger interests in the company saw the necessity of keeping down the capitalization and agreed in advance to the sinking fund provisions. Directors of other roads are now thinking seriously of making similar arrangements to get better terms for their securities. Had some of the roads which are now barely earning a surplus started five years ago to put a definite amount into a replacement and improvement fund out of current earnings, instead of making that fund merely an offsetting item on the books, there would be less talk to-day of possible complications through maturing note issues.

Burlington Joint 4s Up.

There was an unusual amount of activity yesterday in the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy collateral trust 4s, during which the price advanced from 96⅝, the close on Wednesday, to 98. These bonds are callable at 105, and at irregular intervals a story gains currency to the effect that the Great Northern, which owns a half interest in the Burlington, is going to buy control from the Northern Pacific, which has the other half. At one time negotiations to this end were under way, but the Northern Pacific's selling figure was so much above the Great Northern's offer that the matter came to a sudden end. An official in the Hill companies said last night that he knew of no reason for bringing the story up again at this time.

Merchants Oppose Change.

The Merchants' Association and the Clearing House are still far apart on the definition of commercial paper to be used under the new Federal Reserve act, and the bankers' proposal that two-name paper be favored is meeting with strong opposition on the part of mercantile interests. The committee having the matter in charge has reported against the proposed change to the Board of Directors of the association, and the report probably will go to Washington. Some of the merchants are willing to abide by the bankers' suggestions, but a majority of those who attended the recent meeting take the stand that single-name paper is discriminated against, since its use under the new plan would be restricted to that bearing a certification that the proceeds were to pay for goods, wares or merchandise for resale. This definition, it is contended, would eliminate the present form of loans made by commission merchants to manufacturers.

New Steel Bonds Expected Soon.

The Steel Corporation's report contained confirmation of rumors heard recently in Wall Street that an issue of bonds is contemplated, Chairman Gary reported that there was under consideration by the Directors a suggestion to reimburse the Treasury for outlay made in connection with the new plant at Duluth. In building the plant the corporation so far has spent $13,445,648, and considerably more work will be necessary to prepare the mills for operation by next Spring. It is expected that the bonds will bear 5 per cent. interest, and will be placed on the market soon.

Express Shares Fall Heavily.

Shares of the United States Express Company reflected in yesterday's market apprehension that opposition may develop to the plan of liquidation. A sheer drop of 5 points in a few transactions carried the stock down to 73 and established it at the close of the day on a level 14 points below the high price of last week. Efforts are being made by some of the minority stockholders to form a committee which shall have a voice in settling up the company's affairs. The shareholders interested include those who were active four years ago in an attempt to call the first meeting of stockholders in fifty years. The Platt interests controlled the situation in 1910, and the minority shareholders were unable to gain any ground. Those interested in the present movement are looking about for the most influential members obtainable for the committee, and the Street is expecting complications in the situation before the company is dissolved.

A Break on the Curb.

After a period of several months in which stock of the Lehigh Valley Coal Sales Company stood persistently between 170 and 180 a share on the Curb, a break of more than 20 points occurred in them yesterday. Transactions were reported at as low a price as 150, although the bulk of sales was between 155 and 160. The sudden weakness of this issue was ascribed to the Government's contention in the suit filed against the Lehigh Valley Railroad that its contract with the coal selling company should be canceled. Evidently the shares on the Curb bore yesterday the full brunt of the selling because of the litigation. The railroad stock was weak for hours before papers in the suit were actually filed on Wednesday, but closed at an advance of 1⅛ points.

Professional Traders to the Fore.

Professional traders were by far the leading factors in the market on the Exchange. For long periods during the session, particularly in the afternoon, efforts to seize occasional profits supplied about all the business that was done. At the close the price list had an irregular appearance, but brokers said that the undertone had been firm throughout the day, in spite of pressure against particular issues.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Year Book of American Securities and Financial Diary for 1914, a volume of more than 800 pages, has been issued for 1914 by the Securities Press Company.

Negotiations for the consolidation of the Queens County Mortgage Company with the Lawyers Title Insurance and Trust Company have reached a point where $110 a share has been agreed upon as the price to be paid for the Queens County stock.

The Financial Review for 1914, issued by The Commercial and Financial Chronicle, is now ready for distribution. It contains a retrospect of 1913, bank clearings, transactions on the Stock Exchange, money rates, and many other financial statistics.

The Harriman National Bank, at Fifth Avenue and Forty-fourth Street, formerly the Night and Day Bank, enters upon its fourth year as a National institution to-day. With the change in the nature of upper Fifth Avenue from a residential to a shopping centre, the bank's deposits have grown from $4,000,000 to $17,500,000.

Stockholders of the Fourth National Bank have ratified the proposition to reduce the capital from $5,000,000 to $3,000,000, which lowers the surplus by $2,000,000. The bank now has capital assets in excess of $6,000,000, represented by $3,000,000 stock and $3,000,000 surplus and undivided profits.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

New low records were established on the Consolidated Stock Exchange for both Rock Island common and preferred, but the general market resisted their weakness and closed with a moderate improvement. The actual filing of the latest Government suit was virtually ignored by Lehigh Valley, while a favorable construction was placed upon the overnight news from Mexico. On the 9:30 o'clock call Lehigh Valley sold at 145 to 144¾, the latter being its final call price, and representing a decline of three-eighths of a point from Wednesday's closing quotation.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

Depression in London Followed by General Recovery—Prices Close Firm in Berlin.

LONDON, March 19.—Money was dearer and discount rates were easy to-day.

Another fall in consols and home securities, due to fears of Ulster and labor troubles, and further liquidation in Brazilian and Argentine securities depressed the stock market until the afternoon, when better Continental advices and local covering checked the decline and caused a general hardening in values. Consols closed three-eighths higher and Mexican issues were firm features.

American securities opened quiet and a fraction lower. Light covering helped values during the first hour and later the market improved on New York bidding and closed steady.

PARIS, March 19.—Prices were irregular on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes 86 francs 80 centimes for the account.

BERLIN, March 19.—The Boerse opened dull and lower to-day on unfavorable New York advices.

The market was supported later, and prices advanced and closed firm.

Bank of Bengal's Rate Reduced.

CALCUTTA, March 19.—The rate of discount of the Bank of Bengal was reduced from 7 to 6 per cent. to-day.

READING'S OWNERS LISTED.

Lake Shore and B. & O. Hold 1,213,250 Shares and Widener 100,000.

A list of the largest Reading stockholders at the close of business last Monday, which has been put in evidence in the Government suit against the anthracite carriers, shows that the Lake Shore and the Baltimore & Ohio are the principal owners of the Reading.

P. A. B. Widener is the largest individual holder of common stock. He has 100,000 shares of the par value of $50 each and a market value of about $8,250,000. George F. Baker has 17,500 shares of common, worth about $1,445,000. Oliver H. Payne comes next with 15,000 shares.

Those holding more than 10,000 shares of either common or preferred stock, or both combined, are as follows:

OATMEAL TRUST HEARING.

Evidence in Federal Suit Taken Before Woman Examiner.

CHICAGO, March 19.—Hearings in the Government's anti-trust suit against the Quaker Oats Company and the Great Western Cereal Company began to-day. Evidence was taken before Miss Kate S. Holmes, special examiner.

"The Government charges," said James H. Wilkerson, United States District Attorney, "that the defendants are in conspiracy to monopolize the oatmeal business of the country. It seeks the dissolution of the company and asks that it be enjoined from interstate commerce until the dissolution is complete.

"Prior to 1891 there were eleven principal oatmeal plants in the country, situated in Ohio, Illinois, and Iowa. They were members of a pool, known as the Consolidated Oatmeal Company. After the passage of the trust act, they were merged into the American Cereal Company, which in 1902 was taken over by the Quaker Oats Company.

"The independents organized into the Great Western Cereal Company in 1901. A price fixing agreement was made between the two companies. The Government charges that in 1911 Joy Morton wrecked the Great Western Company and sold all its plants that were making money to the Quaker Oats Company."

Joy Morton, H. P. Crowell, Robert Stuart, James H. Douglass, John Stuart, A. Stanford White, and John Welling are individual defendants in the suit.

BRANCH BANKS IN EUROPE.

Little Opposition to be Overcome There, Says John A. Noble.

In discussing the field for branches of national banks in Europe, John A. Noble, cashier of the Harriman National Bank, who studied the situation in behalf of his institution, said yesterday that there might not be so much opposition from European banks as had been predicted.

"The provision of the currency law giving permission to establish agencies or branches has, on the one hand, given some concern to European banking houses," said he, "but, on the other, it has been regarded favorably, and there is an evident disposition among European bankers to work hand in hand with this country in financial matters.

"I visited Berlin, Paris, and London and met and talked with the more prominent bankers of those cities, fully advising myself as to the field for American activity in foreign countries. Americans keep so fully in touch with foreign developments in the financial and commercial world that there will be very little inertia to overcome at such time as the United States shall be fully prepared to establish national bank branches in Europe."

New Head for North American Co.

An expected change in the officers of the North American Company was made yesterday when James Campbell of St. Louis resigned as President to take the newly created Chairmanship of the board. James D. Mortimer, formerly Vice President, was made President, and George R. Sheldon was elected Vice President. Edwin Gruhl was made Assistant to the President.

FIND CATE'S CHARGES TO BE UNWARRANTED

American Locomotive Affairs Not Grossly Mismanaged, Investigators Report.

SALES OF STOCK EXPLAINED

Made to Protect Company's Bankers During the Panic—Reduction of Salaries Recommended.

The American Locomotive Company made public yesterday the report of a special committee appointed to investigate charges of extravagance and mismanagement made against officers of the concern by Isaac M. Cate, a stockholder, last September. The findings were signed by ex-Gov. John W. Griggs of New Jersey, Albert H. Wiggin, President of the Chase National Bank, and Thomas Thacher of counsel for the company, and were concurred in by an advisory committee consisting of William R. Willcox and Dr. L. Clark Seelye, former President of Smith College. Messrs. Griggs and Wiggin are Directors.

The investigators found that while the Board of Directors had not given as frequent and careful consideration of the company's affairs as good business required, the Cate charges of gross mismanagement were not proved by the facts. Their report said that although some of the officers of the Locomotive Company had been Directors in other companies from which it purchased supplies, no evidence was found that the company had suffered because of such relationship. On the contrary, because of quick delivery when goods were needed faster than they could be turned out by the company's own plants, there was an advantage in buying from these other concerns, and there was no proof that sales had been influenced by personal interest. The committee recommended that outside directorships be discontinued, and the report said that such steps had been taken.

"The plan of compensating executive officers in part by bonuses, based on profits," said the report, "is of doubtful wisdom. We are advised that it has been discontinued. It is, of course, desirable that salaries be reduced, if at lower salaries satisfactory officials can be retained. We can hardly say more on this subject than that we recommend it for consideration to the board."

The failure of the company's automobile business to show a profit was said not to be due to any dereliction on the part of the general officers of the company. The business should have been closed up long before it was, the committee said, but was kept going in the hope of a final achievement of success which did not materialize. The lack of experience by managers of this end of the company's activities was referred to as a possible reason for the unprofitable manufacture of autos, although it was pointed out that efforts were made to get the best men.

Mr. Cate, in a letter to the shareholders of the company, dated Nov. 24, 1913, criticised the sale to Harvey Fisk & Sons of 9,000 shares of preferred stock which were in the company's treasury. The transaction occurred when the panic of 1907 was at its height and the company, according to the report, was in urgent need of cash to meet payroll requirements. To obtain cash throughout the long period of money stringency the company was forced to rely on the banking house. Finally, the company's turn came to aid its bankers, and the report tells what happened in these words:

> It was on Oct. 30, 1907, that the American Locomotive Company sold to Harvey Fisk & Sons 9,000 shares of American Locomotive preferred stock at 90 and purchased from the same house 25,000 shares of American Locomotive Company common stock at 45.
>
> The transaction was entered into by the American Locomotive Company, not for any selfish purposes, nor to make money, but as a measure of general relief of the sort that all large corporations in New York were rendering to ameliorate a most unusual and critical condition, which, if not stayed, promised to result in the most widespread financial disaster. The President of the company took the responsibility for the action on Oct. 30 and on the next day his action was approved by the Executive Committee of the company, which action was subsequently, on Nov. 6, 1907, approved by the Board of Directors.
>
> There was no motive for this transaction except the desire on the part of the management to strengthen the position of Harvey Fisk & Sons at that time. This was not because that house was in any greater danger of suspension than other first-class banking concerns, but because in the condition which generally prevailed at that time there was none whose position was certainly assured against disaster.
>
> The action of this company may be said to have been altruistic. Certainly it was not in any degree influenced by the direct interest of any of the officers. The preferred stock which was sold, was, of course, a more marketable security at that time than the common stock, and was also better collateral. The exchange, therefore, strengthened Harvey Fisk & Sons in their financial position. They had been the fiscal agents of this company since its beginning, were depositaries of its funds, and had stood behind it in its financial operations.
> As a matter of fact, the company does not appear to have suffered financially by the transaction. In May, 1908, 7,000 shares of the common stock so acquired were sold at an average price of about 51, yielding $357,082.50. In July, 1908, the remaining 18,000 shares of common stock were sold at 50, netting $900,000. The block of common stock was, therefore, sold at 50 or better, and at a profit of about $132,000. This sum, added to the $810,000, realized on the 9,000 shares of preferred stock, made the total amount realized on the transaction $942,082, which is an average price of 104.67 for each share of preferred stock. At the date on which the exchange was made both the preferred and common stock sold on the Stock Exchange considerably below the prices fixed in the transaction.

The committee's findings were supplemented by a separate investigation of the company conducted by John Havron, a prominent locomotive builder. Mr. Havron stated that a three-months' scrutiny of bills and accounts had developed no corrupt practices on the part of American Locomotive officers.

The report was accompanied by a letter from President Marshall to shareholders in which the company's position as to earnings was described.

"In the first six months of the present fiscal year," said he, "the company earned net over all charges $2,631,687, or sufficient to pay fixed charges for the remainder of the year and the preferred dividends for the full year. What earnings may be for the remaining six months it is difficult to predict. In fact, the present volume of business is so small that if there is no improvement your company may not do more than earn its operating expenses during the last half of the present fiscal year, notwithstanding that expenses have been reduced so far as possible."

Mr. Marshall described the company as in a strong financial condition and ready to do a profitable business as soon as the railroads were again in the market.

Investors Guide

We have prepared a chart showing the gross and net earnings, miles operated, and other figures of the leading railroad systems of the country for the fiscal years ending June 30, 1912 and 1913.

Investors who, from time to time require information of this character, will find this chart of great value not merely as a record of the earnings of these railroads for the two years in question but as an indication of the comparative earning power of these roads with reference to one another.

We will be glad to send a copy of this chart upon request.

EQUITABLE TO GUARD ITS POLICY HOLDERS

Company Adopts a System of Free Medical Re-examinations at Three-Year Intervals.

HAS 500,000 ON ITS BOOKS

Medical Staff Will Be Increased and Paid Examiners Stationed in Various States.

The Equitable Life Assurance Society announced yesterday that beginning on July 1 free periodical medical examinations would be offered to its policy holders. This, it was explained, was an extension of its conservation work, plans for which were approved by the Directors at their meeting yesterday.

The Equitable has 500,000 policy holders, but only those whose insurance has been in force for three years or longer will be entitled to the free examinations. Policy holders will be re-examined without charge at intervals of three years after the first examination if they desire.

W. A. Day, President of the Equitable, said in connection with the announcement:

"For several years the society has been advising Equitable policy holders to go periodically to their physicians for a physical examination, in order that any impairment of health may be detected in the very beginning, and that the evil may be checked or a cure effected before it is too late. We shall continue to give this advice to our policy holders, but in addition we have determined to take this important advance step in the line of public service.

"The society now has salaried physicians at central points in many of the States, and by July 1 salaried examiners will be established in other States in which the society's transactions are of sufficient volume to justify it. A list of these stations will be announced on July 1, together with full details regarding this service for the information of policy holders."

The examinations will be available at the central points where the society has salaried physicians. In the case of policy holders who do not care to submit to physical examinations or cannot conveniently reach one of these central points, the society will make, at intervals of one year, without charge, health reports based on chemical tests made in the laboratory at its home office. This service will be handled entirely by mail, without labor or loss of time by the policy holders.

The analysis involved, it was said, was more valuable and comprehensive than any other single test that could be made short of a physical examination, because it often revealed the earlier stages of some insidious disease before the development of superficial symptoms.

To each eligible policy holder applying for this service the society will send a health blank embodying a few simple questions which any layman can readily answer. When a study of the case has been made in the society's medical department, a report will be sent to the policy holder in one of three forms.

It will state that the society has found no indication of anything serious, and consequently has no specific recommendation to make; or that there seems to be some slight indication of impairment, and that it might be well for the policy holder to consult a physician; or that the indications are such as to prompt the society to advise the policy holder to seek immediate medical advice, in which case the society will stand ready to submit its findings to the policy holder's physician if he so directs.

The movement for free medical examinations is one that has caused much discussion among life insurance men for the last few years, but the Equitable is the largest company that has yet offered such a service to its policy holders. The increase of degenerative diseases, such as those of the arteries, heart, and other organs, and such as cancer, in the United States in the last twenty years has been one of the principal factors in arousing interest in the prevention of these diseases or their elimination in the early stages.

The expense of making the examinations, it is believed, will be fully offset by the reduction in the death rate of those examined. One life in a hundred, it has been argued, may be prolonged twenty years or more through the discovery of an incipient disease that would have terminated fatally in a comparatively short time. This amounts to about the same thing as the prolongation of all the 100 lives for ten weeks, so far as the insurance results are concerned.

U. P.'S "MELON" IN COURT.

Decision Reserved on Equitable's Move for an Injunction.

Charles W. Pierson, attorney for the Equitable Life Assurance Society, appeared in the Supreme Court yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum and argued for an injunction restraining the Union Pacific Railroad Company from distributing profits of about $80,000,000 among the holders of common shares of the road, to the exclusion of the holders of preferred stock. The Equitable owns $1,600,000 of preferred shares and contends that the preferred stockholders should share pro rata in the "melon."

Mr. Pierson told Justice Greenbaum that it was a most unusual set of circumstances that had made the "melon" possible, and that never again perhaps—at least, not in the lifetime of those present—would such enormous profits accrue to a railroad in as short a period. The sale of Northern Pacific and Great Northern stock held by the Union Pacific had netted the railroad $58,000,000, he said, and $15,000,000 was gained by the Union Pacific through the sale of its own convertible gold bonds.

"These are not petty items, your Honor," he told the Justice.

Then he pointed out that if these transactions had resulted in loss, the loss would have fallen equally upon the preferred and common stockholders, arguing from this that the preferred stockholders were entitled to share in gains as well as losses.

John G. Milburn appeared as attorney for the Union Pacific Railroad and called attention to the fact that it was the money obtained from the sale of the Union Pacific common stock that made possible the purchase of the stock from which the profits had been reaped.

Justice Greenbaum gave both Mr. Milburn and Mr. Pierson until this morning to file additional briefs and reserved decision.

Louis Bossert Left $2,122,463.

An appraisal of the estate of Louis Bossert, manufacturer of trim material and owner of the Hotel Bossert, Montague and Hicks Streets, Brooklyn, filed yesterday in the office of Surrogate Ketcham, placed its value at $2,122,463.40. Mr. Bossert died on Jan. 29, 1913. All his estate goes to his immediate family, with the exception of about $25,000. The chief beneficiary is Mrs. Phillipine Bossert, the widow. Her share of the estate is $311,759.33. Each of the six children of Mr. Bossert receives about $270,035.32.

Cottonseed Oil Output Increases.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The Census Bureau to-day reported that 4,753,395 tons of cottonseed had been crushed from the 1913 cotton crop, and that 629,019 running bales of linter cotton had been obtained. These figures are compared with 4,579,508 tons of seed crushed from the 1912 crop and 4,921,073 from the 1911 crop, and 602,324 running bales of linter cotton obtained from the 1912 crop and 556,276 from the 1911 crop.

Bishop O'Connor Conducts Ordination in South Orange, N. J.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., March 19.—Twelve students of the Seminary of the Immaculate Conception at Seton Hall College, South Orange, were ordained to the Catholic priesthood at a solemn pontifical mass celebrated in the seminary chapel to-day. The ordinations followed a week's retreat, and immediately after the mass ten students of Bayley Hall, the grammar school attached to the college, were confirmed by Bishop O'Connor.

Those ordained were Thomas J. Herron, Philip J. Henebry, Michael Hannon, and Bronsilaus A. Socha of Newark; Francis J. Doogan of New York; Christopher A. Lawless of Morristown; John B. Bennett of Toronto; William J. Caffrey, Edmond J. O'Keefe, and Edward J. Budrawiz of Jersey City; Clarence A. Heavey of Orange, and John S. McDonald of Paterson.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

City.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission has approved the following communications from Miss Upshaw, Secretary of the Advisory Board:

Recommending that the commission order and examination for draughtsman, Grade C, for general work; that the advertisement for attendance officer be amended to include a supplemental test in languages; that an expert be appointed to conduct the examination for pathological chemist.

Saying that at a recent meeting of the Advisory Board the matter of conducting an oral examination for foreman in the Department of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity was considered; that the report of the First Assistant Chief Examiner in this matter was approved and it was recommended that a written test be held.

Recommending that an examination for taxicab mechanician for the Bureau of Licenses, Mayor's office, be ordered as soon as possible.

Saying that Examiner Hildreth has reported that it will not be necessary to hold an examination for blueprint operator, office of the President of the Bronx, for the reason that the blueprint machine used in this office is a simple one, which might be operated by an office boy, clerk, or junior draughtsman.

United States.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an open competitive examination at the New York Custom House for junior pharmacologist, for men only, on April 8, to fill vacancies in the Bureau of Chemistry, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., at salaries ranging from $1,200 to $1,500 a year. The duties will be to assist in physiological and pharmacological operations and to carry on research under direction. Competitors will be examined in pharmacological methods, physiology, chemistry, education, and experience. An educational training equivalent to that required for graduation from a college or university of recognized standing, or the fact that the applicant is a senior student in such institution, and expects to receive his degree within four months from the date of the examination, is a prerequisite. Applicants must have reached their twenty-first but not their thirty-fifth birthday on the date of the examination. Further information may be obtained from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

EDUCATION NOTES.

The election of officers in the newly organized Camera Club of Jamaica High School resulted as follows. Russel Dodd, President; Silas Warner, Vice President, and Helen Ward, Secretary. It is planned to give an interesting exhibition at the end of the term of the pictures taken by the members.

The Committee on High Schools and the Board of Superintendents have under consideration the recommendation of the Local School Board of District 39 that a high school building be erected on the acquired site at Dumont, Pennsylvania, and Sheffield Avenues, East New York

Normal College's Graduate Club will meet at the residence of Miss Anna M. Schultz, 16 East Eighty-sixth Street, on Saturday afternoon.

The graduates of Public School 27, the Bronx, have organized an alumni association. It will hold a meeting in the school building, 147th Street and St. Ann's Avenue, on the evening of March 30.

A conference of representatives from the high and preparatory schools will be held in Columbia University on the afternoon and evening of March 28.

The senior class of the Julia Richman High School has elected these officers: President, Bella Schlesinger; Vice President, Elizabeth Sander; Secretary, Minnie MacWhirter; Treasurer, Eleanor Leavy.

At the last meeting of the Deutscher Verein of Jamaica High School it was decided to hold a "Kaffee Klatch," and President Hervey has appointed a Committee of Arrangements. It is proposed that the "Kaffee Klatch" will be held on the afternoon of March 31. The Deutscher Verein is also planning to have a German picnic in the woods near Jamaica early in April.

The Dramatic Society of Jamaica High School at its meeting last Tuesday gave a programme in honor of Sir Walter Scott. Scenes were presented from "Quentin Durward," "Kenilworth," and "Ivanhoe."

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The storm that was over New England Wednesday has moved to the Gulf of St. Lawrence, followed by clearing weather in the Atlantic States. The Texas storm of Wednesday was central Thursday night over Alabama, moving east-northeast. During the last twenty-four hours it caused general rains in the Gulf States and snow in the Middle Plains States, the Middle Mississippi and Ohio Valleys, and Tennessee.

Temperatures have fallen considerably over the West Gulf States, the lower Mississippi Valley, and New England. Warm weather continues on the Pacific Coast.

Indications are that the Southern storm will cause rains in the South Atlantic States and snow in the Middle Atlantic States and the upper Ohio Valley Friday, followed by fair weather in these districts Saturday.

It will be generally fair Friday and Saturday elsewhere except for local snows in the north from the Great Lakes to the Rocky Mountains.

Temperature will be considerably lower Friday in the East Gulf States and Friday and Saturday in the South Atlantic States. Changes elsewhere will be unimportant.

Winds for Friday and Saturday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate to brisk west and northwest; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate north; South Atlantic Coast, moderate to brisk variable, becoming north.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND SATURDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair in interior, unsettled on the Coast Friday. Saturday, fair; moderate north winds.

Southern New England—Cloudy Friday. Saturday, fair; moderate northwest winds.

New Jersey—Cloudy, with probably snow Friday. Saturday, fair; moderate north winds.

Western New York—Generally fair Friday and Saturday; moderate north winds.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Cloudy Friday, probably snow in south portion. Saturday, fair; moderate north winds.

Northern New England—Fair Friday and Saturday; moderate west and northwest winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1913.	1914.		1913.	1914.
3 A. M.	37	33	4 P. M.	56	35
6 A. M.	38	30	6 P. M.	53	33
9 A. M.	44	29	9 P. M.	50	30
12 M.	57	34	11 P. M.	51	30

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 32; for th corresponding date last year it was 48; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 38.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 28; at 8 P. M. it was 32. Maximum temperature, 37 degrees at 1:30 P. M.; minimum, 27 degrees at 7 A. M. Humidity, 59 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 50 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 29.98 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.09 inches.

Marconi Company Resists Tax.

BOSTON, Mass., March 19.—On the ground that it conducts its business eastward over the ocean, and not over the land, the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company appealed to the full bench of the Supreme Court to-day to recover a $2,000 excise tax paid the State under protest. The company has three wireless stations in this State—one here, another on Cape Cod, and a third at Nantucket. It asserts that it transmits messages to ships at sea, but to no points on land, and that it is not subject to the excise tax.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Chase National Bank Leases New Offices in Adams Building—Old Pearl Street Corner Sold—Residence Sale Near Park Avenue—Active Buying in the Bronx.

One of the most important banking moves in some time in the downtown financial district will be made in about six months, it was learned yesterday, by the Chase National Bank, which has leased for its new offices the entire ground floor of the new Adams Building, on the northwest corner of Broadway and Exchange Alley, running through to Trinity Place. The lease has been taken for twenty years, and it was admitted by President Albert H. Wiggin yesterday that the lease was ready for the final signatures.

Although the Adams Building, a thirty-two-story structure, is ready for occupancy, the additional work rendered necessary for the bank, including the equipment of its deposit and general banking vaults, will prevent the officers from taking possesion of the new home until next August or September. For the last nineteen years the Chase National Bank has occupied under lease a large portion of the New York Clearing House building, on the north side of Cedar Street, between Broadway and Nassau Street. Instead of being just above Wall Street, the bank by its removal a block below Wall Street will have the effect of strengthening the financial territory just below Wall. Robert E. Dowling is the head of the syndicate which erected the Adams Building.

Pearl Street Corner Sold.

Hugh D. Smyth has sold for cash for the Eggers family, in whose ownership the property has been for over sixty years, the northwest corner of Pearl and Ferry Streets, being 313 Pearl Street and 58 to 57 Ferry Street. The plot is 24 by 100, upon which there are three business buildings. It was held at $35,000.

Sells Home and Takes Back Lease.

A private house deal in the Park Avenue section formed an interesting feature of the realty market, in view of the somewhat unusual phase of the transaction. The dwelling was the four-story house at 104 East Seventy-ninth Street, a few feet east of Park Avenue. It was sold by Mrs. Richard L. Morris for about $60,000, and she has taken a five-year lease of her former home from the new owner. The buyer's name was not divulged by the brokers, the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company. It was an all-cash transaction. The plot is 20 by 84 and the house is opposite the seventeen-story apartment on the northeast corner of Park Avenue.

In the Murray Hill section the Rev. Dr. Joseph R. Duryee has taken title to the four-story house now occupied by him at 139 East Thirty-sixth Street, from the estate of Samuel Sloan. The plot is 23 by 98.9, adjoining the northeast corner of Lexington Avenue. The Sloan estate owns the adjoining house at 141.

Resale of Harlem Dwelling.

Ennis & Sinnott, operators, have resold to an investor 110 West 121st Street, a three-story dwelling, on a lot 20 by 100.11. The sellers acquired the parcel in a trade for an Amsterdam Avenue flat. Benjamin Nauheim negotiated the sale.

Provisional Contracts Signed.

Provisional contracts have been signed for the sale of the plot, 117.1 by 98.7 feet, with old buildings, at 124 to 130 West Thirtieth Street, by Mrs. Rebecca Cohn to a client of Fenimore Goode of N. Brigham Hall & William D. Bloodgood. The buyer has negotiations under way to erect a loft building, and rent it, entire, to one tenant for twenty-one years.

Barrington Apartments Sold.

Joseph Corn, the plaintiff in the foreclosure action against the Barrington apartments, at 203 to 213 West Eighty-first Street, obtained the property yesterday in the Vesey Street Salesroom on a bid of $383,977. The building is nine stories, on a plot 112.5 by 102.2. The action was brought against the S. B. Construction Company, which erected the house on a site purchased from Klein & Jackson. The property was sold to-day to satisfy a judgment of about $60,000. Prior mortgages on the property amount to $335,000. Jacob H. Myers sold the property.

Bronx Sales.

The recently completed five-story apartment house on the northeast corner of Featherbed Lane and Nelson Avenue has been sold by the Hillcrest Building Company to William Schlichter for investment.

The structure, which occupies a plot 60 by 125 by irregular, has been held at $95,000. Louis Meckes and Charles D. Cathie negotiated the transaction.

Arnold, Byrne & Bauman have sold for a client to M. Wolf the five-story flat with stores on the southeast corner of 156th Street and Cauldwell Avenue. The property was held at $45,000.

The Mitchell McDermott Realty Company has purchased for investment 1,321 Castle Hill Avenue, a two-story brick dwelling on a lot 23 by 100, from the Daily Realty Company, and 2,150 Houghton Avenue, a two-story frame dwelling on a lot 25 by 103 from the Wellman Finance and Realty Company. The Zerega Realty Company, of which George Costar is President, negotiated both transactions.

An investor has purchased from David Amolsky the Forest and Jackson apartment houses, each occupying a plot 50 by 100, at the southeast corner of Forest Avenue and 166th Street. The houses are two of a row of three recently completed by the seller at that point.

Brooklyn.

In the Eastern Parkway section I. D. Moscovitz has purchased from the Solomon-Kraus Realty and Construction Company three apartment houses, 942 948, and 954 Eastern Parkway, having a frontage of 132 feet and a depth of 120 feet 7 inches, on the corner of Troy Avenue. These are part of the row of five houses completed by the company last Fall, and are fully rented. The sale was made on a cash basis, and involved over $140,000.

In the same section the Solomon-Kraus Company purchased a plot of ten lots on the south side of Eastern Parkway, 189 feet west of Nostrand Avenue, with a frontage of 200 feet on the parkway and 132 feet in depth. Plans are now ready for the improvement of the plot with four four-story apartment houses, each having a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of 132 feet. The total transaction will involve the sum of $265,000.

The Jerome Property Corporation has sold 176 Eighth Street, between Third and Fourth Avenues, a three-story flat on lot 19 by 100, for the Rogers Improvement Company, the purchaser giving in part payment 1,044 Seventy-third Street, in the Dyker Heights Section, a two-story one-family house, on lot 31 by 100. The same brokers also sold 174½ Garfield Place, a three-story brownstone private house, for the Kings County Trust Company.

Architect Buys at Briarcliff.

The Briarcliff Realty Company has sold the Jesse Acker estate at Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., consisting of thirty-three acres, to Bertram G. Goodhue, of Cram, Goodhue & Ferguson, architects. He will erect a fine residence on the property. It is near the estates of W. W. Fuller and V. Everit Macy.

Long Island.

The Windsor Land and Improvement Company sold at Hempstead, to H. Weatherby and A. J. Schwartz, each a plot 40 by 100, and to J. H. Von der Berg two plots, 40 by 100, on Kennedy Avenue; to M. Daly a plot, 20 by 96, on Milburne and Kane Avenues.

New Jersey.

The Mountain Lakes Residential Park Company has sold at Mountain Lakes, N. J., to Robert E. Scholz, a plot adjoining his home, Lot 11, Block B; to Miss Sadie E. Naylor of East Orange, a large building plot on Mountain Lakes; to P. C. Nelson, house No. 116, on plots 49 and 51, Block C; to J. H. Senior, house No. 93, on plots 3 and 4, Block T, to Charles H. Wilson, house No. 179, on plots 10 and 11, Block A, and to W. H. Lewis, house No. 187, on plots 13 and 14, Block L.

After holding its sessions in a rented building for fifty-two years the Caldwell Lodge of Masons has decided to erect its own hall, and acquired title to property at the corner of Elizabeth and Academy Avenues, Jersey City. The property just purchased was owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Harrison.

The Crowley-O'Brien Company has sold in the Tuxedo Park Tract at South Orange a plot 60 by 160 to Charles E. Conlon, a plot 60 by 160 to Harry Wyman, a plot 60 by 160 to Harry B. Conlon, a plot 60 by 160 to Catherine McNair, a plot 60 by 160 to Walter S. Stackpole, and a plot 80 by 160 to E. Willard Coleman.

Commercial Leases.

J. F. Feist & Co. have leased the store and basement at 430 West Forty-second Street, for a term of three years, to Samuel Rosenstock.

William A. White & Sons have leased the building owned by Morris Weinstein, at 83 Pine Street, for a term of years, to Anthony Pignataro & Co.; also the store at 11 Water Street, for William M. Halsted, to the Central Glass Company.

Pease & Elliman have leased a store for the Rhinelander Real Estate Company at 123 West Sixty-eighth Street, to the Mohawk Rubber Company, and the store at 645 Amsterdam Avenue, for Thomas Devine, to Mark Friedman.

Charles Van Oppen has leased the store and basement of the premises at 856 Eighth Avenue, to K. Radin, Inc., for a term of five years from May 1st.

Albert B. Ashforth, Inc., has leased for A. A. Housman the westerly portion of the store in the Astor Court Building at the northwest corner of Astor Court and Thirty-third Street, known as 25 Thirty-third Street, to Mme. M. Obry.

The court has granted permission to the United States Trust Company, as trustee under the will of William H. Inman, to lease the property at 1,043 to 1,051 Sixth Avenue, southwest corner of Fifty-ninth Street, with frontages of 100.6 and 71.6 feet, respectively. The order confirms a report by Eugene Van Schaick, as referee, which recommends that the property be leased to Charles Knickrihm at $12,000 a year until 1917, $13,000 a year to 1919, and $14,000 a year to 1924.

J. Edgar Leaycraft & Co. have leased the building at 1,438 Third Avenue to Mme. Antoinette, cleaner and dyer; also the private dwelling 244 West Twelfth Street, to Mrs. T. Flanagan; and the stores in the building at 524 Third Avenue, corner of Thirty-fifth Street, to B. Green and to Kenner & Littman.

$500,000 Telephone Building Addition.

Seven additional stories are to be placed on the new seventeen-story exchange and office building of the New York Telephone Company at 18 to 26 Wall Street and 18 to 24 Lispenard Street. Plans for this extensive addition were filed yesterday by the architects, McKenzie, Voorhees & Grullin. The cost will be $500,000. Provision was made for this addition when the building was erected a little over a year ago, and the need for more room has necessitated the completion of the structure to twenty-four stories at this time.

Taxpayers' Meeting Called.

A meeting of taxpayers' organizations in Greater New York has been called for next Tuesday at 4 P. M. in the Vesey Street Salesroom. "The purpose of the meeting," said one active in organizing the opposition to the Herrick-Schaap bill in Albany on March 3, "is to complete that work, and to take up a perplexing and harassing situation that now confronts the taxpayers by conflicting orders of the State and local authorities on fire prevention and other kindred matters."

Realty Notes.

A rumor that the First Union Presbyterian Church, on the northeast corner of Lexington Avenue and Eighty-Sixth Street, was sold was denied by the officers. No price has been set upon the property, and it is not in the market, they stated. The plot is 100.8 on the avenue, by 62.3 on Eighty-sixth Street.

Samuel Katz has completed plans for a six-story apartment house to be erected at 838 to 844 Riverside Drive. The Podwil Realty Company is the owner and builder. The cost will be $200,000.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW York, LIZZIE VAN BOSKERCK, Plaintiff, against MARY C. STEWART, J. MIRABELAU and others, Defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action and bearing date the 11th day of February, 1914, I, the undersigned, the Referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 26th day of March, 1914, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by J. H. Mayers, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

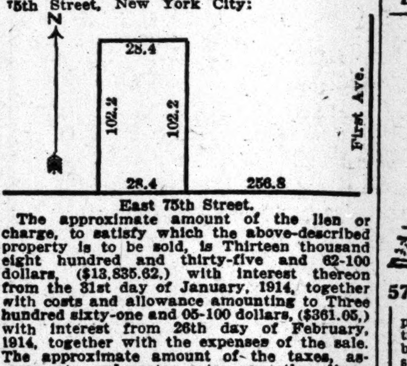
All that certain lot or parcel of land, with the building thereon known as Number Three hundred and twenty-seven East Seventy-fifth Street, lying and being in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, situate and described as follows:

Beginning at a point in the Northerly side of Seventy-fifth Street, distant two hundred and fifty-six feet and eight inches Westerly from the intersection of said Northerly side of Seventy-fifth Street with the Westerly side of First Avenue; and running thence Northerly parallel with said Avenue one hundred and two feet and two inches to the middle line of the block; thence Westerly parallel with said Street, twenty-eight feet and four inches; thence Southerly again parallel with said Avenue one hundred and two feet and two inches to Seventy-fifth Street; and thence Easterly along Seventy-fifth Street twenty-eight feet and four inches to the point of beginning, the Easterly and Westerly side walls of said building being party walls.

Dated New York, March 3, 1914.
THEODORE K. McCARTHY, Referee.

CHARLES P. NORTHROP, Attorney for Plaintiff. Office and Post Office address, No. 31 Nassau Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold; its street Number is 327 East 75th Street, New York City:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge, to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold, is Thirteen thousand eight hundred and thirty-five and 62-100 dollars, ($13,835.62,) with interest thereon from the 31st day of January, 1914, together with costs and allowance amounting to Three hundred sixty-one and 05-100 dollars, ($361.05,) with interest from 26th day of February, 1914, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments and water rates, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the Referee, is Two thousand nine and 34-100 dollars ($2,009.34) and interest.

Dated New York, March 3, 1914.

FORECLOSURE SALES.

FORECLOSURE SALE OF POUGHKEEPSIE GLASS WORKS.

The plant of the Poughkeepsie Glass Works, located at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and having a river frontage of several hundred feet, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder at the Court House in the City of Poughkeepsie, Dutchess County, N. Y., Tuesday April 7th, 1914, at 12 o'clock noon.

This plant is located in a fruit producing district seventy-five miles from New York on the Hudson River, and has good shipping facilities by rail and water. The sum of $50,000 has recently been expended upon the plant. Milk bottles have been made in the plant, which was running until January, 1914, and is ready for immediate operation. A first mortgage of $40,000 on the property can remain.

For further particulars, address the undersigned.

A Hundred Houses and Two Thousand Building Lots
TO BE SOLD BY THE Banking Department
State of New York

The Supreme Court of the State of New York has authorized the Banking Department to offer, at private sale, the real estate of the Industrial Savings and Loan Company (in liquidation).

These properties must be sold quickly in order to hasten the final closing of the affairs of the company.

The bargain prices average about 50% of the prices asked by former owners, and should attract investors, homeseekers and builders, and result in a rapid disposal of the properties.

This real estate is located in the State of New Jersey, along the Palisades, about opposite Grant's Tomb, at GRANTWOOD, PALISADE, HUDSON HEIGHTS, MORSEMERE, LEONIA, and EDGEWATER.

Title Guaranty Policies furnished free to purchasers. First mortgages accepted as part of purchase price. Liberal discounts for cash.

Offices in charge of reliable sales representatives will be maintained at Grantwood, corner of Lawton Avenue and trolley, and at Morsemere, corner of Broad and Columbia Avenues.

These offices and all of the properties may be reached from the Cortlandt, 42d Street and 130th Street ferries.

For Full Information, Prices and Terms of Sale, Address

$150,000 IN BANK FOR BIG AIR RACE

Prize Money Deposited in San Francisco, Aero Club Is Told at Dinner.

$50,000 FOR WAY STATIONS

Admiral Peary Prophesies That Fliers Soon Will Make the Trip to the North Pole.

Arnold Kruckman, a representative of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, presented to the Aero Club of America at its eight annual dinner at the Hotel St. Regis last night a telegram saying that $150,000 in prize money had been placed on deposit in the Anglo and London-Pais National Bank of San Francisco. The club members then voted unanimously to indorse the Exposition's project for an around-the-world aeroplane race.

The sanction of the Aero Club of America was asked six weeks ago, but was refused at the time because no prize money had been actually put up, and it was feared that the preparations for the big race would be inadequate.

Besides notifying the Aero Club officials that the prize money had been deposited, Mr. Kruckman notified the Aero Club members that $50,000 had been voted to him for a world tour to arrange for supply stations 300 miles apart all along the route of the proposed flight. This tour, he said, would begin as soon as he could assure the Panama-Pacific Exposition authorities that the Aero Club of America would sanction the race.

H. B. Eldridge, Vice President of the National City Bank, who was a guest at the Aero Club dinner, confirmed Mr. Kruckman's statement that the prize money had actually been placed on deposit in San Francisco. He said the National City Bank had received advices from its San Francisco agents that the money was on deposit there and could not be withdrawn without the sanction of the National City Bank.

The dinner of the Aero Club was turned into a feast of jollification over the fact that a project to hold an aeroplane race around the world had actually taken definite form.

Admiral Peary, the chief guest, asked permission to join the "aerofans" by making a prophecy as a layman that in five years aeroplane trips across the Atlantic, and even around the world, would be so common as to be almost commonplace.

For the benefit of those who might enter the around-the-world race, or who might attempt to fly across the Atlantic Ocean to win the Lord Northcliffe prize of $50,000 for the first airman to accomplish this feat, Admiral Peary gave some advice concerning conditions an airman might encounter in Greenland, Iceland, and along the northern part of the American Continent.

"Compared to the astonishment with which we heard that men had flown at all," he said, "the astonishment of a notice that they will soon attempt to fly across the Atlantic and run a circum-terrestrial race amounts to but a tame incident.

"Basing my judgment upon points that do not appear in the books, but which I learned from actual observations, I have no hesitation in saying that aeroplanes will not only cross the Atlantic and fly around the world, but cruise to the north pole across the polar basin within a very short time.

"As for flying to the North Pole, I should say an aeroplane will do it as soon as engines can be made to carry an aeroplane a distance of 1,800 miles without stopping. In Summer such a flight would be an ideal adventure. There would be two months in August and September when an airman would never encounter anything like so much cold as is encountered in the higher altitude flights of to-day.

"In such flights airmen have found temperatures down to 40 degrees below zero. There would not even be a zero day, I suspect, in a flight to the pole in Summer, as the temperature during the whole flight would be above that point. Of course, gasoline stations would not be encountered, but neither would be the terrible glare-ice. There would be, in fact, a fine, granular ice field on which to alight and rest before flying back to Cape Columbia, from which an aeroplane expedition might set out.

"But as for this present task of pioneering an air path across the Atlantic, some problems will be presented, which I fear no airman will take into account until he meets them. One will be found at Greenland, to which aviators hopefully look as a way-station on the route to Europe.

"But there is no point where a landing can be made on the coasts. These are composed of jagged mountains 5,000 feet high. If the aviator strikes for the interior he will encounter the ice cap. Near its edges the ice cap is composed of deeply furrowed blue ice, through which streams for the interior have cut their way. Back of this dangerous and furrowed ice lie the ice morasses, or swamps, if you will, where water and ice are mingled in great slush lakes. Beyond these the airman would encounter a fog so dense that he often could not see the forward portions of his own plane. The fog forms above the ice cap. I have walked through it for days when I could not see the front portions of my own snowshoes.

"Still further along the aviator would encounter the glare ice, which has a blinding brilliancy hard to understand unless you have suffered from it. There would be stretches where a landing could be made on the ice cap with perfect safety. These stretches would be those where the ice lies like powdered sugar, so soft that one walking upon it would sink up to his knees, and yet be free from glare. A station on this portion of the ice cap would be practicable.

"But after the aviator left it he would encounter, between Greenland and Iceland, the Denmark Strait, which is always filled with floating ice. The icefloes would not be large enough to land upon, and some part of Iceland would have to be made after leaving Greenland.

"As to going north from New York the aviator would find plenty of stations to the Arctic Circle, from which the distance to Greenland would not be great. He would find a whaling station at Resolution Island, another at Cape Haven, and another in Cumberland Sound, with a branch on the Arctic Circle."

Letters regretting their inability to be present were read from Lord Northcliffe, Andrew Carnegie, Orville Wright, Secretary of War Garrison, Secretary of the Navy Daniels, Secretary of State Bryan, and the presidents of a score of aero clubs.

Lord Northcliffe's letter, which was addressed to Alan R. Hawley, follows:

> My dear Mr. Hawley: It is appropriate that the attempt to cross the Atlantic in the air should be made from North America, where Wilbur and Orville Wright first left the earth in an aeroplane propelled by engine power.
>
> I was privileged to be associated in a humble degree with the first sea transit by aeroplane—that between France and England—and if any incentive of mine shall in the least degree have contributed to the greatest triumph of all—the crossing of the Atlantic—I shall be delighted and happy to feel that I have remotely assisted.
>
> My own experience in the air is simply that of an occasional excursionist, but I have had long talks with the Comte de Lambert, the distinguished aviator and friend of the Wrights, who has devoted much time to experiments with the type of machine necessary for the great journey. He is convinced that a transatlantic flight will be accomplished in the near future.
>
> We have been privileged in England to receive many Americans, but I can assure you that the greeting that will be accorded to the first of your countrymen who, by typical American courage and enterprise, achieves this feat, will be such as has not yet been extended to any foreigner arriving in the Old Country. And I hope to be there to join in it. With cordial greetings to my many friends in the room to-night.
>
> Yours very sincerely,
>
> NORTHCLIFFE.

In writing of the navy's interest in aviation, Secretary Daniels said that "It had already been sealed with the blood of two valuable lives" and that he hoped the completion of an effective aviation corps could be accomplished without further loss of life. He assured the Aero Club of his constant interest in aviation, "whether in the workshop or the hangar or in the air."

Secretary of War Garrison wrote that the War Department fully appreciated the importance of aeronautics in the army and hoped soon for great development in this new branch of the service.

Rodman Wanamaker, who was present, was praised for his work in promoting a transatlantic expedition for the Lord Northcliffe prize.

POLLOCK BILL ADVANCED.

Indications That Private Banking Measure Will Pass Both Houses.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 19.—The Senate in committee of the whole to-night advanced to the order of final passage the bill of Senator Pollock to regulate private banking, and the indications are that it will be passed by both houses. Senator Pollock is Chairman of the Senate Committee on Banks, which made an investigation of the private banking business last year, and the bill was one which that committee recommended.

The private bankers who, until THE NEW YORK TIMES's disclosure of a powerful lobby operating at the Capitol to bring about the defeat of the plan for supervision of private banks by the Banking Department, had boasted that they would be able to exert sufficient influence to kill this plan in the Assembly, were in a compromising mood to-day. While the Pollock bill was being debated in the Senate, a conference was in progress in the office of State Superintendent of Banks Van Tuyl, in the course of which amendments to the Van Tuyl bill to meet some of the objections advanced by the private bankers were being discussed.

Those who took part in the conference were State Superintendent of Banks Van Tuyl, Chairman Charles L. Bernheimer of the sub-committee on private banks of the Van Tuyl committee, which drafted the bill to revise the banking laws; Assistant District Attorney Louis Goldstein of Kings, also a member of the sub-committee, and George W. Morgan and Frank L. Patterson, counsel of the committee. They represented the committee, while William B. Seward, Jr., a private banker of Auburn, N. Y., and James Sheldon, a New York lawyer, represented the private bankers.

It was said to-night that no decision would be reached regarding prospective amendments until to-morrow, but that supervision of private banks by the Banking Department would stay in the bill.

TORN WILLS TO BE FOUGHT.

Contest Expected for Eccentric Builder's Estate of $150,000.

Mrs. Kate McKim Frizzell of 97 Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn, applied yesterday to Surrogate Noble of Queens County for an order removing Mrs. McKim, widow of Joseph McKim, an eccentric builder of Far Rockaway, as administratrix of his $150,000 estate. Mrs. Frizzell's petition is in behalf of herself and sixteen other nephews and nieces, who were the principal beneficiaries of two wills made by McKim in 1896 and 1900. He ordered these wills destroyed May 12, 1908, while he was an inmate of the Rivercrest Sanitarium, where he died in custory on July 9, 1912.

The Frizzell petition foreshadows a contest over the estate. In both his wills McKim cut off his daughters, Annie and Fannie, with $25 each. The first will also cut off his wife with $25, but the second gave her the life use of one-third of his realty. Their lawyers said yesterday that though the two wills had been preserved by Lewis L. Fosdick, the lawyer who drew them, after Annie McKim had torn them in half, by order of her father, their tearing amounted to an act of valid destruction.

The theory on which the nephews and nieces base their claim to the estate is that McKim, though sane when he made the wills, was insane at the time he ordered their destruction, and that consequently one or the other of them stands. Should the courts hold that he was sane at the time he ordered them destroyed, the widow and daughters will inherit the estate under the statute of intestate distributions, as though he had never made a will.

SEVENTH REGIMENT GAMES.

Interesting Programme of Athletic Events for Members on March 28.

The sixty-fifth games of the Seventh Regiment Athletic Association will be held at their armory, Sixty-seventh Street and Park Avenue, Saturday, March 28. The usual interesting programme has been arranged, including 92-yard handicap, 300-yard handicap, 880-yard handicap, 880-yard scratch officers' cup, one-half mile roller skating and one mile roller skating, tent raising contest, wall scaling contest, military relay race (heavy marching order); 1½ mile roller skating relay and inter-company relay race, 880 yards. Some of the scratch men that are entered are: G. A. Carson, W. F. McKenna, New York A. C.; C. W. Borgman, Y. M. C. A.; J. J. Elliott, N. Y. A. C.; Anthony Zink, N. Y. A. C.; William Kennelly.

An invitation two-mile walk has been added, for which the following have sent in their entries: R. B. Gifford, McCadden Lyceum, one-mile champion; R. F. Remer, Irish-American A. C. two-mile champion; Edward Renz, Mohawk A. C. three-mile champion; Fred Kaiser, N. Y. A. C. seven-mile champion; W. and F. R. Plant, Long Island A. C., and A. Voellmeke, Pastime A. C. G. A. Carson, holder of two-mile junior national champion title, will try for a new record in the 880-yard handicap. The present record is held by Paul Pilgrim, N. Y. A. C. There will be a band concert by the Seventh Regiment Band and dancing after the games.

Dr. Bertling Here for Professors.

Dr. Karl O. Bertling, head of the American Institute in Berlin, arrived here yesterday on the Imperator. He said he had come to the United States to arrange for exchange professors to go over this Summer from Harvard, Yale, Princeton, and other universities. He is also going to lecture here on the subject of old German castles and ruins.

BOYS GLAD TO QUIT JAIL FOR THE FARM

Dr. Davis Has Promise of Chosen Squad to Make Her Experiment a Success.

TAKE MASCOT WITH THEM

But a Mistake in Sex Makes It Necessary to Transform John Martin Into Jane.

Speaking at a mass meeting of the Chelsea Neighborhood Association, which is organized to rid the lower west side of evils, including the Hudson Dusters and the Gopher Gang, Dr. Katharine B. Davis, Commissioner of Correction, appealed at the Grand Opera House building last night for the help of all good citizens to carry out plans which she outlined for important changes and improvements in the Department of Correction. The necessity of active co-operation of good citizens to help city departments do their work properly was emphasized also by Police Commissioner Douglas I. McKay and ex-Assistant District Attorney Frank Moss.

Dr. Davis told the first step taken on the day before in carrying out one important reform in her department, in the sending of twelve boy pioneers from the New York Reformatory for Male Misdemeanants on Hart's Island, under the lead of Robert Rosenbluth, late of the Government and State Forestry Service, and several young Cornell students of forestry, to establish the foundations of the large farm school at Newhampton, N. Y., with which she plans to replace the present crowded and unsatisfactory reformatory on the island.

Dr. Davis told how by dint of much begging and scraping she had managed to realize the beginnings of the project. A friend pledged her the salary for one year for the forestry official who was to have charge of the pioneer work. A philanthropic woman gave her $500 more. She bought plows, hurriedly procured the transfer to her department of seven horses which were about to be abandoned by the aqueduct police in the neighborhood of the farm sites, begged and borrowed old harness and bits of other equipment from other city departments, and then, on Wednesday, she sent out the boy pioneers.

"They ranged from 18 to 24 years," said Dr. Davis, "and all of them were chosen from boys who were strong and well and seemed desirous of making good. As a matter of fact, all the 400 boys in the reformatory were eager to go. I took the chosen ones aside on the night before they went, and in a heart-to-heart talk showed them how the success of the whole tremendous experiment rested on them. I explained to them that we considered it better to send only a small group at first, which should establish a standard and spirit in the new home that should be different from the spirit in the old institution. I took the boys into my confidence, and before letting them join the expedition made every one of them pledge me his word of honor to do his very best to make our experiment a success. Every one of them did.

"The bedding, dishes, and food supplies for the first week were sent ahead in a freight car; but that broke down just outside of Jersey City. Accordingly, every boy when he left Harts Island, carried with him his bedding rolled up and tied with a string, a box of sandwiches, and changes of underclothing. They took along, too, a white bull pup, as a mascot, which we named John Martin. Unfortunately, later, we discovered that it was a female dog, and so we shall have to call her Jane instead. The band played 'Auld Lang Syne' as the boys left Harts Island. At Jersey City Mr. Rosenbluth met them, carrying his suitcase, violin, and typewriter. The last I saw of them, they were waving good-by from the train windows with one hand and sandwiches with the other. To-day I received a letter announcing their safe arrival and the fact that they had camped out for the night waiting for their horses by the next train.

"The boys will build their own bunkhouse first, under the direction of the Cornell boys, who are scarcely older than they, and who will live and work and sleep with them. They took along, too, their own cook, one of their number, who was so quiet on the way from Harts Island to Jersey City that we nicknamed him 'The Sphynx.' As soon as the bunkhouse is built we shall send out twenty-five boys. The truck gardening will begin then."

Dr. Davis said she would to-day give out pictures of the new detention house for which plans have been drawn and an appropriation has been made. This building would house all women from the district prisons and the Tombs for the time preceding their sentencing, and will contain also under proper classification such as cannot be made in the present quarters, women witnesses, first offenders, habitual drunkards, and worse criminals.

Police Commissioner McKay, in appealing for more active co-operation of citizens with the police, said in part:

"The low saloon, the pool and billiard parlors, coffee houses, and fake social clubs are the breeding places of gangs. Arrests, while they may do some good, do not go to the root of the evil. Within these places are carried on gambling, the sale of habit-producing drugs, the receiving of stolen goods, and the planning of crime against persons and property. The effective remedy lies not in proceeding against the individual inmates, but in proceeding against the places themselves and rooting them out. To eliminate those places we need the testimony of good citizens of the neighborhood in which they are situated. Unless those citizens put aside all thought of personal inconvenience and all fear of annoyance, and join hands with the police in suppressing these places, the work of the police must needs be ineffective."

SLEUTHS SAVE A TEXAN.

Rescue a Western Visitor from the Clutches of Two Confidence Men.

Claude E. Edwards, President of the Electric Telotype Company of Galveston, Texas, made his first visit to New York yesterday, and crowded a lot of experiences into a few hours. He met two of the town's confidence men, engaged in a little game known as "odd and even" while strolling along Sixth Avenue, got mixed up with the police, and paid a visit to Night Court. When he was released last night he headed back to the Grand Union Hotel, and decided to call it a day. He promised the detectives not to talk to strangers any more.

Things began to liven up when Edwards walked by the Bijou Theatre yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock. A young man of engaging manners who the police know as Thomas J. Tracy and who said he lived at 246 West Forty-eighth Street, accosted him politely and asked to be directed to the Haymarket. Edwards explained that he was paying his first visit to New York. A moment later a second young man, who afterwards said he was Harry E. Johnson of 317 West Forty-seventh Street, stepped up and asked Edwards to direct him to the Coliseum.

"I guess that place is in Boston," answered the obliging Texan.

Then Tracy suggested that they go to visit a friend of his, and the three strolled down Sixth Avenue. To pass the time away Tracy suggested a game of "odds and evens" to decide who would pay for the good time he suggested. Detectives Brenck and Murphy of the West Thirtieth Street Station interrupted the game and arrested Tracy and Johnson after a hard struggle. They took Edwards along as a suspicious character.

In Night Court Tracy and Johnson insisted on an immediate trial and pleaded guilty to the charge of disorderly conduct. Each received a sentence of three months in the workhouse. Edwards was released.

POLICE GET A TANGO DANCER

Three Women Now Accuse Him of Having Robbed Them.

Raymon Pasquez of 536 West 112th Street, a young man who said he was the son of a large sugar planter in Cuba and who was well known as a skillful tango dancer in several Broadway cafés, was arrested last night while visiting a Mrs. McGillivary of 526 West 112th Street, on the charge of stealing a diamond ring from Mrs. M. Cooper of 244 West 104th Street, with whom he had boarded until Feb. 16.

Detective L'Heureux, who had been seeking Pasquez since Mrs. Cooper complained that her boarder had disappeared with the ring, surprised Mrs. McGillivary greatly when he arrested Pasquez, but a few minutes later she followed them to the West 100th Street Station and said she believed that Pasquez had robbed her also. Four days ago she had missed $110 from her savings cabinet, but had not thought of suspecting Pasquez until he was arrested. According to the detective, Pasquez confessed that he had stolen the money from Mrs. McGillivary.

A few minutes after Pasquez had been locked up Miss Ethel Davalos of 2,071 Fifth Avenue appeared at the station and said that he had robbed her of a diamond ring worth $150. While she was automobile riding with him, Miss Davalos said, Pasquez had admired her ring and slipped it on his finger. A few minutes later he stopped the machine and said he had a telephone call to make. On his return the ring was missing. He seemed very much concerned about the loss, she said, and to make up for it gave her his own four-carat ring, which she discovered the next day to be paste.

FAVORS PORK AS FOOD.

Prof. Lusk Would Have It a Staple at Cheap Restaurants.

At a meeting of the New York Academy of Medicine last night the nutritive values of foods were discussed. Prof. Lafayette B. Mendel of Yale defended commercial glucose, the banana, cheese and other foods against their detractors.

Prof. Graham Lusk of Bellevue discussed "Nutrition from the Energy Standpoint." He said he wished that some public-spirited person would establish restaurants where an almost ideally nutritive meal of pork, beans, bread, coffee and milk could be served for ten cents a plate.

Dr. W. D. Bigelow, formerly of the Bureau of Chemistry of the United States Department of Agriculture, and now of the National Canners' Association, discussed problems arising from the changes in foods caused by canning.

400 at Dwight Alumni Dinner.

Four hundred members of the New York bar gathered last night at the Hotel Astor for the twenty-first annual dinner of the Dwight Alumni Association, consisting of lawyers who as students pursued the method of study laid down by Prof. Dwight, former dean of the Columbia University Law School. William D. Guthrie acted as toastmaster and introduced as the guest of honor former Chief Judge Edgar M. Cullen of the Court of Appeals. Ex-Judge Cullen said that the statute books of New York State were encumbered at the present time with "the greatest mass of nonsense conceivable." Other speakers were former United States Attorney General Wickersham and Supreme Court Justice Barlow S. Weeks.

EXPLORER INVADES CENTRAL AMERICA

Dr. Spinden Tells of Adventures Encountered in His Travels in British Honduras.

HE SAILS TO EL CAYO

Trip Will Include a Journey of Two Months Into Yucatan for the American Museum.

Dr. Herbert J. Spinden, who is conducting an expedition for the American Museum of Natural History, tells in a letter to a friend in this city the experiences he has encountered since starting out from Belize, British Honduras, where he established his headquarters before invading the rivers, lakes and jungles of Central America. In this letter, which was received yesterday, Dr. Spinden says:

"We are on board the Thistle, and sailing up the old river on the way to El Cayo, which is on the western frontier of British Honduras. It is early morning and the level sun is stealing into the green shadows of the river bank."

He says that the members of the expedition left Belize the day before just before sundown, and that they tied their craft to a bamboo bank below some swift flowing rapids. The explorers reached the place about midnight right in the heart of the jungle country, with spreading celbras and graceful cocoanut palms near by.

According to the letter Dr. Spinden and his party, which includes a Mr. Morley, are now continuing on the first part of a two months' trip into the interior region of Yucatan, where they hope to visit the ruins of a number of famous cities, and then afterward they plan to proceed into Mexican territory. Much of the traveling, however, will be accomplished in Guatemala.

Dr. Spinden spent some time southward of Belize and proceeded along the coast of Punta Gorda, where he gathered some collections and interesting information from the Carribs. Speaking of these people he says that their language is fairly pure and their arts resemble those of their relatives in South America. Their principal food is caesava, which is derived from a poisonous root and obtained through a peculiar process.

After visiting a shrine the members of the expedition continued on to Guatemala City, and then to Antiqua, the ancient capital, which was destroyed by an earthquake. On the site are nearly forty ruined churches. According to Dr. Spinden Antiqua is a wonderful city and its churches are certainly impressive in their beauty. Altogether the exploration party will spend several months prospecting among the ruins of Central America.

M. BELMONT DEFIES CLASS.

Financier's Son Won't Be Photographed for Harvard Senior Album.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 19.—Morgan Belmont, son of August Belmont of New York, refuses to have his photograph taken at Harvard, where he is a senior, and unless he hastens to one of the studios in the College Square before Saturday his name will go on the "roll of dishonor" which is to be printed in the annual Senior Album of the Harvard men.

Each year the senior class issues an album containing the picture and a short autobiographical sketch of each member. Thus far all but a few of the 1914 students have posed before the camera, and the edition of the album will be sent to press the first of next week. Morgan Belmont, who is one of the wealthiest men in the senior class, has demurred at going to the photographer's, although he and the few other seniors whose photographs have not been taken have been publicly warned in The Harvard Crimson. To-morrow is Belmont's last chance.

The "roll of dishonor," which the senior class album committee is to establish will be printed in the back of the book, containing the names of the seniors who would not have their photographs taken or who would not contribute a short sketch of their college lives.

TITANIC SURVIVOR TO WED.

Miss Margaret Graham Engaged to E. M. Moore—Palm Beach Romance.

The wedding of Miss Margaret Graham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Graham of Greenwich, Conn., and Eugene Maxwell Moore, whose engagement has just been announced, will probably take place early this Summer. The engagement is the culmination of a romance which began at Palm Beach.

Miss Graham is at the Plaza with her brother, her parents being in Augusta, Ga. Mr. Moore is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Moore of 20 Fifth Avenue, who are in Europe. His sister is the Duchess Marino Torlonia, who lives in Rome.

Miss Graham and her mother were survivors of the ill-fated Titanic.

Praises Philippine Policy.

BOSTON, March 19.—The administration of Francis Burton Harrison as Governor of the Philippine Islands is indorsed in a letter to him from the Anti-Imperialist League made public today. The letter says that the league realizes the opposition to the promised Philippine independence by certain commercial and journalistic interests, despite which Mr. Harrison "had done the largest practical part in carrying on to its fulfillment one of the greatest acts of national atonement and restitution recorded in history."

Lind in a Pacific Whaling Deal.

SEATTLE, Wash., March 19.—Announcement has been made here of the sale to the Pacific Sea Products Company, composed of John Lind, President Wilson's personal representative in Mexico, and several other Minneapolis capitalists, of the Alaska Whaling Company, organized two years ago by Capt. Otto Sverdrup, the Norwegian explorer. The consideration was not made public, but the property is valued at $1,000,000.

STOLL SHOOTING A PUZZLE.

Woman Says She Wounded Herself While Cleaning a Pistol.

The police are much puzzled by the shooting of Mrs. H. Stewart Stoll, the wife of a salesman for C. S. Hammond of 30 Church Street, who has been in the Washington Heights Hospital since Wednesday afternoon, suffering from a bullet wound which she said she suffered when she shot herself accidentally while cleaning a revolver.

Mrs. Stoll's brother-in-law and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Stoll of [illegible] 235th Street, visited her at the hospital yesterday, and her husband sent word from the West that he would return at once. It was said that a man held a long telephone conversation with Mrs. Stoll shortly before she was found with a bullet wound in her left side near her heart. It was announced that a man telephoned to Mrs. Stoll during the morning yesterday and rang off suddenly on learning that there had been trouble. The operator said he became angry when she told him there was no one in the apartment.

Cutting Down the Cost of Living

THE downward revision of the tariff has enabled us to offer you suits made from English, Scotch and Irish Cloths at $25.

The fact that Hart, Schaffner & Marx made them guarantees the high quality of their tailoring.

Other foreign fabrics which formerly have been offered by a few of the high class custom tailors only are now to be had at Wallach Stores at popular prices.

We know clothes and we have put all our clothes' knowledge into preparing for your visit. Please come.

POISONED HIMSELF BY OVEREATING
